Dear Madam,

I am very sorry that I forgot to send you on the few words in reference to Pharmacy, last night. I enclose them herewith, but as the facilities given to women pharmacists and salaries paid to them compare very favourably with those of men, I do not think the conditions of pharmacy for women would be bettered by the granting of the suffrage to women, I have, therefore, not touched on this point.

I am striving hard to gather together ten women pharmacists for the procession, but it is a difficult task.

Yours faithfully,

J. Hambling

Secretary.
