My Dear Mrs Millward

Have been too busy to write you for a few days but now I have some news for you I feel I must find a few minutes to spare to tell you.

Annie tells me she will give you a day or two in Plymouth very shortly & I am sending you your address to her so that she can communicate with you about the work.

You will be sure to love her

& you can make her happy by giving her some work to do.

We are very busy here & so I cannot write much.

I have not yet heard from ^{my} Frank since he landed but he sent me a P.C. from London & says I should be enjoying the sea!

Will you please not mention him to Annie. She will only fidget about it.

I do wish I were back in Plymouth among all the kind friends I met there, & with you to whom I owe some of the pleasantest hours of my life.

Still I must do the work that is set out for me & trust to the future to give me the pleasure of seeing you all again.

am now wanted to speak.

Good Bye & all Best Love to you my dear friends.

Remember me to all the family ever sincerely yours
Wm. Westwell
