MOTHERS AND BABIES.

We lend necessitous mothers outfits for their babies, for the first months.

With the money subscribed for finding employment, we are getting baby clothes made, and paying unemployed women for making these things. Those who would give money and materials for making baby clothes would help in one of the best possible ways. Gifts of baby clothes can be made good use of, also nightdresses, quilts, blankets and sheets for the mothers. Even old sheets can be cut up for babies' napkins.

Each baby's outfit should consist of:—

Two night gowns, a woollen shawl, three towels, two sheets and one pair pillowcases.

Nurse Hebbes has prepared us a chart for infant feeding, and this is published as a free leaflet. Mothers who wish to have it can obtain it at any of our centres.

Who will pay to put us in telephonic communication with our factory P

These restaurants form an essential part of our work for nursing and expectant mothers, and are especially helpful to the little children beneath school age, who do not get school meals in this district.

Who will help with gifts of meat, bread, fruit, vegetables and groceries, or with money to buy these, to keep our restaurants going?

The Poplar E.L.F.S. Members are having a sale of work and tea on Saturday, December 5th, at 20 Railway Street, at four p.m. They ask for gifts of cakes to increase the profits for our funds.

FIGHTING STARVATION DOLES

On Tuesday, November 23rd, the following letter from Mr. Warren, the Mayor of Poplar, was received by the Chairmen and Secretaries of the various Ward Committees in the borough—

METROPOLITAN BOROUGH OF POPLAR NATIONAL RELIEF FUND.

LOCAL REPRESENTATIVE COMMITTEE.

The Mayor's Parlour,
 Council Offices, Poplar,
 November 23rd, 1914.

DEAR SIR,—In the letter received from the Government Committee on the Prevention and Relief of Distress, it was stated that the Committee have given consideration to the application made by the Local Representative Committee for the Borough of Poplar for a further grant from the National Relief Fund, and looking to the information before them, the Government Committee express themselves as not satisfied that the conditions of unemployment in the Borough are such as to justify the large disbursements at present being made, and, therefore, they are unable to recommend a grant of the sum applied for, and which was based upon the returns of the several Ward Committees and the Government scale.

I have to inform you that in these circumstances I shall be compelled to revert to the scale I originally observed for relief unless your Committee can reduce the number of applicants by the method of more strictly observing the principle laid down by the Government Committee, viz.: That the National Relief Fund is only available for the relief of distress arising from the war.

The Government Committee again emphatically emphasize the need for ascertaining in each case that the distress is due to this cause alone.

Yours faithfully,

A. H. WARREN (Mayor).

Knowledge of this letter came to the E.L.F.S., and filled us with mingled consternation and disgust.

Up before the various Ward Committees have come case after case of poverty that has been ruthlessly turned away. The mother and daughter who kept a cat's meat shop that does not pay because of the War, have been told that theirs is chronic poverty for cat's meat never pays very well. The man who had an accident and who was dismissed when he returned, perhaps only partly cured, and who was told by his employers that in these hard war times they could not take him back, was told that he had lost his work because of an accident, not through the War. His wife, who lost her work in the first rush of trade depression in August, and has become ill through semi-starving, was left out by the officials at the Town Hall, in spite of the Ward Committees favourable recommendation, presumably because the brushmakers are making soldiers' brushes now. The casually employed are debarred from receiving aid, although their employment has grown more casual. But still the Cabinet Committee remains unsatisfied, and the Mayor has threatened to resurrect his mean old scale of 4s. a week for a woman, 4s. a week for a man, and 1s. a week for a child.

Miss Sylvia Pankhurst at once wrote to Mr. Herbert Samuel, the Chairman of the Cabinet Committee, as follows:—

Dear Sir,

I am informed that the enclosed letter has been sent to the Mayor of Poplar, and as a member of the Local Representative Committee for the Bravely and willingly we bear our share of the World's burdens. Why, then, deny us the right to vote, which would dignify our labour and increase our Power of Service.

YOUR BUSINESS AND MINE.

Dear Friends,—I believe that the Mayor's mean scale of relief will not again be put forward, though there will probably be more stringency and harshness in regard to the enforcing of the rule that the relief given shall not bring up the family income to a maximum of more than 20s. a week. If that rule is enforced, it will clearly show how right we were in protesting against the quiet acceptance of the Government scale of relief by our local Committee, which had adopted a higher scale of its own in the first place.

The Cabinet Committee consider that too much money is being spent in relieving distress. They do not like to see money flowing away without bringing in a result.

We can understand their feeling and we know that countless numbers of those who are receiving the doles of money, (which, though miserably small and mean in themselves, are in the aggregate large and steadily growing larger), agree with us and the Government that the doles are unsatisfactory in the extreme.

Men and women who have worked all their lives, young girls and boys who have but recently reached the age for work—these should prefer to work for their living than to have charity doled out to them—and as a matter of absolute fact, the vast majority of them do prefer work to charity. Not only do they prefer to work, but they are bound to deteriorate if they do not get it. Idleness is bad for any of us, and to be idle without having enough money to make ends meet on, is even more harmful than having too little to do when we have too much to spend.

We need not fear that women who have little children to wash and dress and cook and sew for, as a rule, will ever have a chance to deteriorate in character through not having enough to do. But if most of their clothing and furniture, and cleaning and cooking utensils have been pawned, and they cannot afford enough for food, firing and soap to cook and clean as they should, they too, like the men and childless women and girls and boys out of employment, will find that effective work for them has become impossible, and the day, from being most wonderfully crammed with detailed tasks, has become all too long. What right has anyone to wonder or complain if the women so placed deteriorate? The marvel is that so many of them never lose heart and courage but keep struggling on in spite of everything!

Women with families of little children are doing important productive work when they are employing adequate means to care for these children adequately. There is no danger of money that may be paid to enable them to do this, whether it be by the Prince of Wales's fund or by the nation, being spent without result. But if the money is doled out meanly the results will not be good. Instead of the bonny healthy children we all of us love to see, we shall have, in constantly growing numbers, those poor little wasted babies with their tiny shrivelled limbs, on which the skin hangs loosely, their wrinkled faces and wan dull eyes that seem age-old in pain! Surely there is no sight so sad in all the world!

Before all else the nation's children must be cared for. The nation's money can never be better used than when it is spent on them.

But on the people who can work, charitable doles bringing in no return must not continue. Work must be found for those who can and ought to work.

There is plenty of work to do. Numbers of schools in London have been condemned, and our people are miserably housed and overcrowded. Money spent on building schools for children and houses for the people is money well spent. The work put into such enterprises will be abundantly productive. The erection of schools and houses will provide work for men engaged in a large variety of trades.

Then there is our food supply to be considered. More can be done in the direction of providing against a possible day in which supplies may be brought to our shores so easily as at present.

It is necessary that all the people should be considering these questions—those whose trade has not yet been injured by the war as well as the others.

A number of people in this borough have desired to hold a Town's meeting to discuss this question, and the East London Federation of the Suffragettes has made itself responsible. But applications for the use both of Bow Baths and Poplar Town Hall have been refused.

What is to be done about it? Are the Mayor and the Borough Council to be allowed to gag public opinion and to refuse the people the use of their own halls?

E. SYLVIA PANKHURST.

TO HIM THAT HATH.

Mr. Lloyd George, who was at one time supposed to be so fierce an enemy of the liquor trade, has taken great care to safeguard its interest in the present Budget.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain, whose special mission appears to be to protect "The Trade," has been called into consultation, and though he talked vaguely about not assuming responsibility for the Budget, it is quite obvious that he is very well satisfied, and has got more concessions than he expected. Mr. Lloyd George has begun by stating that the consumers, not the brewers and publicans, are to pay the tax. And here we join issue with him at the commencement, for why should not the brewers and publicans take their share in paying for the war like other people? There is certainly a good average proportion of jingoes in their ranks!

Having stated that the public, not the publicans and brewers, must pay the tax, Mr. Lloyd George has also carefully arranged that the publicans and brewers shall make a profit out of it. A halfpenny a half-pint which the consumer is to pay comes to 22s. 8d. a barrel. Mr. Lloyd George proudly points out that he is only making a tax of 17s. 3d. so there is 5s. 5d. profit for the publican. On the lower gravities of beer the publican will make, Mr. Lloyd Georgesays, "not merely 5s. 5d. but 7s." In addition to this the publican will get a rebate of 2s. a barrel up to the

"THE SONG OF THE SHIRT."

Dear Miss Pankhurst,— I feel I must write to tell you of other Army work sweaters. The first one is a Mr. Denney, 50 Arma Rd., Bow, Brushmaker. He only pays his workers 1s. 4d. a dozen for the same work as Kent's pays 1s. 2d.

As Mr. Lloyd George further pointed out, many brewers and publicans have large stocks in hand on which they are already charging the extra halfpenny a half-pint, although these are exempt from the new duty. (The tea dealers are doing the same with tea.) The publicans will also make even more money out of the tax by selling beer by the glass, because they will add an extra halfpenny though the glass contains less than half-a-pint.

Mr. Lloyd George's excuse for making the concessions is that many men are leaving the country for the War, and that, therefore, the consumption of intoxicants will be reduced; but in reality the concessions have been obtained because the brewers and publicans have a strong and powerful political organisation, and have Mr. Austen Chamberlain at Mr. Lloyd George's elbow to voice their demands all the time.

The interests of the women who are the mothers and wives of the troops, and whose lives will be much more seriously affected than those of either the brewers or the publicans because the men have gone to the War, also need protection, as do the interests of the women employed in clothing and outfitting the troops. But the women have no direct representatives to protect their interests. One result of this, as stated by the Daily Citizen, is that the War Office is proposing to send an order to America for the making of a million soldiers' suits, though we have many thousands of British women out of work.

At the Army Clothing Factory in Pimlico, where women have been notoriously sweated for many years past, only 1,200 women are now working, though during the little Boer War 1,500 women were employed. The names of 250 women are actually on the books at the Pimlico factory waiting for work, and many more would flock to this centre if there was any prospect of more work being obtained.

Very gross cases of sweating by Army contractors and sub-contractors are constantly being unearthed. We call the attention of our readers to the letter at the top of the next column.

The Government should raise the rates of pay at the Army clothing factory in Pimlico, employ as many women there as can be accommodated and open other Government clothing factories to turn out that million suits that it is proposing to send abroad.

E. SYLVIA PANKHURST.

WHAT CAN A PENILESS WOMAN DO?

A poor woman named Francis, aged 35 years, was charged at Lambeth Police-court, on November 20th, with attempting to procure her fourteen-year old daughter for an immoral purpose.

The woman said that she had been forced into this by sheer poverty and the refusal of the Charity Organisation Society, and other Societies, and the Board of Guardians to help.

She added piteously that she had seen that the child came to no harm. She was committed for trial. This woman has a husband, who was not beside her in the dock? In law he is the only legal parent of the child.

Emily Everett, a widow of 68, was charged in the same Court, with knowingly permitting a small two-roomed cottage, which she occupied, to be used for improper purposes. She was ordered to pay a fine of £10 and £3 3s. costs, or to go to prison for two months. On being told that her sister was lying dead, the magistrate gave the old woman time to pay. That means that she will have a short respite to bury her dead before she goes to gaol.

A poverty-stricken old woman is sent to prison for permitting her cottage to be used for prostitution, but successive Governments that have refused to abolish prostitution are allowed to go free from blame, and many Anti-Suffragists have the effrontery to declare that women must not be enfranchised lest they should interfere with this odious trade which is said to be necessary to men.

district and also of the Bow West Ward Sub-Committee, as well as on behalf of my own organisation, The East London Federation of the Suffragettes, I feel that this is a matter which cannot be allowed to pass without protest.

There is very grave and serious distress in this district, and we most emphatically demand that all persons who are suffering through the war shall be given the relief to which they are entitled. The scale of relief on which the Mayor proposes to administer his fund is as follows: 4s. a week for a woman; 4s. a week for a man; 1s. a week for each child. Here is a copy of the memorandum which the Mayor furnished to the almoners.

Questions to be put by officer paying Relief to verify particulars.

- (1). Name.
(2). Address.
(3). Any work since last assisted?
(4). What are your present circumstances?
(5). Are any members of your family at work, if so what are their earnings?
(6). Have you had any parish relief?
(7). Are any children receiving school meals?

On the answers will depend the number of tickets to be given, the maximum being,

- 4s. for a man,
4s. for a woman,
1s. for a child.

In part time worker's cases, the number of tickets to be adjusted to the time out of work.

A. H. WARREN.

You will see that families cannot be supported on such a miserable scale. It is infinitely worse than that of the Poor Law Guardians. It is a national disgrace that such incredible meanness should be allowed!

I am proposing to wait upon you to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock in Whitehall with a number of the women from this district, who will be able to demonstrate to you that the distress which you have denied exists in a very acute form in this district.

I am enclosing a list of the occupations followed by some of the persons who have been relieved by the West Ward Committee on which I sit. The Board of Trade returns will prove to you that there is extensive unemployment in the trades to which these people belong.

Faithfully yours, E. SYLVIA PANKHURST.

The following memorandum was also enclosed.

BOW, WEST WARD. Seventy-five cases in this Ward were relieved last week (Nov. 20th). An analysis of trades is appended.

All the cases relieved were employed before the war, and have fallen out of work since. (Or are employed half time at a wage on which it is impossible to support a family.)

The conditions of employment in Bow are different from those in Poplar. It borders on Bethnal Green and is dependent on the furnishing and ready-made clothes trades to a considerable extent. The cases relieved up to the present do not represent the extent of distress. The casuals who applied at once, and whose distress was chronic rather than special have already been dismissed. The people who are now applying in the Ward, at the rate of 10 to 15 a week, are those who have lived on their savings since they fell out of work, who apply for relief with extreme reluctance, and who are reduced to it solely through the war.

Of these 80 or 90 per cent. have to be recommended for relief. The large firm of paper-stainers, Messrs. Allan Cockshotts, put their men on half time immediately war began, and the men are earning from 11s. to 14s. weekly. The majority are men with large families whose employment has been perfectly secure previously. The Committee in this Ward considered that such men ought to be helped to keep on at their own work until conditions improved.

A deputation of eleven persons, presented itself at the Local Government Board Offices on Wednesday, and was received by Mr. Herbert Samuel and Mr. John Burns.

Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, in introducing the deputation, said that the E.L.F.S., whose representative on the Mayor's Committee she was, and all the members of the deputation felt that it was impossible without hardship and injustice to reduce the number of cases that were being relieved, and that even as it was many members of Ward Committees had suffered great pain because of poor people who had been turned away, because the hardship that they were suffering was not held to be directly due to the War.

The number of cases could not be reduced, and it was impossible without grave injury to the race, to administer the Mayor's scale of 4s. a week for an adult, and 1s. a week for a child.

Mr. Herbert Samuel here interrupted, saying that the Government were in no way responsible for the Mayor's scale, that, on the contrary, they disapproved of it, and had adopted a scale to be applied to the whole country, in order that such low scales might not obtain. But he persisted that the statistics as to unemployment in the Borough of Poplar did not warrant the amount of relief that was being granted—the riverside trade was good.

Miss Pankhurst said the fact that the riverside trade was good did not help the cabinet makers, the french polishers, and the paper-stainers who were employed at the factories in Bow, and amongst whom trade was bad. Even if the men about the docks had been earning more than they had ever done in their lives, that would not help the charwoman or the cabinet maker who was out of work.

Mr. Samuel and Mr. Burns again reiterated that the position of the dockers was most fortunate.

Miss Pankhurst, reinforced by the Rev. Henry Parrott, still held to the point that workers in other trades were suffering through the War.

Miss Pankhurst then called the members of the deputation who had been receiving relief from the Mayor's Committee to state their cases. The first to speak had been working for one firm for 28 years, and lost her employment in the first week of the War. She lived with her mother, who was an Old Age pensioner, and she had received 10s. a week relief from the Mayor's Committee, and there was seven shillings to pay, which left the two women with eight shillings a week for clothes, food and firing. If the Mayor's scale were adopted they would only have 2s. a week when the rent was paid.

A widow, with two children, worked for a middleman in the feather trade. The man who employed her had discontinued business as a result of the War. Under the Mayor's scale she would be getting exactly 6s. a week. A licensed oilman, who for 30 years hired out lamps and the oil and naphtha to burn in them, said that he had £70 worth of lamps, but that the police would not now allow them to be used in the streets.

This man's business is to hire out lamps to the stall holders all over London, but this business has come to an end. He has £70 worth of stock lying idle. His usual busy season is of course in these dark winter-months. From mid-September to the second week in March he usually earns about 55s. a week. In Christmas week he earns altogether about £5 and sells 1,300 gallons of oil. In the eight summer months he naturally earns less, generally no more than about 28s. a week in June.

But for the last eight weeks he has not earned a penny. He has seven children. One of them a boy of 20 has a tubercular ankle, had several operations and cannot work. The man himself is delicate and not able to do the heavy labouring work which is all that distress committees have to offer. He said that he hates accepting food tickets he wants work that he can do. Mr. Burns said that he liked his spirit, but when he heard that the oilman had had 20s. in food tickets from the mayor's committees he said he supposed that if the other cases had been relieved on the same scale they would consider themselves fortunate.

Mr. Parrott said that this was a very bad case, and that it had been difficult to get the man to accept food tickets. He had always worked and he wanted the opportunity to do so.

A widow who was employed at a pickle factory at Victoria Park began working short time when war broke out, and this week had done no work at all. A mother of five children and a mother of seven children, both of whose husbands worked at Allan Cockshotts, and were on short time also spoke.

Mr. Parrott added that the members of the Ward Committee went very carefully into all the cases and took pains to see that all those who were helped out of the Prince of Wales's fund were really suffering through the war.

Miss E. D. Sharp, the Secretary of the West Ward Committee, corroborated this. She said that out of 200 people who had registered, only 75 were being relieved. When she received the Mayor's letter she had gone through all the cases on her books, and it had seemed to her that all were equally entitled to relief, and that there could be no reduction of the list without injustice, the only thing to do would be to draw their names out of a hat.

Mr. Burns said that both he and the President of the Local Government Board were agreed that the Mayor's scale would not do, but £12,000 had been spent in relief in Poplar since the Committee got to work, and that was too much.

"Since you were here before, Miss Pankhurst," he said, "things have improved in Poplar." He said that the number of persons registering at the Labour Exchanges week by week had decreased, and that pauperism had also decreased. He assured Miss Pankhurst that much had been done as a result of what she had said on a previous deputation. She looked perhaps a little dubious at this. He said that a workroom had been opened by the Central (Unemployed) Body in Bow, and a Queen Mary Workroom in Poplar.

He asked what Miss Pankhurst would suggest should be done. She said "find more work for the unemployed." Give adequate allowances to the women, young children, and to others who cannot work. She pointed out that only 14 1/2 per cent. of the men who applied for work received it, and only 10 per cent. of the women.

Mr. Burns said he would see what could be done. The case was not so bad as he had feared it might be. He thought the deputation was frightened rather than hurt. An Inspector would be sent down to talk to the Mayor and see what arrangements could be made. We learn that for this work at any rate the Mayor's mean scale has been kept at bay.

OUR BRIGHTON MEETING.

On Friday, November 20th, the E.L.F.S. extended its activities by holding a public meeting in Brighton, which aroused a great deal of interest. The banquetting hall of the Royal Pavilion was filled to its utmost capacity, and Miss Pankhurst and Mrs. Drake's speeches were punctuated with applause. Mrs. Bouvier was in the chair. The resolution, "that this meeting is sensible of the growing urgency of women's need for a share of political power in view of the national crisis, and demands that the women of the country shall be enfranchised forthwith, in order that they may share as far as possible in averting the horrors of war," was carried unanimously. This first meeting outside London has proved a financial as well as a propaganda success. Thanks are due to Miss Bouvier for contributing several songs, and to all Brighton and Worthing and London friends who helped to work up the meeting, but above all to Miss Turner with whom the idea of the meeting originated, and who provided hospitality for speakers and helped to organise the meeting. New members and subscribers to the DREADNOUGHT were obtained.

Mrs. Lamartine Yates and other Wimbledon Suffragettes some time ago followed the E.L.F.S. in opening feeding centres. They serve 200 pints of soup a day in Wimbledon and the Local Mayor's Committee have recently asked them to extend their work by opening a second centre in Merton High Street. This centre will be subsidised by the Prince of Wales's fund through the Local Mayor's Committee. We are glad to say that our Wimbledon friends pay women on the same scale as ourselves, i.e., 5d. an hour or £1 a week.
