Lord Passfield and Mrs. Webb.

Mrs. Sidney Webb's reported decision not to use the title of Lady Passfield, to which her husband's elevation to the peerage gives her the right, is an extreme feminist gesture.

It is conceivable that as women begin to win honours for themselves some of them will cease to use their courtesy titles as wives or daughters of distinguished men. Bishops' wives do not become princesses of the Church when their husbands acquire mitres and full sleeves, and Society has not thereby been seriously inconvenienced.

If this gesture need be made at all nobody could have made it with less subsequent misunderstanding than Mrs. Webb, as the perfect harmony of the Webb household is world-famous. Did not one of Mr. H. G. Wells's characters once describe the Webbs as "two typewriters that click as one"? There will now, perhaps, remain some dissatisfaction that Mrs. Webb, whose half of the Webb achievements is so important, should not be formally honoured at all.

Perhaps she could be induced to become Dame Beatrice? 39A

"Could I see Lady Passfield?" asked a correspondent on calling at the home in Grosvenor-road to-day of the Secretary for the Dominions, whom the public will no longer know as Mr. Sidney Webb.

Having been elevated to the peerage, he will be introduced to the House of Lords next week as Lord Passfield of Passfield Corner, in the county of Southampton.

The housekeeper at the Minister's home looked puzzled. Then she said she would inquire. A minute or two later she returned. "Mrs. Webb is sorry she cannot give any interviews," she said.

"Mrs. Webb?" asked the correspondent.
"Yes—Mrs. Webb. I have been given orders not to call her by any other name."
"But what of Mr. Webb?"

"Mr. Webb has become Lord Passfield."
Further than that the housekeeper would not

Mrs. Webb, wife of Lord Passfield, will remain Mrs. Sidney Webb. Her decision is understood to be irrevocable.

Receptions Dilemma.

A curious situation may arise when the Secretary for the Dominions and his wife have to be introduced at receptions.

Will they be announced as "Lord Passfield and wife" or "Lord Passfield and Mrs. Sidney Webb"?

Lord Passfield and Mrs. Webb have been married for 38 years. They have devoted their lives to an exhaustive study of social conditions in London and the big cities.

Mrs. Sidney Webb.

If Mrs. Sidney Webb prefers to keep her own distinguished name, her wish is intelligible and should be respected. Her position is not the same as her husband's. Lord Passfield may perhaps remain plain Sidney Webb in private life, but legally and publicly his status and name have changed. He has accepted the conditions, privileges, and disabilities of a peerage. He has lost his vote and his right to sit in the House of Commons. In the somewhat remote event of his committing murder or bigamy he will be tried, not by a common jury, but by his peers. Mrs. Webb's position has undergone no such transformation. No doubt she will suffer jointly from the expenses of rank, and she may find it hard to convince hotel proprietors that the wife of Lord Passfield should be only charged the rates expected from Mrs. Sidney Webb. She may experience difficulties, too, in avoiding some of the strict and uncomfortable laws of precedence and etiquette. But she remains a commoner who may yet, if she chooses and is chosen, add M.P. to her long list of distinctions and who retains her right to vote for her Parliamentary representative. If she is accused of fraud or homicide she takes her chance, like the rest of us, before a common jury. And Mrs. Sidney Webb may well think that Lady Passfield denotes no elevation of real rank. In that amazing partnership of joint work no one has ever thought of Mrs. Webb as simply the wife of Mr. Webb, nor of Mr. Webb as simply the husband of Mrs. Webb. Each has been individually and equally distinguished. Mrs. Webb has earned her own honours and prefers her own name. Like Lord Acton, who remarked that he saw no reason to change his religion because the Pope changed his, Mrs. Sidney Webb sees no reason to change her name because her husband has become Lord Passfield.

Mrs SIDNEY WEBB AND THE DUKE.

HER FIRST OFFICIAL RECEPTION:

Baron Passfield, of Passfield Corner (Mr. Sidney Webb), stood in the centre hall of the Imperial Institute last evening receiving the Duke of Connaught, Princess Patricia Ramsay and some 250 members of the Association of Canadian Clubs now visiting London.

It was his first official function as Secretary for the Dominions in the Socialist Government.

With him, in a simple black and white afternoon frock and a large bell-shaped yellow straw hat, was his charming wife, with whom for nearly 40 years he has collaborated in sociological studies.

The Duke of Connaught called her neither Lady Passfield nor Mrs. Webb. She curtsied, and in his deep voice and hearty fashion he assured her how delighted he was to see her.

Lord Passfield, the great friend of Keir Hardie and H. M. Hyndman in the pioneer days of Social Democracy, looked on approvingly.

He escorted Princess Patricia, who was arrayed in flowered georgette and picture hat relieved with large yellow blooms, to a reserved tea-room, the Duke preceding them in amiable conversation with Mrs. Sidney Webb.

This was the second effort of the Government Hospitality Department under the new regime. If was a pleasant gesture of reciprocity in view of the constant attentions showered on Englishmen in Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal by a group of Canadian Clubs answering in many ways to the Rotary Montreal by a group of Canadian Clubs answering in many ways to the Rotary Societies in this country and the U.S.A.

[When announcing the event last night the B.B.C. referred to "Lord Passfield and Mrs. Sidney Webb," the name by which the new peeress prefers to be known.]

Lord Passfield's Record.

I saw the new Labour Colonial Secretary and his wife (the invitations were issued in the name of Lord Passfield and Mrs. Sidney Webb) for a few minutes yesterday at the Government reception at the Imperial Instistute to the Association of Canadian Clubs. Mrs Sidney Webb was having tea with the Duke of Connaught behind the screen of a large glass museum case. They were having an animated conversation, and everyone present admired the fine features and silver hair of these two famous personalities.

Lord Passfield, looking remarkably well and his brain as alert as ever, was surrounded la a host of Dominion governors and distinguished Colonial servants. He told me with justifiable satisfaction that in going to the Colonial Office he was returning to a minitry where forty years ago he had worked as a clerk.

Is this a record in the history of British politic's?

4 # Brack Lebra Furty The New York Times, in a leading ticle bidding the Prime Minister fare-Well, says:—

His visit has been an overpowering success. It has been a distinct triumph for Ramsay MacDonald the man. His bearing has been perfect. Not one slip in act or speech did he make while he was here. It is true that he is not able to carry away with him a complete naval agreement between Great Britain and the United States. That was his confessed hope, and though it is for a time deferred, it maketh not his heart sick. He is certain of success in the end. . . He will have the advantage of returning to his task with a heightened authority and with a volume of good will pouring towards him from America greater than anyone could have believed possible before he came to our shores to win all hearts here. well, says:hearts here. PROBLEMS OF SEX.

VICTORIAN DAYS.

Democracy. (From our London Staff.)

No Liberty Through

FLEET STREET, FRIDAY.

Mr. George Bernard Shaw visited the Sexual Reform Congress in London this afternoon and spoke on the need for expert opinion in sexual reform. Mr. Shaw said that he was not going to beg the question of what sexual reform was, for almost everybody to-day was a sex reformer. The Pope, for instance, was a very prominent one. If there was to be a real general congress of all the sexual reformers—the Catholics and the anticlericals, the birth controllers and the anticlericals, the birth controllers and the anti-birth controllers, the polygamists and the polyandrists—there would probably be a curious crossparty organisation.

The Pope might well find that on nine points out of ten he was in complete agreement with Dr. Marie Stopes, while the most fanatical nudist might object strongly to polygamy or easier divorce, and there would probably be complete disagreement on the age of consent. Mr. Shaw said that he was there to tell people to take expert advice on the psychological and political effects of the reforms that they proposed. It was on the psychological effect that he chiefly wanted to speak, because he was an expert on it.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "I am an expert in sex appeal. What I mean is the need for expert opinion in sexual

"As a matter of fact," he said, "I am an expert in sex appeal. What I mean is that I am a playwright, and the theatre is continually occupied with sex appeal, into the sex appeal, into the sex appeal.

just as a costermonger is continually occupied with turnips. And, believe me, occupied with turnips. And, believe me, a costermonger's opinion on turnips is worth having; he is an expert."

All theatre people, he said, had to know a lot about sex appeal, because if they were wrong they lost a lot of money. One could hardly call a man an expert unless he lost a lot of money if his view was wrong. People never called in the expert on this subject, but the priest was continually rushing in and demanding to be called an expert. But sex appeal was the one thing that as a celibate he would make an unholy mess of if he acted as an expert. People went to him because they often liked to go to the wrong expert for they would be told that they were wrong.

The Victorian Masters. There were two sets of people which Mr. Shaw found himself up against as an expert—those who sought to minimise sex appeal by a maximum of clothing, those who sought to maximise it by a minimum. Neither understood the matter in the least, for sex appeal could only be raised to the maximum by clothing. He himself was old enough to have been young in the Victorian era, a thing which himself: was old enough to have been young in the Victorian era, a thing which was now becoming comparatively rare. Being an artist himself, he had always been impressionable in matters of sex. and he could say that the Victorians were masters in sex appeal. Everything about a Victorian lady except her nose and her cheeks was a guilty secret. Sometimes she used artificial aids—palpitators, and bustles, and so on. She concealed the fact that she was a human being, and she was made to look like a very luxurious sofa. The result was that the Victorian age was a seethingly immoral age. Of course, to-day we had been getting rid of all that and had quite a lot of nudism, the unpopularity of which depended on the fact that people clung to sex appeal. He was not going to attempt to judge between the conditions of his youth and those of the present day, when sex appeal had vanished to a surprisingly large extent. He merely wanted to explain how sex appeal was made because the priests in their ignorance wanted to bring back more clothing and with it inevitably sex appeal.

"I am simply giving the expert's opinion," Mr. Shaw said. "If you want sex appeal, clothes; if you don't, get rid of as many clothes as you can." In most people's minds modern democracy had got mixed up with liberty because it had abolished certain forms of oppression. It was assumed that what made for liberty in one direction would assuredly make for it in all, but this was quite wrong.

The more the people at large had to do with government the more sex reformers.

The more the people at large had to do with government, the more sex reformers would have to fight for their lives. Cecil Sharp once heard a gardener singing a song in the distance. When asked if it was he who had been singing the gardener called God to witness that he was an honest and decent man and had never sung a song in his life. This was typical of most people's attitude. To the mass of the people art and beauty were simply aids to debauchery. They were the most ferocious opponents of all the things sex reformers wanted.

It would be necessary to fight for a ferocious opponents of all the things sex reformers wanted.

It would be necessary to fight for a new morality, he would not call it a super-morality, for the mass of people would call a sub-morality. In the end they would have to have different class moralities, and people would have to learn to tolerate the morality of other circles than that to which they themselves happened to belong.

"That," Mr. Shaw concluded, "is the utmost we can lope for. Don't for a moment suppose that you can impose your ideas of morality on others, and least of all that you can do it by democracy—that would be the biggest mistake of all."

Sex and Education.

Sex and education was the general subject discussed at the morning session of the Congress. Though there was agree-the Congress. Though there was agreement that fullness and frankness was necessary, the pseho-analysts present thought that the other members of the Congress were making a difficult subject far too simple when they held that sex should and could be taught in just the same as any other subject; that children's difficulties were largely imposed on them by their elders. Mrs. Alma Dent said that parents and teachers had no right to teach any form of morality to the child. Their only business was when asked to answer he child's questions truthfully and objectively. In questions of sex it was important to realise that the child was entirely free from shame and prejudice. If the parent was unashamed the child would remain so.

Mrs. Barbara Low ridiculed the idea that fear and shame were handed at to the child by adults. The work of Freud had shown that man was born into the world with the most profound and amazing complex of emotional life, of fears, shames, anxieties, and self-reproach. It ment that fullness and frankness was seemed that a sense of guilt dogged a man no matt: how much freedom he might have had.

The question of how, when, and by whom sex information should be given was not very simple. It had been thought that enlightened parents were the best people to give it, but psychoanalysis sugge ted that this was not so, because of the close emotional nexus between parent and child. It might be that the enlightened teacher, a doctor friend, or an older boy and girl would 'o this better. If the child could read, then without any doubt the printed word was the best method, because it was free from an emotional bond.

Turning to the sexual development of the child, Mrs. Low said that the sex life of the child was full and rich from the very beginning, and had in it all the essential attributes of adult sex as we knew it. Adolescence was not the beginning of sex; it was a repetition after a dormant period in a new form. Sex education, if it was to be successful, must fit itself to these stages.

The Hon. Bertrand Russell pointed out that one of the great drawbacks of the taboo on sex knowledge was that it hampered the curiosity of the young, to whom inquiries about trains and babies were on exactly the same plane. So when a child was told that one kind of curiosity was checked. If it was dangerous to ask how babies were made it might be dangerous to ask how aeroplanes were made. Experience in his school went to show that nastiness in children was the result of prudery in children was the result of prudery in children was to satisfy their curiosity.

SUPER KINEMA TO COST

£5,000,000. New London Project. Negotiations are proceeding for the acquisition of a site which will include the Haymarket Stores, a branch of the Civil Service Co-operative Stores, and other adjacent property for the purpose of the erection of a super-kinema which, it is stated, will be the largest in the It is understood that an American company, the Fox Film Company, is concerned in the negotiations. About eighteen months ago a scheme for the erection of a large kinema in London was prepared by Mr. Claude M. Leigh, the estate agent, of Hanover Square, and it is believed that Mr. Leigh's visit to America last November was associated with the present scheme, the cost of which will probably total £5,000,000.

Seen by a reporter vesterday Mr. Leigh £5,000,000.

Seen by a reporter yesterday Mr. Leigh declined to make any statement beyond denying the accuracy of a report in a London newspaper that the Haymarket Stores had been sold for £750,000. He did not deny, however, the existence of the scheme for the building of a vast new kinema.

ICELAND'S OWN B.B.C. Icelanders are to have a broadcasting station of their own, with local programmes, weather forecasts, and entertainments. The Government has signed a contract with the Marconi Company for the erection of a modern 16-kilowatt station on the island, and work by British engineers will begin immediately. station will open next June during the celebrations of the one thousandth anniversary of the discovery of the island. "The station will be much more powerful than the main British broadcasting stations, and about half as powerful as Daventry," an official of the Marconi Company states. It will be capable of telegraphic communication as well as frequently broadcast, was founded in 1861. It has won many prizes since its inception, and it ranked as one of the best in the country. The Tudor Singers have also appeared on several occasions before the microphone. It is interesting to note that Stanley R. Maher, who will probably be associated in the minds of many listeners with sea chantey and other rousing programmes, is a member of the Tudor Singers. Their programme includes songs both old and new. CHESHIRE WATER APPEAL, The East Cheshire water officials issued a further appeal to the public yesterday continue to exercise the strictest economy in the use of water, as stocks are still very low. There is now less than 40 days' supply, which is not half the normal supply.

A DAY'S HOLIDAY.

Half a guinea will be sent to Marjorie Southwell, aged $8\frac{1}{2}$, 19, Moorfield Road, Pendleton, for the following:—

Last Thursday Daddy took my friend and I too Belle-vue. First we had a long Ride on the tram-car, and when we got there we went on the elephant, it was a tiny ride But it was very joggie and made tmy ride But it was very joggie and made us laugh, and the driver was a Nigger and all dressed up. And then we went on the Catterpiller and had such fun that we went on three times. And then we both fed the Llma and Daddy siad we could have a ride so we jumped in and scampered away round the Gardens and when we landed back we went on the camel and it was just like the elephant only much joggier and funnier. And then into the Refreshment-room and had tea.
