Mrs. Pankhurst left New York on the White Star liner "Majestic" on November 26th, and will arrive at Plymouth on December 3rd. She will speak at the great Women's Demonstration in the Empress Theatre, Earl's Court, on Sunday December 7th, and will then undertake a provincial tour, visiting the following towns: Birmingham, December 9th; Liverpool, December 10th; Newcastle, December 11th; Nottingham, December 17th; Leicester, December 18th; Cambridge, January 28th; Belfast February 4th; Dublin, February 5th; Cork, February 6th.

superiors, and that the Home Office has no right to place them in this cruel dilemma."

The Home Office we may point out would have no power to place medical officers in this cruel dilemma if Sir Thomas Barlow and the profession as a whole were to take necessary action

Dr. A. E. Eates writing to the "British Medical Journal," says

"Looking at this question of forcible feeding from the purely medical point of view, and seeing that it has failed in its objects, I think the operation ought to be refused to continue to do what they have found to be useless, especially as the treatment amounts to torture. Why do not the prison doctors test the solidarity of their profession by downing stomach tubes? I am sure that such a strike would meet with nothing but sympathy from the whole community, and not a man in our ranks would be found to break the strike."

General Drummond's Forces.

Women in large numbers are preparing themselves to defend the victims of the "Cat-and-Mouse Act." For a long time they waited to see what would be achieved by the men who declare themselves to be opposed to the policy of torture. As the various meetings held and resolutions carried by men have proved ineffectual, women have decided that they can no longer see other women captured by the Government and over and over again taken back to prison to be tortured. Mr. Lloyd George has announced that the Government cannot govern except by methods of torture. In view of this change (greater by far than anything effected by their Parliament Act) which the Government have made in the British Constitution, it is not a matter of surprise that women should be adapting themselves to the new constitutional situation. It is impossible to add torture to the resources of the Constitution without producing far-reaching effects, and this the Government are destined to discover.

Miss Annie Kenney in Dan-er.

In spite of Miss Annie Kenney's condition of serious illness, we are in possession of definite evidence that the Government have been scheming to torture that frail body. Miss Kenney's comrades realise that if she is put through another experience of "Cat-and-Mouse" torture, the result may be fatal, and therefore they will certainly do everything in their power to make her rearrest impossible. If the enfranchised men cannot prevent women from being tortured to death, then women will see what they can do to prevent it.

Mr. Lloyd George on the Situation.

Mr. Lloyd George's replies to the recent Suffrage deputations were shifty and dishonest.

Take to begin with his assertion that there are two ways of carrying a Bill into law, one to get the support of the majority of the people, and the other to get the support of the party machinery. Now it is very true that through the party machinery without a majority, it is possible to get a measure put on the statute book. Indeed, Mr. Lloyd George himself as a proof of this, pointed to his Insurance Bill which he admitted would have been rejected if put to a popular vote. It is however, quite impossible to carry a measure with the sole aid of the majority of the public, and without the aid of the party machinery. This, Mr. Lloyd George well knows—none better—but he hopes that women may not detect the flaw in his argument and may go on "converting the public" by means of pilgrimages and the like, leaving the Liberal Party machine untroubled and at peace.

The Secret Commission.

The Commission on Venereal Diseases is holding its secret meetings and only the briefest and baldest reports are issued to the Press. One witness, Dr. Johnston, who compiled the recently issued Government report, has advised against compulsory notification. He pressed for early treatment of the diseases, for the provision of facilities for laboratory diagnosis, and for the supply of adequate hospital accommodation. This witness pleaded too for an attitude of greater frankness on the part of the public with regard to these diseases! It would be well if the Commission were to set the example of frankness by abandoning its present secrecy of procedure. Evidence as to the prevalence of venereal disease in the Army has been laid before the Commission. A recently issued Blue-book shows venereal diseases to be the chief cause of disability and invalidity in the Navy! The cost of medical treatment of these diseases both in the Army and the Navy lays a heavy burden upon the taxpayers.

THE WOMAN'S MOVEMENT.

A Speech delivered by Mr. FREDERICK WHELEN (Manager of the Vaudeville Theatre) at the Knightsbridge Hall on November 24.

I spoke three years ago for the last time, at a meeting of the W.S.P.U., and on that occasion Miss Christabel Pankhurst was in the chair. Since then many things have happened; the leaders, some of them, have been scattered all over the world, and I have been told by a good many conservative and Anti-Suffrage friends that the Woman's Movement is dying, and the W.S.P.U. is being killed. Well, I come after three years to another meeting of the W.S.P.U., and seeing every sign of a very active, of a very intense, and a very fine life indeed, I disbelieve entirely all this talk about the death and downfall of the W.S.P.U.

I have always felt during this last few years that this Suffrage Movement was a Woman's Movement, and that men ought to have as little as possible to do with it as far as the working and speaking are concerned, but I have heard so much lately about the indifference of men that I believe the time has come when men who believe in the franchise for women should come out and say so. One thing that you women in this Union are doing is that you are making men believe in you, and in your courage.

An Awakening of Men.

Professor Bickerton, speaking on Woman Suffrage, said the one thing that had struck him on his return to England was the awakening of women; and everybody who observes the signs of the times must, I think, agree with him; but you want, and what we all want, is an awakening of men as well as women.

I have heard lately a good many Anti-Suffrage arguments, and I have come to the conclusion that the best argument for the Suffrage cause is the Anti-Suffragist. Now, an Anti-Suffragist is one who works for the Suffrage by working against it. I should like to have as a W.S.P.U. pamphlet Sir Almoth Wright's article. Nothing more effective, I think, could be done than circulating that document. I have heard people talking about it and advocating it, and then saying that more people are becoming convinced Suffragists. I have heard that again and again, and so I think it would be a very good thing to encourage all you possibly can the Anti-Suffragist speakers, because they are making as many converts as you can hope to make for yourselves.

I remember some time ago reading a statement that mankind could be divided into two classes: the people who are born with spurs on their heels, and those born with saddles on their backs, and I cannot help thinking that women are also divided into two classes: those born with spurs on their heels, and those born with saddles on their backs, and I think the W.S.P.U. was born with spurs on its heels.

An Entirely Wrong Thing.

Now, we hear a great deal about this question of physical force; that as a last resource physical strength rules the world, and that therefore man rules the world. I have come to the conclusion that physical force resides as much in women as in men. If you are only to give votes to those physically strong then you would give very few votes to Londoners.

If you give the vote to those who have intellectual strength then I maintain that women have as clear a claim to the vote as men have. I have gone through many elections, and I have come into very close and intimate contact with those intellectual voters of London and the provinces, and if we give the vote to persons because they intellectually deserve it, then we ought to take the vote away from nearly all those men who have got the vote at present. And that is the reason why people like myself desire women to have the vote. I think men ought to have the vote, because only those classes of men who have the vote are really considered by the governing classes, by the Member of Parliament and the politician.

In all kinds of public questions in the House of Commons it is only those people who have the power of the vote behind them who can force their questions to the front. And the same argument applies to women. We live in a community of men and women. The work done by the women in the service of the community is as important as the work done by the men, and to limit the vote to one half of the community is an outrage and an entirely wrong thing.

Women Lead the Way.

In my work in connection with the theatre I am continually having it brought home to me that women are worth quite as much as men. I try to be a pioneer in the theatre, and I find that among theatre pioneers women lead the way and not the men. There are a number of men trying to do new things in the theatre world, but there are more women, and some of the finest pieces of work in the theatre to-day have been done by a woman.

So, in my daily life also, I am convinced that women ought to have these rights just as we men have them.

I read a great many plays, and plays give the opinions of people on the social question of the day, and I have found in the last year or so that an increasing number of people are writing about the franchise. I have had in the last year or so a great many plays, the chief question in which was the women's awakening, and the Women's Movement. There is a complete change in the attitude of the people. About four years ago I saw acted one of the pieces. At the crucial moment of the play the heroine, in the ecstasy of self-abandonment, throws herself before the hero, saying, "I am your chattel. I am your property. Do with me as you will." That was the attitude of mind towards womanhood which was common a few years ago, an attitude of mind which this Union has come to destroy utterly and for ever.

Victories For Woman Suffrage.

It is time to give up all nonsense about the intellectual inferiority of women with regard to men. As you go about you find that even the Government is giving, day by day, more and more responsible positions to women. There are women inspectors of schools, inspectors of shops and factories, and lady mayors. Every kind of public and official post is more and more being given to women. These are all victories for Woman Suffrage, but they are attempts to put off the giving of the vote. Women who can do that are also capable of taking part in the selection of the men who are to govern the country. In the last few days the Government has been appointing a very important Royal Commission on Venereal Disease, and has added two or three women. The Government are compelled to recognise the use, and the importance, and the right of women to have a say in this enormously important social question; so from every point of view I am driven to become an enthusiastic Suffragist.

A Horrible and Outrageous Thing.

We know the sacrifices women are making, and the terrible sufferings being inflicted upon some of the finest members of your Society by forcible feeding. This I think a horrible and outrageous thing, but nothing, I suppose, is making men more respect the determination of women to get the vote than the suffering which is being endured so splendidly by these fine women. I speak as a man. I do not think I could possibly endure that forcible feeding; and, if I endured it once, I do not believe I should have the moral courage to stand or endure it a second time. And when I hear of women who stand it, not once or twice, but twenty or thirty times, I feel enthusiastic about these women, and I feel that a cause which has that faith behind it, is a cause which must go to victory, and must achieve its end.

One cannot help feeling that these women are martyrs, and as long as a cause has Annie Kenney and people like that working for it, that cause is destined to have before long a great and splendid victory.

HOW TO GET RID OF CATARRH.

A Simple, Safe, Reliable Way, and it Costs Nothing to Try.

Those who suffer from catarrh know its miseries. There is no need of this suffering. You can get rid of it by a simple, safe, inexpensive home treatment discovered by Dr. Blosser, who for over thirty-six years has been treating catarrh successfully.

His treatment is unlike any other. It is not a spray, douche, salve, cream, or inhaler, but it is a more direct and thorough treatment than any of these. It cleans out the head, nose, throat, and lungs, so that you can again breathe freely and sleep without the stopped-up feeling that all catarrh sufferers have. It heals the diseased mucous membranes and arrests the foul discharge, so that you will not be constantly blowing your nose and spitting, and at the same time it does not poison the system and ruin the stomach, as internal medicines do.

If you want to test this treatment without cost, send your address to Dr. Blosser, Ltd. (Dept. 30B), 8, Boulevard Street, London, E.C., who will send you by return post enough of the medicine to satisfy you that it is all they claim for it as a remedy for catarrh, catarrhal deafness, asthma, bronchitis, colds, and all catarrhal complications. They will also send you free an illustrated booklet. Write them immediately. On sale at Boots and other chemist shops.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CHURCH.

"Many will say unto Me, in that day, 'Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in Thy name?' . . . Then will I say unto them 'Depart from Me, I never knew you.'"—Matt. vii., 22-23.

MANY PROTESTS IN CHURCHES.

Clergy Respond.

PRAYERS FOR THE WOMEN AT HOLY TRINITY CHURCH

A prayer for all those women who are suffering persecution was offered up at the Holy Trinity Church, Sloane Street, last Sunday. The effect of the prayer on the congregation was deepened by the subsequent sermon, in which the preacher spoke of the treatment offered to women throughout the ages, and pleaded for one standard of morality and justice.

PROTEST AT A LONDON CHURCH.

At the Marylebone Church, immediately after the sermon, several women prayed aloud for Rachel Peace and "all those who are suffering for conscience' sake." The vergers hurried down the aisle, but, as the women were in the gallery, their prayer was finished before any attempt could be made to stop them, and finally they left the church after the hymn without any kind of molestation.

BRAVE PROTEST AT CHISWICK CHURCH.

AN IMPRESSIVE PRAYER.

At St. Michael's Church, Sutton Court, Chiswick, an old lady of over 75 years of age made a protest in the middle of the church service. After one of the intercessions of the Litany she stood up in her seat at the front of the church and prayed aloud, "O God, save all women who are being tortured for conscience' sake, and make Thy Church to see that justice shall prevail." Afterwards the lady resumed her kneeling position, but all those who heard her were deeply moved by her courage in standing up alone to pray.

APPEAL IN TWO LONDON CHURCHES.

PRAYERS FOR RACHEL PEACE.

At the evening service at All Saints' Church, Margaret Street, a woman rose just before the sermon and chanted a prayer for Miss Rachel Peace. Two vergers seized her and forced her outside with great roughness.

The same woman then proceeded to St. Stephen's Church, Will Street, and repeated the same prayer. No attempt was made to turn her out, and when she left later she had an interesting talk with a man who had listened with sympathy to her earnest appeal.

MISSION PRAYERS FOR THE WOMEN.

SIGNS OF THE CHURCH'S AWAKENING.

The Church of Ireland is at present undertaking a special mission for the deepening of spiritual life. A lady living in Belfast wrote to one of the clergy asking him if he would not, during the special intercession, offer up prayers for the Woman's Movement. He replied at once that he would gladly do so, and only wished he could do more. The promise was faithfully kept throughout the week—a hopeful sign that the Church is at last beginning to realise her great responsibility towards the women who are fighting for freedom.

SILENT PROTEST IN CATHOLIC CHURCH.

A silent but effective protest was made last Sunday in the Roman Catholic Church of St. Mary of the Angels, Bayswater, before a large congregation. Towards the end of the service of High Mass a woman suspended a large banner of purple, white and green from the rail surrounding the marble statue of Joan of Arc. A great stir was caused in the congregation.

PRAYERS OFFERED IN CHURCH.

MISS PEACE'S SPLENDID FIGHT.

At a meeting of the "Brotherhood," at the Norfolk Road Church, Brighton, a prayer was offered up by Rev. Hatty Baker for those women who were suffering at the hands of the Government, and especially for Miss Rachel Peace.

In the evening at the Carlton Hill Mission, Miss Baker, before her sermon, offered up a beautiful prayer for the women who are putting up such a splendid fight for justice, and again Miss Peace was mentioned by name.

SUFFRAGETTES PRAY AT CATFORD.

Suffragettes were present at the morning service at St. Laurence's Church, Catford. After the collect for peace had been delivered the voices of the women chanted aloud, "God save Annie Kenney, Sylvia Pankhurst and Rachel Peace, who are being persecuted for conscience' sake. Open the eyes of Thy Church that it may protest against this torture. Amen."

No attempt was made to interfere with the women, who remained till the close of the service.

INTERCESSIONS AT BRISTOL CATHEDRAL.

SYMPATHY OF THE CONGREGATION.

At Bristol Cathedral on Sunday morning, after the collect for peace, a number of women made intercession for Annie Kenney, Sylvia Pankhurst, Rachel Peace, and all who are persecuted for conscience' sake, ending with the prayer, "Open the eyes of Thy Church that it may protest against this torture."

Although the spirit and the manner in which the prayer was uttered were deeply reverent and brought a fresh breath of sincerity into the service, the officials of the church, after the manner of their kind, felt it necessary to hurry up to the women and ask them to leave the church.

As the women passed slowly and gravely down the central aisle other members of the congregation rose from various parts of the church and followed them out to show their sympathy. Several stopped at the door to point out to the vergers that the women were desperately in earnest, and that great wrong had been done in turning them out.

SOLEMN PROTEST AT WIMBLEDON.

At the Parish Church of St. Mary, Wimbledon, a solemn protest was made on Sunday evening. After the anthem and before the sermon a small band of women rose and prayed:—"O Lord, save Emmeline Pankhurst, Annie Kenney, Rachel Peace, and those who give their lives to save their sisters from misery and degradation."

Having thus prayed with great earnestness and reverence the women took their seats again and remained till the end of the service, making no further protest. It was an interesting coincidence that the sermon dealt with the need of women's work in the mission field.

PRAYERS AT A MISSION CHURCH.

At Whitefields Mission Church last Sunday, where on the previous Sunday a number of women had made a protest, the Rev. Charles Piggott prayed aloud for all those who were suffering for principle's sake. The women's prayer had evidently quickly gained for the Suffragist prisoners the support that was wished for.

CHURCH PROTESTS AT PONTYPOOL.

At "Mevethin," the Parish Church at Pontypool, on Sunday evening after the Psalms were sung, a number of women chanted "God save Rachel Peace and all those who suffer for conscience' sake. Open the eyes of Thy Church that she may protest against this torture."

No attempt was made to interfere with the women who remained to the end of the service.

Wholesome Washing

Clothes washed with Fels-Naptha soap are more wholesome and healthy than after the use of any other soap.

No germs can live in Fels-Naptha—it makes proof against contagion.

It's one of the merits of Fels-Naptha—the chief is the whiteness and cleanness of the clothes.

THE GREAT COLLECTION.

A FUND OF WELCOME TO Mrs. PANKHURST AND A PROTEST AGAINST TORTURE.

Give Yourself and Collect from Others.

ANOTHER £1,000 PROMISE.

A wonderful response has already been made to the appeal for the Great Collection. From all parts of the United Kingdom come promises of money. A second promise of £1,000 has been received! This should spur every Member and friend of the Union on, not only to give herself but to collect from others. We must gather in every available pound and penny. Members should write or call upon all Suffragists asking them to subscribe, bringing to their notice thirteen reasons why they should do so. These thirteen reasons have been printed as a leaflet and can be had on application at Lincoln's Inn House. Members should enclose one of these leaflets in every letter they write. They should carry a supply with them wherever they go and take each opportunity as it arises to make others subscribe.

£1,000 comes from a W.S.P.U. member in gratitude for the articles written on social diseases for the cleansing and purifying of the human race and as a protest against the brutality of the Government towards Mrs. Pankhurst and others under the abominable Cat and Mouse Act.

A member of the Union who spending only £100 a year on her personal needs is giving £50 (in addition to some smaller amounts to the W.S.P.U. within a year) writes: "With regard to your articles that have appeared lately in the SUFFRAGETTE and the crusade against impurity I feel what I believe a good many other women are feeling just now: that they express the very ideas and point of view that we have cherished in private all our grown up lives; and that to have them thus publicly proclaimed is simply making an epoch for which we cannot feel thankful enough. I think that in the end public opinion will follow your lead in spite of all that the Press do to throw dust in their eyes."

Dr. Ethel Smyth, in sending £20 as her contribution, writes as follows: "I also enclose £42 from an Austrian lady, in admiration of Lady Constance Lytton."

A member who promised £50 now writes to say she will double her contribution and will present £100 to the Great Collection.

Another, who intended to give £5 and now contributes £10, says: "I realise that at this moment everyone should give to her utmost."

From another subscriber who promises £15 comes the following: "I wish I could express in money the love and admiration I feel for all the brave militants."

A Scotswoman sends her contribution as a protest against the Cat and Mouse Act and says: "I think for a similar cruelty we must go back to the Star Chamber and Judge Jeffreys, and to the time of the Covenanters of ever blessed memory, who, when fighting for liberty were tortured, persecuted, and slaughtered right and left under Lord Advocate McKenzie still called 'Bluidy McKenzie.' There is a tale that his wicked spirit has never been able to quit this earth, but still haunts his tomb. I think just now it must have entered into McKenna. I always think my garden is sacred ground, for hereabouts many a poor Covenanter has hidden himself, and I look across to the quiet hills and see the place where hundreds were slaughtered by the English soldiers under Claverhouse, who, I think, must be living again in Asquith."

THE GREAT COLLECTION.

I promise to give to the Great Collection, to be handed to Mrs. Pankhurst on her return from America for the Campaign Fund of the Women's Social and Political Union, account of the Labour Party's action with regard to women, were not to be silenced. They bravely put their questions and resisted the violent attacks which were made upon them with the utmost determination. No sooner was one ejected than another took up the fight. One woman was found to be chained to her chair, and a considerable time passed before she could be flung out.

A protest meeting was held outside and many people came forward and declared that the treatment of the women had converted them to militancy.

MR. KEIR HARDIE'S TOUR.

MORE PROTESTS.

Mr. Hardie's anti-militarist meeting at Clydebank was disturbed by repeated interruptions from Suffragette quarters.

One woman had to be ejected before order was obtained, and a protest meeting was held outside afterwards.

SIR J. H. YOXALL ADDRESSES HIS CONSTITUENTS.

WOMEN EJECTED

The meeting of his Sherwood Ward constituents addressed by Sir J. H. Yoxall, M.P., at Nottingham, on November 17, was considerably disturbed by the interruptions of women in the audience.

No sooner had Sir James essayed to open his mouth than the first interruption came, the woman being at once removed. A few minutes afterwards another woman attempted to argue with the speaker, and after a violent struggle in the course of which a chair was overturned, she was ejected. Other interruptions followed, and the police had to be called in before this woman could be removed from the meeting.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE AT OXFORD.

SUFFRAGISTS' REMINDER.

Notwithstanding the most extraordinary precautions taken on his behalf, Mr. Lloyd George was not allowed to leave the Oxford Union without being reminded of his neglected duties to the Suffragists.

As his car drove off a heavy piece of wood struck the chassis, whilst the interior was deluged with a flood of pamphlets. "Why every man should join the M.P.U."

DR. MACNAMARA'S MEETING.

MORE VIOLENCE.

At the public baths, Old Kent Road, Dr. Macnamara's stewards, encouraged perhaps by the former's denials, did not hesitate to repeat the violence which last week caused the tragic death of Mr. Bethel.

Two women who interrupted Dr. Macnamara in the course of his speech were most brutally assaulted. For all that they made a determined resistance and some time passed before they were finally ejected.

HECKLING AT MR. ROBERTSON'S MEETING.

Mr. J. M. Robertson, M.P., Secretary to the Board of Trade, was subjected to a fire of interrupters during his speech at a Brighton meeting.

The trouble began early when Mr. Lee, J.P., who presided, explained that the burning question of the day was Home Rule. A lady in his audience arrested him with the cry of "Votes for Women." Whereupon Mr. Lee, who, apparently, must have attended a Suffragette meeting some months back, retorted, "Yes, we all know that is a burning question," a joke which was much appreciated when it was first made at the Pantheon in the early part of the year. Mr. Robertson felt, however, that its full delicacy had not been realised by his audience, for, after having been severely heckled by both men and women and after several ejections had been effected, he made it all over again with elaborations.

This attempt to treat the women's question with borrowed witticisms failed to win a peaceful meeting for Mr. Robertson, who had to wait whilst more men and women were thrown out as a reward for their all too logical interjections.

EARL BEAUCHAMP INTERRUPTED.

MANY EJECTIONS AT LIBERAL MEETING.

Earl Beauchamp, First Commissioner of Works, was repeatedly interrupted during his meeting in St. Nicholas' Hall, Scarborough. Women and men who wanted to know what the Government was going to do for the women were answered by violent ejection, but it was some time before peace could be restored.

MR. YOUNG IN HIS CONSTITUENCY.

BRUTAL STEWARDS.

Mr. Young, M.P. for East Perthshire is touring his constituency just now, and on Friday, November 21, a party of Suffragists went to his meeting at Longorgan to express to him their indignation at the treatment of the Woman's Question by the Government which he supports. Mr. Young was claiming to have always represented the views of his constituents, when a man rose and intimated that he did not represent his views on forcible feeding, for which intimation, he was forcibly removed from the meeting.

A similar remark from a woman a little later drew the same treatment on her, but this time one of the audience fought for her, protesting vehemently against such brutality. Other interruptions followed.

THE EDINBURGH ANTIS INTERRUPTED.

SIGNIFICANT DEMONSTRATION.

The Edinburgh branch of the Scottish League for Opposing Woman's Suffrage, alarmed at the turn of the tide, have returned to activity.

At a meeting in one of the music-halls the Marquis of Linlithgow presided, and was supported by the Marchioness of Tullibardine, Lord Glenconner, and an M.P., Mr. Godfrey Collins, who, as a "convert," was regarded as a feature of the evening.

Theories and Practice Demonstrated.

Unfortunately the peace of the meeting and the logic of the speeches were badly upset by the presence of a considerable number of Suffragettes.

Finally, as Mr. Collins was explaining to the audience the characteristics which were "women's pride and glory," and how revered and protected was her position in the nation, a woman who had ventured on a too logical comment was flung out with such violence that even the antis were roused to protest.

Other interruptions followed quickly, and when all the dissenters had been carefully removed the resolution against the enfranchisement of women was passed unanimously.

"Circumstances Alter Cases."

By MAY HERSCHEL CLARKE.

The family sat round, in the way that families have, and discussed the world in general.

There was one dread subject upon which father vouchsafed his opinion, for it was considered distinctly taboo in the family circle. Aunt Mary, however, with the instinct which invariably led her where angels fear to tread, introduced it.

"How is dear Myra?" she asked, in the voice with which she stirred up all the family quarrels.

"Now Myra was to father even as the thorn in the side of St. Paul. She held advanced views of independence, and had refused to give up her life to days of genteel idleness and listening to father's views. Moreover, she was a Suffragette. In father's eyes this was the unpardonable sin. Brother Bill, when he wanted to stand well with father, said she belonged to the "screaking sisterhood," and laughed as if he had said something original.

All this goes to prove that Aunt Mary knew what she was doing when she inquired, "How is dear Myra?"

Having done her part, she folded her hands and prepared to enjoy the volcanic outburst.

It was soon forthcoming. Father grew purple in the face and steadied his left leg.

He started off at a tangent. "Those fools of women!" he exclaimed wrathfully. "A lot of mad hoiligans! 'Dangers of forcible feeding' indeed! I would tie them to a stake and watch them burn, the she-devils!"

Mother echoed father's admirable sentiments till quelled by the fire in her lord and master's eye. He had not finished speaking himself.

"And here's my daughter a member of that gang! Brought up in a respectable Christian family, too! She will find herself in gaol yet, and serve her jolly well right!"

"It's the only thing that will teach her a lesson," remarked Brother Bill. There was an impressive silence. Aunt Mary smiled complacently at the success of her question, but catching father's eye looked suitably shocked. In the street below a boy was yelling an evening paper. Brother Bill, who firmly believed that sport has made the Englishman what he is, went to the door and bought one.

But he never got as far as the Football News. His eye was arrested by a glaring headline: "More Suffragette Outrages." He read on fascinated. Suddenly he gave a gasp of surprise. He tried to remember how long ago that was, but his brain seemed dazed, though he dimly realised that the fair-haired little girl had always remained a good pal and somehow understood a fellow so well. He felt that perhaps he hadn't always treated her very well, and now, for some reason or other, he regretted he hadn't quite played the game. She would never have gone back on a fellow.

Then suddenly his mind cleared. The paper fell to the floor. He opened his mouth and the words came in short, jerky gasps.

"Oh, dad! Myra's arrested!" he exclaimed.

It was three weeks later—three weeks of racking anxiety, which had reached its climax when a white, pain-huddled form had been brought to the family's door yesterday in a cab, accompanied by a stern, precise-looking man who talked long with father in the room which had been the scene of so many wrathful arguments and domestic battles.

That was yesterday. To-day, father stood on the hearthrug alone. He looked worn and tired, and a shaft of sunshine shone on a white patch of hair over his temple. Presently Aunt Mary and Brother Bill tiptoed into the room and sat and talked in whispers. There was an air of mystery in the room, and the three people looked at each other expectantly. They heard footsteps overhead and then a man's voice. They could not catch what he said.

A moment later mother entered the room. She walked over to the fireplace and spoke to father. Her voice was very gentle and there were tears in her eyes.

"The doctor thinks he can pull our little girl through," she said; "but he says it will be a hard fight. That awful feeding tube—"

Her voice broke. Father gave a great sigh, as if an immense load had been lifted from his mind. Then he raised his head and a gleam shone in his eyes, while his gaze seemed to penetrate the room to something beyond. His hands clenched and a look of horror stole over his face as though he saw some terrible vision. Then he spoke. The words were commonplace, but they were echoed in the hearts of his hearers.

"The brutes!" he said.

INTERESTING NEWS FROM ALL PARTS.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM MR ZANGWILL.

To the Editor of the SUFFRAGETTE.
MADAM,—We only disagree upon Suffragist strategy, and, as I am not unbalanced enough to hope to convert you, I should have had no ground for dissatisfaction had you limited your comments on my "English Review" article to my military unintelligence. But you excused me also of "grotesque falsehoods," and as I am anxious that the SUFFRAGETTE shall preserve a reputation for veracity and fair-dealing, I must ask you to print the words you complain of in their true context. Here is what the "English Review" actually says: "When, finally, a handful of desperate spirits proclaimed a guerilla war against society, it was merely against dead matter, and it is amazing that, with so many fanatics smarting under almost intolerable tortures and indignities, not one has lost her balance so far as to destroy life. The women's war remains unstained by blood other than their own."
I will leave it to your readers to decide whether the words, "desperate spirits" and "fanatics," used in this particular connection to defend the militants against the charge of hysteria can be properly characterised as "grotesque falsehoods."
Yours sincerely, ISRAEL ZANGWILL.
Far End, East Preston, Sussex.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The quotation from his own article which our correspondent supplies simply bears out our contention. It accuses the militant women of being "desperate spirits." Martial spirits they truly are and hopeful spirits, but not "desperate spirits." By describing the militant women as fanatics our correspondent convicts himself of the charge we bring against him. The term "fanatic" is always employed by an enemy, never by a friend.

It is not, as we have said before, torture and indignities suffered by them personally which have aroused militant women to stronger action. To say the contrary is a falsehood grotesque indeed.

When our correspondent says: "Not one has lost her balance so far as to," etc., he lays himself open to the accusation of suggesting that militant women have in some degree or other lost their balance, and this of course is to use the only word which meets the needs of the case, a lie.

Our correspondent claims that he is defending the militant women against the charge of hysteria. Thank you for nothing! is their reply to him. The charge of hysteria has never been made by any to whose opinion the militant women attach the least importance. Among those who have made it are some journalistic scribblers and some unbalanced scientific men, whose science deserts them as soon as they begin to discuss women.

"Military unintelligence" we do indeed attribute to our correspondent. And that is no small sin, for when unintelligence becomes vocal and when it presumes to criticise the acts of others then it becomes extremely mischievous, and for practical purposes is not to be distinguished from direct hostility to the Movement.

We are informed that certain passages in a speech recently made by our correspondent were of such a nature as to evoke strong protest from militant Suffragists who heard them.
Men Suffragists would be well advised, instead of busying themselves with criticism of women's methods, to devote their entire attention to the constructive work which they can do, as men and as voters, to advance the cause of Votes for Women.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS SALE.

Preparations for the Christmas Presents Sale, which will open at Lincoln's Inn House on Thursday afternoon, December 4th, at three o'clock, are going on apace. We are grateful to the generous friends who have already promised contributions of all kinds to the various stalls, and make a further appeal this week to those who, perhaps, do not realise that the sale will be held for several days, and that still more promises are necessary if the stalls are to be kept adequately stocked.

To all those who have already given we express our heartfelt thanks, and during the next two weeks we shall look forward to a great influx of gifts from more who have not as yet sent their contributions.

The Toy Stall will be in charge of Mrs. Oswald Walker, a daughter of Mrs. Mansel, the well-known W.S.P.U. speaker and worker, who through illness in her family regrets she cannot be present herself.

Mrs. Mansel Pleydell will look after the Sweet and Cracker Stall.

Mrs. Terrero is organising the Farm Produce and Provision Stall, and will be glad to hear specially from members and friends who will send mince-pie.

A gift of fish basses will also be very welcome.

The Fancy Stall will be in the hands of Miss Robie Keller.

Mrs. Bowker and Miss Saunders are organising the Card and Calendar Stall.

Miss Connor Smith is in charge of the Lucky Tub.

The Children's Clothing Stall has been undertaken by Miss Berry.

All these ladies make an urgent appeal for support of one or other of various stalls, and offers of gifts should be sent to the Christmas Presents Sale Secretary, at Lincoln's Inn House.

Mrs. Temple Bird and Miss Streetfeild have kindly offered to make sketches at the sale, and if this meets the eye of anyone who can do silhouettes, will she communicate with the Sale Secretary at once?

We are specially grateful to the good friends who have promised to come and sing, play and recite to us informally whilst the Sale is on. If others will offer similar help, we shall be very glad.

Messrs. Lipson, Limited, have generously given 50lb. of tea, 112lb. of sugar, and the same quantity of cake. We very much appreciate this kind help, and in this connection would remind readers that a special feature of the Sale will be dainty teas attractively served. These tea arrangements will be in the hands of Lady Lely and Mrs. Sadd Brown, who will be grateful for gifts of money towards the expenses.

A CORRECTION.

We wish to correct an error which was made in last week's report. Instead of the I.C. Company we should have said the I.L. Company have very kindly promised cigarettes to the Sale.

SOME HOME TRUTHS FOR MR. LLOYD GEORGE.

Last Saturday morning at Oxford Mr. Lloyd George received a deputation of the Oxford Men's Political Union, consisting of Mr. H. W. Nevinson, Mr. H. D. Harben, Mr. B. G. Gould, Mr. H. J. Laski, Mr. B. L. Strauss, Mr. P. E. Hobhouse, and Mr. W. H. Crook. Mr. Lloyd George was given a number of home truths, and all members of the deputation expressed their extreme dissatisfaction at his remarks.

THE INFLUENCE OF PRESENT-DAY LIBERALISM.

SCENE AT WOMEN'S LIBERAL MEETING.

At the opening of the annual meeting of the Ilfracombe Women's Liberal Association a painful exhibition was given of the extent to which the Liberal party women are still blinded to the vital issues.

Mr. H. A. Baker, the prospective candidate for the Barnstaple division was addressing a meeting when a lady, who had once been a member of the Association rose to protest against the treatment of women by the Government.

A great uproar followed, and the lady who had interrupted was compelled to leave the meeting to which she had been invited.

THE DEATH OF MR. BETHELL.

POLICE INVESTIGATIONS.
The brother of Mr. Bethell, whose death was brought about by his brutal treatment at Dr. Macnamara's meeting, has been informed by the police that they are taking up the case, and that those responsible will be apprehended.
If the matter is strongly investigated, and the culprits punished in accordance with the law, we may hear less of Liberal methods in the future.

IN MEMORIAM.

On Friday last, the 21st of this month, there passed away yet another pioneer of the Woman's Movement. Mrs. Atherton, who thirty-two years ago founded, with her friend Miss Thornbury, the Society of Artists in Bond Street, had all her life been deeply interested in all question relating to the welfare of her sex and when the Militant movement for Woman's Suffrage was initiated Mrs. Atherton was one of the first to recognise its powers and respond to its appeal. She had been in failing health for some time, but when the end came it was peaceful and without pain. Our deep sympathy goes out to Mrs. Atherton's relatives and to her friend and partner, in this deep sorrow which has come upon them.
