~~The first page of my letter~~

Back from our 2nd visit to Schen work in it. Don't do what I feel, what my heart is done. We aim at getting that work finished by next spring. Then there is to start the work on some other method - &

the lot I may make some attempt at one part

Can we have to meet the practical question.
 Can we have to meet results of a religious definite moral code - as a Church? I doubt it.

 As to longer I live the more the world
 tends to become a selfish communion.

Somewhat or other we must have the

Adams' married daughter came to lunch with me

Russell brought Sidney Dan in his car, & came in for a paper & a talk. ~~They~~ They were both of them - particularly Russell - far more apprehensive ^{of the long strike} of bloodshed in the streets before it ended than I had been. S. says that 40 miners members are obstructive about any reduction of wages a lengthening of hours & even threaten with J.H. Thomas for supporting last of the coal miners when we introduced 15 minutes & consider the question of a temporary reduction of wages during the immediate emergency of the industry. His reports show that the ~~union~~ ^{union} generally is far more anxious to strike than the S.C. of T.M.C. & that in certain industrial areas - Newcastle & Glasgow - there is a very ugly spirit and of the strikers continued & there were however much doubt with many outbreaks of violence below the surface & to police. Sidney was impressed with the hardness of the P.H.D. & the self-will of the Trade Unions. He does not think that the Cabinet will have a general election after the strike is over & before any Trade anti-law union legislation. He thinks that the government class is cowardly

What comes out the revolution that of 1834. What comes out among other conditions is that there is a certain analogy between the present state of things & that of a hundred years ago. The country gentlemen of the 1820-32 were taking over the machine from Capitalist enterprise & substituting its working of to set new wages & the number of hours thrown out of employment. The John Bull & others had not yet written out the plan of slavery the people are complaining about when the Capitalist - the former policy of the United States in 1834. We are now again substituting Capitalist enterprise & labor with the machine - or as Bob says it is a system that ~~the~~ there are two distinctness between today & a hundred years ago. MR. LLOYD GEORGE ON CHRISTIANITY.

The Proper Tests.

CHRIST & THE GENERAL STRIKE.

Equality, the right of the individual, the brotherhood of man—there never were such subversive revolutionary doctrines as those three doctrines of Christianity preached in the world, declared Mr. Lloyd George at the flower service of the Castle Street Welsh Baptist Chapel, London, which he attended yesterday, as he has done regularly for more years, he said, than he cared to recount. The Pastor, the Rev. James Nicholas, in introducing Mr. Lloyd George, referred to him as a man of vision and the child of the storm. Before his address Mr. Lewis Davies had spoken on "Christ and Today," and Mr. Silas Morgan had sung "Every Valley Shall be Exalted." It was from these that Mr. Lloyd George got his text.

They had been given an interesting subject, said Mr. Lloyd George—the effect of Christ's teaching upon the outlook of to-day. He remembered how in his young days a popular pamphlet by Mr. W. T. Stead, "If Christ visited Chicago," created a great sensation. He did not remember what Mr. Stead's theory was and the effect upon Chicago, but he was not so sure that Christ would be acceptable if He visited this country at the present moment. "If He had been here during the late strike," said Mr. Lloyd George, "I am perfectly certain that all his utterances would have been excluded from the columns of the 'British Gazette.'" (Laughter.) The editorial blue pencil of Mr. Winston Churchill would certainly have cut right through the Sermon on the Mount. I rather think that the

There was the essence of it, added Mr. Lloyd George, that was where the rights of man came from. There was the doctrine of equality. Not that it meant all should be exactly the same. They could not all be equal in that sense. Thank heaven

It depended upon whom they were equal to, the specimen according to which they were to be fashioned—and it would be a very dull world if all were the same. "Look at the things we have created," he continued, "you would never have that if all were equal. It is the inequality that makes it very often, and it leads to the things that we have made us of all sorts not even promise salvation to everybody, but He has promised an equal chance of salvation to everybody, and that is the doctrine of equality.

Exalting the Valleys.

"The old doctrine by which one section of society had all the good things, and the privileges and the pomp and the power and the glory and the joy of life, and another nothing but the drudgery, and the drab and the misery of life, that is the doctrine which the Christian religion destroys." It was a great sentence, sung that afternoon, "Every valley shall be exalted, every mountain and hill be made low." What did that mean? There were valleys deep, there were gorges and chasms that the light of life never penetrated into. Those born there had simply the chill, wearying blasts without a ray of sunshine—that was society before the Christian religion began to expel the evil, and if they looked through the centuries they would see that the valleys had been rising and rising and rising, and the sun had been penetrating the gorges and chasms with new light for the poorest. The valleys had been exalted, and the hills and mountains that absorbed all the light of day to themselves, casting shadows upon the valleys beneath, taking it all to themselves and giving nothing back—"the mountains had been laid low." There was the great doctrine taught by the greatest of all revolutionaries. Those were the things that had been done.

He had heard a sermon—he would not say of what denomination the preacher was—which sought to prove that Christianity was responsible for civilisation, and said "look at Confucianism. China had been under its influence thousands of years before Christ and what was the result—the Chinaman had not been able to produce a single locomotive up to the present hour." That was not the test of Christianity. The poor old Chinaman's religion had, at any rate, made him a lover of peace until he got somebody who was called a Christian General to lead him. No, it was the doctrine of the right of man, the equality of man, that was the test, and here he thought it right to say in a Protestant church that the Catholic Church in the Middle Ages and the Dark Ages stood up for this principle and emancipated the whole of the serfs in this country. We had slavery here, and it was entirely through the action of the great leaders of Catholicism, under the influence of that Church, that the emancipation came. But that was the doctrine of Christ working in that time through that great Church.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE ON CHRISTIANITY.

The Proper Tests.

CHRIST & THE GENERAL STRIKE.

Equality, the right of the individual, the brotherhood of man—there never were such subversive revolutionary doctrines as those three doctrines of Christianity preached in the world, declared Mr. Lloyd George at the flower service of the Castle Street Welsh Baptist Chapel, London, which he attended yesterday, as he has done regularly for more years, he said, than he cared to recount. The Pastor, the Rev. James Nicholas, in introducing Mr. Lloyd George, referred to him as a man of vision and the child of the storm. Before his address Mr. Lewis Davies had spoken on "Christ and Today," and Mr. Silas Morgan had sung "Every Valley Shall be Exalted." It was from these that Mr. Lloyd George got his text.

They had been given an interesting subject, said Mr. Lloyd George—the effect of Christ's teaching upon the outlook of to-day. He remembered how in his young days a popular pamphlet by Mr. W. T. Stead, "If Christ visited Chicago," created a great sensation. He did not remember what Mr. Stead's theory was and the effect upon Chicago, but he was not so sure that Christ would be acceptable if He visited this country at the present moment. "If He had been here during the late strike," said Mr. Lloyd George, "I am perfectly certain that all his utterances would have been excluded from the columns of the 'British Gazette.'" (Laughter.) The editorial blue pencil of Mr. Winston Churchill would certainly have cut right through the Sermon on the Mount. I rather think that the Home Secretary would have had him watched as a dangerous character preaching doctrines and principles which were subversive of our institutions, and you would probably find that the next edition of the Gospels published in the twenty-first century would have been compiled, not from the recollection of His disciples, but from the notes taken by the police who attended His addresses. (Laughter.) I am equally certain that He, probably for approval of the Archbishop of Canterbury's appeal for conciliation instead of force, would have been excluded from the Liberal "Shadow Cabinet." (Laughter.) So that I am not sure that He would have been altogether acceptable under present conditions.

"Essentially Subversive."

His doctrines were revolutionary. They were subversive, like all growth, disintegrating, changing the very character and complexion of things. They were like seeds dropped in the crevices of a great fortress which gradually destroy by growth the fortress itself and dismantle it. His doctrines were essentially subversive.

The doctrines of equality, the right of the individual, the brotherhood of man were preached in a world where the rights of men were unknown, and thousands and hundreds of thousands and millions were just as much property as cattle. Recounting the story of the Welsh poet, Iolo Morgannwg, and his support of the French revolutionaries, Mr. Lloyd George told how a policeman in plain clothes called on Iolo at his bookseller's shop at Cowbridge, near Cardiff, to seize a copy of Tom Paine's "Rights of Man." "Well, a man who does not know a policeman whether in uniform or not," said Mr. Lloyd George, "is not fit to keep a shop—(laughter)—and Iolo Morgannwg knew him at once." When he was asked if he had a copy of the "Rights of Man" he said "Yes," and pulled down a copy of the New Testament and said "There it is."

There was the essence of it, added Mr. Lloyd George, that was where the rights of man came from. There was the doctrine of equality. Not that it meant all should be exactly the same. They could not all be made equal in that sense. Thank heaven for that. It depended upon whom they were to be equal to, the specimen according to which they were to be fashioned—(laughter)—and it would be a very dull world if all were the same. "Look at the excitement some of us create," he continued. "You would never have that if all were on an equality. It is the inequality that creates it, very often, and it leads to the interest. He has made us of all sorts,

not even promise salvation to everybody, but He has promised an equal chance of salvation to everybody, and that is the doctrine of equality.

Exalting the Valleys.

"The old doctrine by which one section of society had all the good things, and the privileges and the pomp and the power and the glory and the joy of life, and another nothing but the drudgery, and the drab and the misery of life, that is the doctrine which the Christian religion destroys." It was a great sentence, sung that afternoon, "Every valley shall be exalted, every mountain and hill be made low." What did that mean? There were valleys deep, there were gorges and chasms that the light of life never penetrated into. Those born there had simply the chill, wearying blasts without a ray of sunshine—that was society before the Christian religion began to expel the evil, and if they looked through the centuries they would see that the valleys had been rising and rising and rising, and the sun had been penetrating the gorges and chasms with new light for the poorest. The valleys had been exalted, and the hills and mountains that absorbed all the light of day to themselves, casting shadows upon the valleys beneath, taking it all to themselves and giving nothing back—"the mountains had been laid low." There was the great doctrine taught by the greatest of all revolutionaries. Those were the things that had been done.

He had heard a sermon—he would not say of what denomination the preacher was—which sought to prove that Christianity was responsible for civilisation, and said "look at Confucianism. China had been under its influence thousands of years before Christ and what was the result—the Chinaman had not been able to produce a single locomotive up to the present hour." That was not the test of Christianity. The poor old Chinaman's religion had, at any rate, made him a lover of peace until he got somebody who was called a Christian General to lead him. No, it was the doctrine of the right of man, the equality of man, that was the test, and here he thought it right to say in a Protestant church that the Catholic Church in the Middle Ages and the Dark Ages stood up for this principle and emancipated the whole of the serfs in this country. We had slavery here, and it was entirely through the action of the great leaders of Catholicism, under the influence of that Church, that the emancipation came. But that was the doctrine of Christ working in that time through that great Church.

"What did brotherhood mean?" asked Mr. Lloyd George. "You don't deal with a man merely as a matter of business. If you get the doctrine of brotherhood individual bargaining and collective bargaining are unnecessary. You don't say 'What are the lowest wages I can persuade or compel that man to work at?' You don't do that with your brother. If you do you are a very bad brother. And it does away with war, because the moment the doctrine of brotherhood comes in all war becomes fratricide—you are killing a member of your own family, you are killing your own brother. It is the most subversive and revolutionary doctrine ever preached on this earth, the doctrine of the brotherhood of man." They would not leave their brother to rot in slums if they could help it, nor tell him that if he had worked better he would have deserved better. But there were eight millions living in this gigantic city, men, women, and children, eight millions of souls, and there were hundreds of thousands living under conditions which were a disgrace to this greatest city under the sun—and they were their brothers and sisters. This doctrine of this great revolutionary, if applied, would simply cleanse the land of the stain of the slums.

It was a great series of doctrines and would take a long, long time to work out. How very slowly things moved! There were things talked about when he came to Castle Street thirty-six years ago that looked then as if they were within reach but still seemed as far off as ever. "I don't know how many miles a second the earth spins through space," concluded Mr. Lloyd George. "It crawls and crawls along when it comes to business. These doctrines were preached two thousand years ago. We are a long way off their achievement. There is plenty to do, but if the Christian Churches do their duty, if they continue faithfully to preach these doctrines and to insist upon their application to the conditions—physical, moral, and spiritual—of mankind, then you will find that equality, the rights of man, and the brotherhood of the race will be part of the law of this land." (Applause.)

The Executive Committee of the Radical Group outside Parliament at a meeting held during the week-end resolved unanimously that a general meeting of the members of the Group should be called at Essex Hall on Wednesday evening, July 7, to consider the recommendation "that in view of the increasing membership of the Group it should now form itself into a Radical League and make an appeal to all rank and file Liberals to forget personal differences and join hands in pressing for general reforms."

The Group was started at Essex Hall in March.

The second Test match, which began at Lord's on Saturday, attracted far more people than the ground could accommodate. Those who got inside had a fine day's cricket, and the Australians put themselves into a sound position by scoring 338 for eight wickets in nearly six hours. Bardsley was at the crease all the time, and will begin to-day with 173 to his credit. This is the highest innings ever played in a Test match at Lord's, the previous best being 164 by Shrewsbury in 1886.

The most important of the county matches was that in which Yorkshire met Surrey at Sheffield. The champions made a splendid start by scoring 341 for five, Leyland making 133 and Mitchell scoring his first fifty in first-class cricket. Leyland's was one of six centuries registered during the day, two of which fell to Mead and Brown, who made light of the Essex bowling. Lee, of Middlesex, also reached three figures. He was playing against Gloucester, for whom Parker took his hundredth wicket of the season—the first man to complete this feat this season.

Kent made no more than 219 against Northampton, and as their visitors have reached 85 for four wickets there should be an interesting struggle for the lead on the first innings. Flint was the only Notts batsman who made a prolonged stay against the Leicester bowlers, but, after getting rid of their opponents for 102, Leicestershire damaged their prospects by losing three wickets for 44. Somerset batted all day for 295, and still have one wicket for the Derbyshire bowlers to capture. Cambridge's total against Leveson-Gower's team was 272, Duleepsinhji missing his hundred by four runs. The Lancashire batsmen were livelier than usual, and Warwickshire, with one wicket to capture, already have to face a total of 384. E. Tyldesley, who was missed before he scored, reached 144.

WARWICK v. LANCASHIRE.

Lancashire's Good Start.

A fine three-figure innings by Ernest Tyldesley was the feature of the opening of Lancashire's match at Edgbaston, which was set apart for the benefit of Parsons. Going in first wicket down when 60 were on the board, Tyldesley was sixth out after getting 144 out of 273 in three hours and fifty minutes. He was missed by Smart at second slip off Mayer before he had scored, but afterwards gave no chance, and his principal strokes were 15 fours. Tyldesley received valuable assistance from Barnes, who helped him to add 160 for the fourth wicket in two hours and ten minutes. Barnes hit six fours. It was a brilliant catch that disposed of Iddon, Parsons taking a fierce return to the left hand. Makepeace exercised great caution, taking over two hours for his 40.

Santall and Bates each made a couple of fine catches, and Quaife bowled effectually after tea, but with their total 384 Lancashire have still a wicket to fall. A collection for Parsons on the ground realised £50.

Parkin and Lancashire.

Interviewed at Birmingham on Saturday afternoon regarding the statement he was said to have made in connection with his not being in the Lancashire team against Warwickshire, Parkin said: "I shall make no statement about it, as I have got into trouble enough already. I did not say I would not play for the county again."

SOMERSET v. DERBYSHIRE.

Slow Batting by Somerset.

Somerset won the toss in the second match in the Bath week against Derbyshire, and on a good wicket occupied the whole day in scoring 295 for nine. Daniel and Young set the pace in taking ninety minutes before lunch for 67. Ingle scored 28 in forty minutes, and half the side were out for 143 before E. F. Longrigg played the best cricket of the innings and beat his previous best for the county of 80 not out against Kent last year. He was batting two hours and twenty minutes and got the ball to the boundary four times. Young batted well for an hour and fifty minutes. Derbyshire gave away many runs through missing catches. Scores:—

YORKSHIRE v. SURREY.

Champions Score Freely.

A splendid opening partnership by Leyland and Mitchell gave Yorkshire an excellent start against Surrey at Sheffield on Saturday. Staying together nearly three hours they scored 192 before Mitchell played on. He was missed at second slip before a run had been scored, but made no other mistake in scoring 89—his highest score for his county. He made most of his runs on the leg side and hit eight fours. Leyland was third out at 252 and made 133 in four hours. He gave no chance until he had scored 113 and then Fender missed him at third slip. After he left Robinson and Rhodes put on 59 before Rhodes was run out by Peach with a splendid throw from long off. Turner was unlucky in also being run out, Robinson calling him and then sending him back. Scores:—

THE LABOUR PROBLEM IN ITALY.
Fascism's Proud Boast.
(Reuter's Telegram.)
ROME, TUESDAY.
At the last sitting of its June session yesterday the Fascist Grand Council, on the motion of Signor Mussolini, unanimously adopted a resolution expressing pride in the fact that the discussion which has been proceeding on the new trade union regulations had demonstrated the perfect cordiality and excellent spirit of collaboration of all heads of organisations. This, declares the resolution, together with the social and national discipline established by Fascism, constitutes the best guarantee that the great new reform, which the whole world is watching, will be crowned with such success that Fascism will have the incontestable merit of having solved one of the most tormenting and difficult problems of contemporary civilisation.
Prince Gonzaga, Commander-in-Chief of the Militia, then made a statement on the present state of the Militia and its plans for the future. The Grand Council expressed its lively satisfaction with the excellent conditions prevailing in the ranks of the Militia, and decided to encourage all forms of sport amongst its members. The Council further sent its congratulations to all Black Shirts.

Sketching down to the very roots of my being

A queer question has been running in 2 words of the faintest whisper in my mind ~~for the last 10 years~~ ~~about~~ ~~my~~ ~~father~~ ~~and~~ ~~mother~~ ~~and~~ ~~the~~ ~~question~~ ~~of~~ ~~my~~ ~~parentage~~

about
the father
and mother

the reason ~~of my parentage~~ the first chapter of my own book: "Will it be thought that I am to child of Herbert Spencer?" I suddenly knew, asked myself. ~~the~~ ~~question~~ ~~of~~ ~~my~~ ~~parentage~~ arose a memory: "After all Beckman" J. B. P. said on one occasion when we were ~~at~~ ~~the~~ ~~University~~ was H. J. Williams' misbehavior with Charles Dews

"What ^{was} ~~was~~ ~~your~~ ~~relationship~~ ~~with~~ ~~Herbert~~ Spencer?" "Don't be afraid I know I better retard "he was so much like my father" "That was not meant it" he answered dry & dropped the subject.

Now it never occurs to me but he was abiding not to my behavior but my mother's!
That ^{incident} ~~memory~~ ^{brings} ~~up~~ ^{old} ~~memory~~ ~~of~~ ~~Arthur~~

Beaman, in a flash of intimacy, once asked me "What was Herbert Spencer's relation to you family?" - again I do not understand what he was referring to in the somehow unaccountable note of familiarity ^{as if he were} led to a "stiffly off-hand" reply. Of course he was ~~deliberate~~ ~~in~~ ~~the~~ ~~question~~ ~~of~~

Is there to remember reason for this

The father & mother of Charles Song & G.W. were well known in the world - in all "civilized" circles about social influence etc. but with a certain amount of backing from better off relations. The mother of Charles is ~~the daughter of a~~ ^{Madame} ~~Madame~~ a few hundred pounds to buy ~~spec~~ for a headman ship ^{Robert Smith} John which becomes to him of 5000 pounds & to ^{himself} source of the family income. I will not say he counts unpopularity - he is too much of a man for that - more over he would think of sitting. But he always has an conviction of his opinions & time after time he has "used himself up" for a course & in his beliefs (perhaps he has changed in manner & method since the last time)

When he was young & enthusiastically he was curious but perhaps can be advised to the world's temperance of education, content & education. Education has become took in form of perverted permeation; of end less intrigue & of this "control" to his way. By friend & enemies alike he was acclaimed as an accomplished craftsman. Perhaps his current caricature - ^{ant-1905} - is a picture of Kelvin & Hopkins working up & down with end of his hands to the city Dublin. But, of late, it can be seen to have become too philosophical.
