My dear Mr. Pike,

It really seems fated that I am not to have the pleasure of dining with you. I have just received a letter which will

compel me to go to London this evening. I am,

however, not the
less obliged to you for your kindness

Philippa will be delighted to dine
and spend the afternoon with your little girls

on Wednesday.

With kind regards

Yours very truly

Henry Fawcett

As he did not dine on Tuesday, I asked him to dine on Monday. —
