Dear Miss Becker

It grieves me very much to hear of the sad trouble you are in. On my own account

I am sorry to lose the pleasure of my visit to you, but what is that beside all the sorrow and the change a loss like that of your father must bring to you & yours.

I wish I could have sent you the flowers. but even had there been time, I fear the hurricane of wind & rain which has been blowing furious all night must have destroyed every blossom.

I am sorry to think you have all the work of some around electing on you at a time of so much home care

Yours very truly
Helen Blackburn

I don't see anything to change in the proof, but I will keep it a day or so. I had this extract cut out for you
