SHENSTONE,
CAMBRIDGE.

My dear Kelly

You see I have gone to Cambridge after all, since Miss Hennidy wrote again and seemed really anxious to have me come to stay. So I put off my proposed return to Germany to Monday 25th and came here yesterday evening.

I had a most enjoyable time at Drylaw. Hatch from the 13th till them and on my way through London had lunch with Miss B. Carter yesterday.

I had no idea the Locks had come into possession of so lovely a place as Deylan. Hatch is, a very pretty house and charming grounds, but above all the loveliest country all round. Last Wednesday I went with them to see Ellen Terry in the afternoon performance of Colonel Broschound at the Court Theatre and enjoyed it exceedingly.

Now I propose only passing through London on my way home, if I can find a train that takes me in just to fit the train from Victoria to Queenb'ry in the evening. So I must give up the plan of seeing you once more in London, and perhaps it is better so, for I suppose you are busy with your time. Love now.

~~1854~~

There is hardly anybody up here of the people I knew, but I angled to see the place and the Misses Kennedy again. They inquired after you most particularly, as also did Miss B. Carter and Cardine Peter and of course I gave them glowing accounts of the school.

Good bye, dear Kelly — let me thank you once more and believe me Yours very affectionately 1854 ~~1854~~ Mrs. Ann Cotton.
