Dear Mr. Taylor,

I daresay you have heard the result of your case. I am obtaining a transcript of the judgment of which I will send you a copy.

I am thoroughly disgusted at the strong prejudice shewn by the Judge. I know that you are not lit for damages, but that you should be fined in the way of costs when the defendants are found to be wrong, is most unjust. The verdict for £5 carries a trifle in the way of costs, whereas you will probably have to pay more than the amount recovered for the costs of the defendants. As (been given, other than those against whom judgment has a matter of fact, judgment should have been given against Pollard as well as the others. I hope the other side will appeal, because I think you are right in law. The only comfort is that you have re-established the principle, and the action had a wide publicity.

Yours sincerely,

Arthur E. W. Marshall.

Captain T. Smithies Taylor.
