The Governing Body of Newnham College record their sorrow at the death of Miss J.P. Strachey, who served the College for 46 years as Lecturer, Tutor, Principal and Fellow. She was named in the College Charter as a member of the first Governing Body constituted in 1917, and with a short break following the end of her Principalship in 1941, she continued to be a member till her death. She brought to the counsels of the College an unswerving regard for its interests and for the character and traditions inherited from its Founders. Her scholarship and sure sense of academic values helped to establish its standing in the University, and her charm and distinction of personality enriched its corporate life. The Governing Body are deeply conscious of the debt the College owes Miss Strachey for the many gifts she devoted to its service.
