Dear Mrs Roberts

Some things I am sure brought - your letter to me at this moment.
This afternoon I have been engaged in talking over this controversy with many of the sisters in this community who was an Oxford graduate and also the latter Superior.

In fact I have promised to send my notes to the Mother on Monday for return to London for a few weeks tomorrow.

I should very much like to see you and could quite easily do so if it happens anytime next week. Will you let me know what day and time you are disengaged to my home address 46 Hurlingham Court London S.W.

In these months you best way I went to work one year and in some ways missed what was passing in the papers but a friend sent me some of the first letters which appeared in the Press on women preaching and since I came here I have heard of Sittelstein Reley's letter. I will be with the times

Today.

There are some to be wild things said for which many of us will be sorry. We can only ask guidance to help establish what is best and best.

When I see you I shall be better able to tell you what I shall be doing in December.

With kindest regards - I have had you so many times on my mind, so much so and kept your address in India meaning to do so but did not.

Yours very sincerely
J. B. Allen
