

BLACKHEATH PARK.

March 18th 1867

Dear Madam

In acknowledging the honour done me by the Committee I am bound to say that I believe I am indebted ~~to~~ Mrs P. A. Taylor, at whose disposal I had placed the copies of my article, for the use made of them, which I highly approve.

I hope I may be permitted to take this opportunity of saying with how much pleasure I have read

your article in the Contemporary Review.

The illustration you have used of the right of choosing their own champions conceded to ladies in chivalrous times, is especially apt and happy; and the comparison between the political position of women and that of clergymen of the established Church, is another point likely also to be particularly effective.

I am dear Madam,

Yours truly
Helen Taylor
