

4862

July 16th 1891

My dear Pippa,
Contrary to expectation I again have the honour to take up my pen & address you before returning to the paternal mansion. I hope that you will not forget the subject which occupied some part of my late epistle although it appears to have somehow slipped away behind the other things in your brain.

As the term is drawing swiftly to a close ~~the sooner~~ the business can be attended to, the better.

The weather here is very nice indeed; hoping it will last. To-morrow we pack up; many thanks for the box which arrived yesterday. On Wednesday they've departed; at the early sunrise of dawn in floods of tears & a handsome cab with india rubber tyres; also with a brother who looked slightly bored at having to arise thus early. I must now bid thee farewell. Every one admired Dorothy's self made gown very much. I think it's sweet & she looks very charming in it

Goodbye
y^r loving Pernie.