

My dear Sir

AL/3286

As this gracious Season is peculiarly appropriated to acts of Christian charity; and as it is an act of charity as much appropriate to your profession and your character, to preserve your patients from being sick, as well as curing them when they are sick, I insist upon it that it is absolutely a duty in you, by accepting the small company in quarter of Lamb, to relieve me a little from the load of luxuries which my friend's kindness has heaped upon me. The gentleman who sent it me values himself on surpassing all his competitors in the perfection of this article. I hope you will find it as famous as he thinks it, and that you will pardon the liberty I have taken.

I beg to be most affectionately remembered to your dear Lady; and cordially wishing you both, at the conclusion of this blessed festival, remember me dear Sir your ever obliged and ever faithful friend & servant. H. More

I am pretty, all the letter I suspect from the mildness of the weather.
Much typhus in this quarter
