GREAT DEMONSTRATION In VICTORIA PARK at 5 p.m.

This will be the Third Anniversary of Women's May Day in East London, which was first held in 1913.

In the midst of War it is more than ever necessary that working women should demonstrate their solidarity and determination in the struggle for political and economic emancipation. It is more than ever necessary that working men should stand by their sisters in the Labour World. The Resolution that will be moved at the Demonstration is as follows:—

1. THAT this Mass Meeting assembled in Victoria Park sends greetings to our Sisters who are striving for political and social emancipation in other lands, and declares its conviction that our first, most permanent and most urgent duty is to the great struggle for human development and human freedom that continues through all time.
2. THAT this Meeting further demands that where women are called on for War Service they shall receive the same pay, whether for piece or time rates, as the men whom they replace, and further insists that the principle of equal pay for equal work shall be established throughout the entire field of industry.
3. THAT in order that women may take their share with dignity and effect in solving the problems that confront the nation, both in war and peace, and in building up a better and freer life for the children of the future, the Parliamentary vote shall be extended to every adult woman.

KENT'S BRUSHMAKERS AGAIN.

There has been another strike at Kent's brush factory. The firm offered soldiers' button brushes to one out-worker at 5s. 6d. a gross. This worker is especially quick, but in 12 hours hard work she found she could only make 1s. 6d., though on other work she had been doing, she earned 3s.

Indoor workers who have only been making from 9s. to 13s. a week, when working from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., at soldiers' hair brushes, realised that they could not exist at the rates paid for these button brushes.

The button brushes were offered to one worker in the factory. She refused them and a number of others came out on strike with her.

WAR BABIES.

We understand that the mothers of "War Babies" whose fathers are placed under orders for service beyond the seas, cannot bring actions for affiliation and so secure even the paltry maintenance orders for their children which are usually allowed.

Surely this state of the law should be remedied forthwith, unless the War Office is going to shoulder responsibility for the child's keep in its father's stead.

ARE FRENCH WOMEN WORKERS TO BE IMPORTED?

The Times announces that "hundreds of girls from France will arrive shortly for War munitions work."

Many thousands of women of this country have registered for War Service, but a small proportion of whom have found employment, and already, before the War Service Register was started, 50,000 women were unemployed. What reason is there to import French women when so many of our own countrywomen are needing work? Is it to make sure that there shall continue to be a great superfluity of women's labour, in order that wages may be kept down? Is it to secure a compact body of foreign workers, who, because of their isolated position and lack of knowledge of the language, will be less likely than natives to act in combination to protect the position of the workers as a whole?

This is a question of vital importance to British women workers.

I wish to become a member of the EAST LONDON FEDERATION OF THE SUFFRAGETTES.

Bravely and willingly we bear our share of the World's burdens. Why, then, deny us the right to vote, which would dignify our labour and increase our Power of Service.

WAR PROFITS.

Before the making of the Treasury Agreement between Mr. Lloyd George and the workers Lord Kitchener said: "We hope that workmen who do work regularly by keeping good time shall reap some of the benefits that war automatically confers on these great companies."

The words have been taken to mean that the services of the workpeople are to be recognised by some money grant from the extra war profits that the armament firms are making, but in response to questions put to him in the House of Commons on May 12th, Mr. Runciman disposed of this two-month-old belief. He said that Lord Kitchener had not given a pledge to do anything of the kind, and had "chosen his language with great care, so that he should not be in a position of declaring either to workmen or to employers that he believed that profit-sharing would be one of the solutions of whatever difficulties might have arisen."

This sort of careful juggling with words, to produce an effect without being inextricably bound by it, is hardly what one expects from a man whose profession is fighting, though it is unfortunately the sort of thing that we have learnt to expect from Cabinet Ministers. We do not think Lord Kitchener can be feeling grateful to Mr. Runciman for the explanation he has given. We imagine that no one will be able to take seriously Mr. Runciman's further explanation of Lord Kitchener's words that they "were not unconnected" with the issue of medals to be granted on the successful termination of the War.

Most people will agree that persons in authority ought to be careful not to produce an impression of making promises which they do not mean to fulfil. But many will say that the workpeople are being paid the standard rate of wages with additions for overtime, and should not expect any further recompense for doing their duty, especially when workers, who are poorer than they, are obliged to help in paying for the War.

There is a good deal to be said for this contention, but let us remember that after the war is over large numbers of the munition workers will be thrown out of employment or put on short time. Often with health impaired by the strain of the present over long hours of work, they will be thrown out to find work where they can, and reduced to absolute destitution, whilst the great armament firms will have amassed great sums of money to hand on to their children's children.

Even at the present time the lives of the workers in the munition factories are hard and toilsome. The women earn but paltry wages although some of them have been worked, as by Messrs. Greenwood & Batley of Leeds, 25 and 33 hours.

Mr. Charles Duncan, M.P. in the House of Commons on May 10th, gave the following graphic picture of the munition worker's life.

"All the beds are on double shift, and the men, most of them, get no kind of social intercourse, as we understand that word! Just imagine for a moment what takes place. Thousands of men are drafted into these places. Many of them have two homes now; they have to leave home to go to another; they have to endeavour to make homes in strange places. These men are living in quarters where, as I have said, the beds are on double shift. The people with whom they lodge can give them no convenience at all, because as soon as they rise from their beds, instead of staying in the house, they have to get away in order to enable the people to keep the house tidy and clean."

As for the profits of the armament firms, Mr. Runciman tells us that they are to be limited, but he refuses to say to what extent. We have no confidence in secret arrangements that are made between the Government and the great financial interests that are revealed, or partially revealed, to the public only after the bargain is complete. It is to provide these excessive war profits, that are to be somewhat limited, that we are presently finding ourselves crippled by taxation.

Certain people to-day are asking for a "Business Government," the big businesses are controlling the Government to-day. Mr. Lloyd George's withdrawal of his liquor taxes, and his whole conduct of the problems arising out of the war has shown us that he is bound hand and foot by the business interests. Even the last remnant of his temperance schemes, the proposal to prevent the sale of immature spirits, he was only able to carry by promising to pay compensation to a number of firms, and the compensation will undoubtedly be huge. Whilst the big firms successfully demand compensation the workers, even those whom they have employed, are held to have no claim. Mr. Lloyd George himself referred to the case of the hundreds of fisherman of the trawlers on the East Coast of Scotland who are thrown out of work and must starve or subsist on the meagreest of charity, though the owners of the trawlers have been compensated.

Mr. Lloyd George uttered a mild protest, but he and his Government are actually arranging this state of things.

Injustices of this kind have gone on unchecked for generations, but they have grown more glaring since the war. The Government and the business interests appear to think that they may go on, heaping increasing burdens upon the majority of the people with absolute impunity. But they may soon find that they are wrong.

Much has been heard of the "anti-German riots, but those who were on the scene of action know that in some districts at any rate, those riots were partly food riots, because many of the women who took bread and meat, did so, not from hatred of the Germans, but because, owing to rising prices, they have not been able to buy the minimum quantity that they must have for their children's food.

If prices continue to rise as they are doing, it is certain that food riots will come eventually, and the happenings of last week have shown us how rapidly they will be to quell.

ELECTORAL CHANGES.

On May 17th, Mr. Harcourt, Secretary of State for the Colonies, introduced a Bill "to amend the original Constitution of Canada, and to provide for the addition of nine Members to the Senate." The reason given for the Bill was "the greater development of industry and population and settlement in the Western provinces since the North American Act was passed 48 years ago."

The Bill was speedily passed through all its stages as a non-controversial measure so that it might become law before the Whit-suntide recess.

When shall we see Votes for Women made law in the same way? It could be justified on the same grounds, and it is of infinitely greater urgency.

A Government that appeals to women to organise for War Service should gladly introduce such a measure, and the whole Parliament should assent with enthusiasm.

SOLDIERS AND THE PARLIAMENTARY FRANCHISE.

Mr. Harcourt gave the following information in the House of Commons: "A New Zealand Act provides that every member of an Expeditionary force sent from New Zealand to serve in the present war shall be entitled to vote at the next General Election."

"A Canadian Act provides that every male British subject of 21 years and upwards, serving in the military forces in Canada in the present war, who, within six months before enlistment had been resident in an electoral district of Canada for 30 days, shall be entitled to vote.

"A Queensland Act has been passed to enable a voter serving with the forces to nominate a person to exercise his right of voting on his behalf."

As already stated in the WOMAN'S DREADNOUGHT, ballot boxes are being sent to the front for the use of the Canadian troops.

Several times during the Session the Prime Minister has been invited to give votes to every soldier and sailor, irrespective of other qualification.

On May 11th Mr. Asquith said:—"The whole question of franchise and registration is receiving careful and detailed consideration, and I hope shortly to be in a position to make a statement with regard to it."

No alteration of the franchise can be secured that does not include a settlement of the women's claim. We believe that even Mr. Asquith realises this.

Jane Addams of America, Dr. Aletta Jacobs of Holland and Signora Genoni of Italy, were appointed envoys by the Women's International Congress at the Hague. In this capacity they interviewed the Prime Minister and Sir Edward Grey and left with them copies of the resolutions passed by the Congress.

We do not delude ourselves with the idea that war can ever be made humane, but it is with deep regret that we learn that the use of poisonous gas has spread from the German to the English and French Armies.

In the House of Commons, on April 29th, Mr. Acland stated, on behalf of the Local Government Board, that no steps would be taken to reduce existing old age pensions in respect of increases of income due to the receipt of separation allowance.

PRICES AND PROFITS.

The following official announcement was made by the Board of Trade on Monday:—

As the result of conferences at the Board of Trade, the principal London coal merchants have now arranged with Mr. Runciman for a limitation of the profits to be made by them from the sale of household coal during the summer months. It is anticipated that the arrangement will be carried into the winter.

We hope that the amount of the profits agreed on will be made public. The limitation of profits is a step in the right direction, but we fear that the Board of Trade and the coal merchants cannot be trusted to use a sufficiently drastic hand in their limitations. What is needed for fixing profits is a Committee composed in one-third of working women house-keepers, in one-third of workers in the trades affected, and in one-third of manufacturers and dealers.

We would point out that limitation of coal profits should include the profits of the mine-owner as well as of the merchant.

In the House of Commons, on May 12th, Mr. Will Thorne stated that the working classes of this country are being exploited to the extent of £700,000 a week, in consequence of the high price of flour and bread, whilst the increase of wages is only £72,000 a week!

Mr. W. C. Anderson pointed out that the price of bread was still rising, and asked the Prime Minister whether he still anticipated "a substantial fall of prices in June," and whether the Government would reconsider its policy of inaction.

Mr. Asquith replied: "I doubt whether there is any adequate reason for altering the policy hitherto adopted," and added "it is premature at the moment to attempt a definite forecast of the course of prices in June."

Mr. Snowden asked how it could be considered premature to speak about prices of food in June now, if it was not premature when Mr. Asquith did so some time ago.

Mr. Asquith answered flippantly: "Because of the difference between four months and one month."

Reading such replies given by Members of the Government to questions on the most vital matter of the people's food, supply reminds us of nothing so much as the questions and answers in "Alice Through the Looking Glass."

Mr. Hudson stated that in one warehouse, in Newcastle-on-Tyne, 1,700 tons of green bacon and lard, which had been seized by a British warship, were rapidly going bad.

The following prices are from the Statist:—

	1905-14	1914	1915
Average, 1905-14	70	92	53
June, 1914	66.5	97.5	51.8
December	93.2	104.3	63
March, 1915	108.6	123.7	69.7
April	109	125	71.9

Percent. Percent. Percent. Rise since June, 1914. 53.9 28.2 38.8

Compared with June, April prices of 45 articles, including minerals, textiles, etc., show a rise in the index number from 81.2 to 105.8, or over 30 per cent., and it is necessary to go back to 1873 to find prices comparable with those now ruling.

PREPARING TO MAKE THE CHILDREN WORK.

The Lancashire Education Committee on May 18th, adopted a scheme for allowing school children of 12 years and upwards to be employed on farms for six weeks at a time, and for extending and altering the school holidays in order that they might cover the harvest period.

An amendment stipulating that absence from school should not be allowed for more than six weeks at a time and for more than one period of six weeks, was defeated.

GIVE THIS PAPER TO A FRIEND.

SHIPOWNERS' PROFITS.

The Clyde Armaments committee, representing workers and employers, has decided that work people who are bad time keepers shall be fined for the first offence £1, for the second £2, for the third £3 with immediate dismissal.

What punishment should be meted out to those who impair the national efficiency by gambling in the people's food?

When we ask that food prices shall be kept down, we are told that "all must make sacrifices when the nation is at war." But what happens where powerful interests are concerned? Mr. Robert Williams, secretary of the National Transport Workers' Federation, gives the following particulars. The Government has taken over certain ships and a committee was appointed by the Government to decide what compensation should be paid to the shipowners. Shipowners are strongly represented on the committee which is presided over by Lord Inchcape, head of the P. and O. Shipping Co. The committee decided that the owners of tramp steamers taken over by the Government, should be paid 9s. 6d. per ton gross register for the first month, 9s. for the second month and 8s. 6d. a month afterwards.

This was the agreement, but after two months a demand was made and agreed to by the Government that the rates, instead of being lowered to 8s. 6d., should be raised to 11s. per ton a month, on the ground that shipowners' whose vessels had not been taken over were making more money.

The Syren and Shipping, in arguing that shipowners have lost by allowing the Government to use their ships, gives figures to prove that private shippers are making profits of 100 per cent.

Here is a reason why our food is dear—but "we must all make sacrifices for the war!"

WOMEN MUNITION MAKERS GET HALF MEN'S PAY.

The Labour Leader Special Commissioner, who is making careful inquiries into conditions in the armament factories, reports that the women and girls work alternately seven and a half days and six and a half days.

On the day shift the women get out for their mid-day meal, on the night shift they do not leave the workroom. They are paid on the average 14s. to 16s. a week, with overtime and bonus. Their gross earnings are half those of men.

Exactly what we predicted is happening. Employers are engaging women to work not on piece rates, but on time rates, because of which equal pay for equal work on time rates is not demanded by the Board of Trade.

WOMEN AND AGRICULTURE.

At a meeting of the West Riding County Council at Wakefield, it was reported that women who were being employed to replace men on the farms of the district were paid 6s. to 9s. when living in, and 12s. to 15s. when they lived outside.

Mr. Ben. Turner, the Labour Mayor of Batley, protested against these wages. Major Dent said that they had been suggested by the Labour Exchanges—not by the farmers.

Mr. Herbert Smith said that some women were paid no more than 1s. 3d. a day.

Is this what the Board of Trade's Grand Scheme of War Service for Women is coming to?

We must demand with renewed vigour that women shall receive the same pay as the men whom they replace, whether on time rates or piece rates, and that no adult woman, however unskilled, shall be paid less than 5d. an hour, or £1 a week.

Neville Tankerville Chamberlayne, a company director, of 14 Gloucester Terrace, Kensington, was ordered at West London Police Court to pay 5s. a week to the support of his illegitimate child.

In Norway, where women vote, the law would compel such a man to bring up the child in accordance with his income and social position.

EXCESSIVE HOURS.

We recently reported that a prosecution had been brought against Messrs. Greenwood and Batley, armament makers of Leeds, for working women and girl employees for periods of 25 and 30 hours.

One of the girls concerned was 16 years of age. She worked from 6 a.m. on Friday till 7.30 a.m. Saturday. Then she had an accident. She had only had two hours' rest for meals on the Friday, and half an hour for breakfast on the Saturday. Other workers who began at 6 a.m. Friday went on till noon on Saturday.

It will be remembered that Mr. Horace Marshall, the stipendiary magistrate, sided with the employers, and adjourned the case sine die, saying "the most important thing in the world to-day is that ammunition shall be made."

On May 12th the case was again heard. Mr. Shepherd, who appeared for the Home Office, said that the prosecution was approved by the War Office, for long experience had confirmed it in its view that the extension of working hours did not produce good results. The War Office would not tolerate for a moment at Woolwich the working conditions complained of in this case.

Mr. Horace Marshall refused to convict, and dismissed the case under the Probation Act, making no order as to costs.

AWFUL CONDITIONS IN IRELAND.

Five years ago Dr. Baillie, the Belfast Medical Officer of Health, reported serious sweating of women in the Belfast linen trade. His statements were repudiated with indignation, but a Government enquiry proved them to be true. Mr. Galway, the General Secretary of the Textile Operatives' Society of Ireland, now writes to the Freeman's Journal to say that the rates of pay current when Dr. Baillie made his report have been gravely reduced.

Thread-clipping of machine embroidered cushion covers, of which a dozen take half an hour to do, were paid at 3d. a dozen, but now the rate has been reduced to 1d. a dozen, which means that the workers are only paid 3d. an hour!

Side-board cloths, of which a dozen can be done in two hours, used to be paid for at 2d. a dozen, but the rate has gone down to 1d. a dozen—a 1d. an hour!

Tea-cloths that take four hours to do are paid at 3d. instead of 6d. a dozen.

Thus, instead of these workers receiving a war bonus, to meet the increased cost of living, their wretched earnings are reduced.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Ginnell called attention to the fact that poor Irish labourers entitled to sick benefit are sometimes unable to get it, because they are unable to travel to a distant certifier, and that poor men's wives are unable to obtain maternity benefit, although certified by nurses to be greatly in need of nourishment, because they are unable to pay the nurse's fee, pending the receipt of benefit.

In the House of Commons on May 17th, Mr. Radford asked that the Government would make it a punishable offence to sell short weight or measure in retail goods. Mr. Runciman answered that it was not convenient to alter the law in this direction, but that the Board of Trade was asking local authorities to protect purchasers against short weight in bread.

Mr. Robertson, for the Board of Trade, stated in the House of Commons that the increased wages secured by agricultural labourers during the past eight months are as follows:—In eight counties, 4s. a week; in 24 counties, 3s. a week; in 19 counties, 2s. a week. In Ireland, the increases do not exceed 1s. or 2s. a week. In Scotland, some farm servants have got increases of £4 the half year.

Mr. Robertson, for the Board of Trade, stated in the House of Commons that out of 47,000 women, who had registered for War Service, only 440 had been placed in employment!

THE BELGIAN IDEA IN CO-OPERATION.

From the Stratford Co-operative Magazine. It is the quality of resourcefulness which has made the Belgians prominent in the co-operative movement. Co-operation is only 30 years old in Belgium, but in no country has the movement gone deeper. Possibly every country has some special lessons in organisation to offer the rest of us. Belgium undoubtedly has more than one.

It was in Ghent, where the "Vooruit" co-operative bakery was organised in the early 80's, that the "Belgian idea" in co-operation originated. The Rochdale system had been tried previously and had failed. Then came Edouard Anseele, the son of a poor shoemaker, and proposed a new system as supplementary to the Rochdale system. It was that the profits of the society, instead of being returned to the purchasing members as cash dividends on purchases, should be devoted to a fund for the promotion of social activities among the members.

"Give the people help when they are in need and pleasures when they are prosperous" was Anseele's philosophy. It has worked miracles in Belgium. "It is not enough," he said on another occasion, "to hold our people by their stomachs. It is also necessary to hold them by their hearts."

The beginning of this system was the establishment of a sick benefit fund. Its peculiarity lay in that the benefits were not in cash. The man of the family would become ill and then would follow a period of trouble.

This was the time in which the credit offered by the small storekeepers would usually be taken advantage of. The "Vooruit," however, would continue making its usual daily delivery of bread, and demand no payment of any kind. Then a physician would call, give a prescription, asking no fee, and medical supplies would be sent in free of charge. Nor could there be any suggestion of charity, for the member would be made to realise that the expense was met from the surplus which he himself had created with his purchases.

Very early in its career the "Vooruit" met the opposition of the Catholic Church. That was really the first obstacle that Anseele and his associates came up against. Not that the Church was opposed to co-operative baking in itself, for soon the parish priests were organising baking societies themselves, under their own control, to oppose the "Vooruit." But they were bitterly opposed to the principle that the people themselves should control their own sources of supply.

"The priests have learned co-operation from us," said Anseele, when the Catholic baking societies began to appear; "it is our turn to learn from them. Without the women our bakery can never prosper. We, too, must give them music."

Shortly after "Ons Huis" (Our House) was opened by the "Vooruit," the first of these social centres famous in Belgium under the name "Maison du Peuple."

From then on, the membership of the "Vooruit" expanded rapidly. All over Belgium similar methods were initiated by the co-operative societies. In Jolimon, "Le Progres" made a similar appeal to the coal miners, and there the gin mills were an even more powerful enemy than the priests. But the society won out: it put the gin mills out of business by establishing a brewery where beer, served in a garden attached to the clubhouse, was so good and cheap that the miners all became co-operators: practically all the population now belongs to the society. To-day there are 205 such societies, covering all the industrial centres of Belgium, all patterned after Anseele's "Vooruit."

The commercial success of the co-operative enterprises in Belgium is their least remarkable feature. They have not had the time to develop such gigantic enterprises as in Great Britain, especially in the field of production. But to-day the "Vooruit" employs nearly 100 bakers, working under model conditions, turning out 110,000 loaves of bread a week. Beside the two bakeries, the society owns and controls one big department store, 21 groceries, five clothing and six shoe stores, a coal depot, a chain of drug stores, a large brewery and one of the biggest printing establishments in Belgium, all netting a yearly profit of over £62,000. In Brussels, a larger city, the figures are even more impressive.

Ten years ago the "Vooruit" acquired the present big Maison du Peuple in Ghent, of which the modest little Ons Huis is now only a branch. The mural decorations were executed by Jules Van Diesbroeck, the famous Flemish painter and sculptor, whose studio occupies part of the top floor. There he continues his work, subsidised by the members of the "Vooruit," to create a new art which shall typify the struggles of the masses toward economic emancipation. One of his marvellous groups, "Vers L'Emancipation," has gained him an international reputation.

In this new clubhouse, costing £40,000, the members and their families spend their evenings dancing, enjoying moving pictures or gathered about a table in the cafe talking and listening to music. Or if they feel more seriously inclined, they may climb the staircase and listen to lectures, debates, concert recitals or read in the big library. Or they may go to the theatre; they are sure to like the play, because at a previous performance they have participated in an election of the season's schedule and the actors. Every recreation that a normal human being may demand may be had here, for all is under the democratic control of the people themselves.

Another feature of this social programme is the walking club. Its routes are so mapped out that each evening will find the tramping members in some co-operative centre, where there is a local society. After the evening's entertainment, each tourist finds a night's lodgings with the family of a local member. When the march is resumed in the morning, the number of the tourists has been increased.

Then there are special bureaus in the various centres which arrange for a systematic exchange of children between families in the various parts of the country. In the summer, the city children are out in the country and in the winter the country children come into the towns to attend school. This system is extended to other countries, so that the children may learn foreign languages and broaden their mental horizons.

These are only a few of the enterprises of a similar nature which constitute the "Belgian idea" in co-operation. In this peculiar way of spreading propaganda, or rather of planting an idea in the hearts of the people, the co-operators of Belgium have gone far beyond the Church. It has proved a success.

BRITISH v. GERMAN WIVES.

British women married to Germans are worse off than German wives of German husbands, for the German Government makes an allowance of 10s. a week to German wives and 3s. to each child. The British Government gives 8s. for the British born wife (10s. within the London area) and 1s. 6d. a week for each child. As a matter of fact the German wives get a better allowance from their Government than Distress Committees and Boards of Guardians make to the English poor.

Where the husband is not interned, German families are in great distress. It is said that only 1 per cent. of the men have work.

On May 17th, Mr. McKenna stated in the House of Commons that 237 persons had been injured in the anti-German riots, that compensation claims are being received under the Riot (Damages) Act, and that the local police are referring all claimants to the Receiver of the Police.

On May 12th, in the House of Commons, Mr. Arthur Henderson drew attention to the fact that where soldiers and their families have been stationed in India, and the soldier is being brought from India to serve with the Expeditionary force, the wife and children making their residence in London, the special London rent allowance of 8s. 6d. is refused.

DISTRICT REPORTS.

IMPORTANT.

Decorated Carts, in which little children, and people who are not strong enough to walk, may ride, will head the Women's May Day Procession on May 30th. Tickets for these conveyances will be:—2d. for children under school age; 6d. for grown-up people. Tickets must be bought in advance.

The Cart for Poplar and Canning Town members and children will start from 20 Railway Street, Poplar, at 2 o'clock, and friends may ride in it to Beckton Road, Canning Town, in order that they may be with the Procession from the start, at 3 p.m. The Bow Cart will leave 400 Old Ford Road, Bow, at 2.30, in order to get to the East India Dock Gates, Poplar, at 3.30 o'clock, and come with the Procession into the Park.

BOW.

400 OLD FORD ROAD, BOW.
There was a good attendance at the Women's Hall, at the Tuesday afternoon meeting, and a large and interested crowd listened to our speakers in Victoria Park on Sunday. A good collection was taken and the Woman's Dreadnought found a ready sale. Thanks to members who helped in various ways at the Caxton Hall Exhibition, and particularly to the energetic collectors for the "Milk for Babies" Fund. Members and friends please concentrate now on the Women's May Day Demonstration in Victoria Park, on Sunday, May 30th. Volunteers are needed—

- (1) To go out in the decorated cart on Saturday, May 2nd, starting at 4 p.m. sharp from 400 Old Ford Road.
- (2) To go out in a boat on the lake in Victoria Park with posters and tri-colours on Whit-Sunday and on Saturday, May 29th, at 3 p.m.
- (3) To chalk.
- (4) To distribute bills.
- (5) To carry banners in the procession. Send in your names without delay to 400 Old Ford Road.

POPLAR.

THE WOMEN'S HALL, 20 RAILWAY ST.
Organiser: MRS. DRAKE.
Owing to the Caxton Hall Exhibition our usual meetings on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday were not held. On Friday afternoon Mrs. Bouvier was the speaker. The Sunday evening meeting, at which Miss S. Pankhurst, Mrs. Walker and Mr. Petroff were the speakers, was well attended. Madame Godfrey recited.

I would like to draw the attention of our members to the chief point raised by the speakers:—That we must keep our flag flying, now more than ever. People do not seem to know which way to think, and it must be our business to show them the humane way of thinking and acting. Everything that is happening nowadays shows the urgent need of votes for women, and we must never stop fighting. The subscriptions for April amounted to 14s. Shall be pleased to receive those for May. We were late last month owing to Self-Denial Week and the Exhibition, but must make up for lost time this month. Some of our members have not yet returned Self-Denial boxes. Please will you do so? We need more distributors of the paper so try to spare time to come along and do your share.

Dreadnoughts sold: week ending May 15th—142. Self-Denial: Mrs. Bertram 45, 7d., Miss Lagsding 3s., Mrs. Schlette 4d. Collections—Mrs. Bird 12s. 1d., Mrs. Drake 4s.

As a result of arbitration between the Newcastle Tramways Committee and representatives of the Tramway employees, it was agreed that women workers should be paid at the rate of 6d. an hour.

HACKNEY.

Offices: 175 DALSTON LANE
(Facing Hackney Downs Station).
Papers can be obtained at this address at any time.
Thanks to Miss Lynch, who spoke last Tuesday afternoon.

We are looking forward to a crowded meeting on Thursday, at Old Gravel Pit Hall, when we hope to make many new members.

A letter from a Hackney member was published in the last issue of the Dreadnought. Will others follow this example? Don't forget Victoria Park Demonstration on Sunday, May 30th. Sellers and collectors will be needed. Please give in your names at once, as we want Hackney to be well represented.

Hackney members are invited to Bow Club on Monday and Friday evenings, from 7 till 10 p.m.; also to the Sunday meeting held at 400 Old Ford Road, at 8 p.m. Take train from Hackney to Old Ford.
Papers sold, 21; distributed, 100.

SOUTH-EAST LONDON E.L.F.S.

Hon. Secretary: Miss BALCHIN,
39 Radnor Street, Peckham.

All enjoyed the fine address on "Women's Suffrage and Physical Culture," delivered by Mr. E. J. Woollams-Seacey of the "Health and Vim" Association of Honour, on May 12th. Members are reminded that Mr. Booth is coming again on the 26th. Help is urgently needed at open-air meeting on Thursday nights at Avondale Square, which we are hoping to hold every week through the summer. It is rather difficult for one person to sell papers, distribute leaflets and bills, and chair as well, so please friends come along and help.

OTHER SOCIETIES.

NORTH LONDON M.P.U.
Hon. Sec.: MR. H. G. EVERETT.
c/o Mr. Innes, 21 Balmees Road, Southgate Road.
Good meeting held Finsbury Park. Sunday meeting as usual next Sunday, 3 p.m.; speaker, Rev. Willis.
All members asked to attend Victoria Park Demonstration on Sunday, May 30th, at which our Society will have a platform.

What will YOU DO to make the WOMEN'S MAY DAY Demonstration a success?

Will you distribute Handbills?

Put up a Poster, or pay for a Poster?

Chalk the time and place of the Procession on your own account or with a party of others?

Write, or come to say what you will do to 400 Old Ford Road, Bow; 20 Railway Street, Poplar; or 55 Fife Road, Canning Town.

A Decorated Cart will drive round to advertise the Demonstration on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, this week and next.

After the VICTORIA PARK DEMONSTRATION, Tea will be provided at the Women's Hall, 400 Old Ford Road, Bow, at popular prices. ALL ARE WELCOME.

"ANYBODY WHO IS A LADY."

We are astonished to learn that when trying a case of assault on a little girl of 13 years of age at Manchester Assizes, Mr. Justice Sankey said: "I see that there are a number of ladies in the public gallery. This is a very unpleasant and disagreeable case and I should have thought anybody who is a lady would have promptly left the Court."

Nowadays women realize that it is a duty to be present when cases affecting little girls are being tried. The pity is that such matters should be left to the decision of men alone and especially men like Justice Sankey who deserves a severe reprimand for his grossly impertinent and ignorant remark.

The Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Agriculture, on May 18th admitted that Messrs. Ross T. Smyth & Co. were employed to buy wheat on the Government's behalf. No information is given as to how much wheat was bought, for what purpose it was intended, or why buying ceased.

We only know that the price of bread has continued rising.

Miss Sylvia Pankhurst wishes to thank the branches of the E.L.F.S. for their kind remembrance of her birthday, the 5th of May. Bow gave her a most useful clock; Poplar, a beautiful vase of flowers; Canning Town, a bouquet of flowers in the colours, and a charming table-centre.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

The London Local Pension Committee has urged the Government to increase the old age pension by 1s. a week, but the Government has again refused. Mr. Lloyd George admitted, in reply to a question by Mr. Will Thorne in the House the other day, that the purchasing power of the pension has been reduced by 30 per cent. In 1912, seven old age pensioners were certified as having died from starvation, and eight in 1913.

In the House of Commons, on April 27th, Sir Frederick Banbury stated that the food allowance for British prisoners in some of the German internment camps is 6d. a day. "Sixpence a day, or 3s. 6d. a week, is not a very large allowance to keep a man on," he complained. We would point out to him that many poor people in this country get less. Old age pensioners, when they have paid for rent, coal, and light, etc., certainly have not got 3s. 6d. left over for food.

In Glasgow the landlords are putting up the rents, and charitable funds are being raised to pay them! The landlords should feel such charity degrading and destructive of their self respect. The matter was raised in the House of Commons, but McKenna refused to act.

Recent articles in the Manchester Guardian and other papers throw light upon the fact that the English firms of Vickers and Armstrongs are largely concerned in the manufacture of Italian and Japanese armaments.

Lord George Hamilton states that 1,000 soldiers a month are being disabled in the war.

DISABLED BY TRAINING.

An Abercynon Reservist re-joined the 5th Welsh Reserves last September. In a short time he was promoted to Drill Sergeant. He passed two doctors easily, and was perfectly sound and fit, never even having suffered from a cold. At the end of January last he was sent home on sick leave, and was in bed for several weeks seriously ill with bronchitis, pneumonia and cardiac weakness, brought on, so the doctor said, by exposure to damp and cold.

He was ill for two months and during this time had great difficulty in securing the money due to him. He and his wife and four delicate children often went short of food, and his wife had to pawn her wedding ring. Eventually part of the arrears were paid up.

At last he was called up for medical examination and discharged as medically unfit. All that was given to him was a free pass home on the railway. As he was penniless he had to travel, ill as he was, 7½ hours without food and arrived home to find not a morsel of food in the house.

He fainted from exhaustion and only the kindness of neighbours has since preserved the family from starvation. The man succeeded in getting a promise of light work at the colliery, but is too ill to do anything for at least three months.

Before the War he was a stoker earning 40s. to 45s. a week. He was tall and strong, 35 years old, a life long abstainer with a good character.

We have had similar cases to deal with in East London. After weeks of agitation we succeeded in one case in getting an allowance of 1s. 6d. a day for a man with five dependent children. In another case in which a young man has been disabled for life, the authorities have agreed to pay for a truss for him to wear!

It is just as hard for men injured during training to drag through life as helpless invalids as it is for those whose wounds were inflicted in action. It seems to us that the claim to a pension is equal, whether the injury was sustained during training, or at the front.

THANKS TO THE GUNMAKERS.

The workers in the toolroom in the Old Ford Small Arms Factory collected 20s. 10d. for our babies.
