My dear Mrs Fawcett.
We have had a terrible experience. The attack was due to indigestion brought on by over excitement & strain, & it was a faint, but the pain continuing, the heart's action was impeded, & for 1½ hours the condition of things was critical, very much so, twice I thought him gone. He remains in my mind as a nightmare of horror. He is doing well, but he is much weakened.

The 'silver line' is the evidence of his popularity, & very specially amongst his country people. The feeling has been almost overpowering

Yrs affly
