Dear Miss Latman,

Many thanks for list.

I will let you know my train later on. I shall try and arrive at about 5 on Monday.

Did I tell you that — if you can manage it — I much prefer being lodged with the humbles of sympathisers rather than with luxury providing people who are prejudiced against us - non-understanding.

I find it such an effort to speak at meetings if in between whiles one has had to do battle with one's hosts.

But in some places it though useful to put one to house with anti-<sup>or</sup> <sub>who are nevertheless just willing to put one up</sub> Doubtful people, & if you really want this of course I should be willing.

I always carry about my own flannel sheets; I am a Vegetarian, eat no meat fish or fowl, & only require the simplest of other ordinary foods. The only luxury I care much about is a fire in my room: unless I can warm up at home,
I can't speak.

Did I also warn
you that, most reluctantly, of his

I will be able to come -
I suppose that is all right.
Yours
Sincerely
Constance
Lyttelton

I have to charge the local organisations for my travelling expenses - otherwise I could not possibly undertake these frequent long journeys.

I am so sorry to hear of your bad foot: do hope it will be better soon: please take great care of it - don't use it too soon or all the previous work will be worthless. I am sending the invite cards you enclose to a clergyman friend who lives near Liverpool in case he or a friend
