My dear Pippa.

Mrs. Brenton's been to see me to day - she's getting on better at her penicils and isn't in a hurry to look after the honor, but the real fact is she's dying for some one to pet & look after and mother - she's simply starved for that hasn't enough money to live with her own children & is dying for want of her natural female feminine job of helping & caring for others. Why not have her for her Ladyship. She really is a dear and full of humor & sheds help in any sort of odd way. You should have a human surroundings so

But I wouldn't suggest this unless for her sake but I think it might be a way out for you. Mrs. B. has such bad luck that I expect you're just got some one for the job.

I'm a bad cold and am very cross
I remain -
Yrs. Pope.

P.S. Oh the pottery by Dow - I should flush (if that were possible) to tell you how good I think a few of the pieces are I hope you'll come & see it before they all go. There's one doll piece that's brilliant - the other colors aren't much.
