Introduction

1 This appendix contains index number information which was not collected in censuses of production but is necessary for the interpretation of the census information given in the body of this volume. All the census data are given in the appropriate census year terms: no attempt has been made to make a heading's value data comparable across censuses. Thus, if one wanted to compare the output of the textile industries for the years 1963 and 1970, the procedure would be:

(a)	Gross output of the textiles order from Table 1.	£2,151.4mn	£2,960.2mn
(b)	Wholesale price indices from Table (i)(Part 4), 1963 = 100	100	116
(c)	$(a) \div (b)$ x 100 Gross output adjusted for price changes.	£2,151.4mn	£2,551.9mn

From (a) the apparent growth in the textiles industries from 1963 to 1970 was 37.6 per cent. However, concealed in this increase was some variation in the wholesale prices of the industries and a better estimate of output change between 1963 and 1970 is given from line (c) as 18.6 per cent.

2 Care should be taken where the comparison spans more than one part of a series, i.e. where the price indices for the two years under consideration are calculated relative to a different base year. Where there is a break in the series because of a base year change indices are given for both the old and new series. For example, the price indices for the food products part of the wholesale price output series in the years 1951 and 1961, from Table (i)(Part 4) were 118 and 107 on base year 1949 and 1954 respectively. Food products has two index numbers for 1954: 139 on the 1949 base and 100 on the 1954 base.

The two series are now spliced yielding a series:

1951	1951 Index, 1949 base x 1954 Index, 1954 base
	1954 Index, 1949 base
	= 118 x 100 = 85
	139
1954	100
1961	107
