Interview with the Rev. G. C. Daw
Vicar of St. Mary, Spital Square, at the Vicarage

(Jan. 15. 1908)

Mr Daw has been at St. Mary 3 years. He knows Earl London well having worked as a layman for Bishop Butler, as a curate in Whitechapel, & as principal of the Jewish Missionary Training College at Palestine House, Deodar Green.
He was ordained rather late in life, & this is his first living.

The parish has a population of about 5000, & of these Mr Daw estimates 2000 are Jews. Jewish demand increasing but not by such leaps & bounds as in other parts of Whitechapel. Jews & gentiles mixed up pretty much through the whole of the parish.

The Jews work at various Jewish trades - tailoring, ribbon-making &c &c.
Jews & gentiles mostly labourers in casual employment.

Very few middle-class, Mr Brady & one or two others completing the list. Most of the shopkeepers in Market Street non-resident. The parish generally may be described very poor. There is a great deal of thieving among the thieves, especially in the poorer streets, e.g.
Thoson Street. Rarely rather than work the main occupation.

The Parish.

The Parish of St. Mary, Spital Square, forms part of the Board of Works District of Whitechapel, and contains about 5,000 inhabitants, all of which, with few exceptions, are very poor. The Parish consists of the Liberty of Norton Folgate and the Liberty of the Old Artillery Ground. St. Mary's is a daughter Parish of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate Without; a rather ancient daughter, born as long ago as 1197. In that year the first stone was laid of the Priory of "St. Mary, Spital (or hospital) for poor Augustinian Brethren." The Priory was dedicated as DOMUS DEI ET HOSPITALE BEATAE MARIAE. At the Dissolution of Monasteries in 1539, the Hospital and lands were granted to Sir Stephen Vaughan. The District of the present Parish remained from 1539 to 1842 extra Parochial. In the year 1842, the present Church was consecrated and dedicated to St. Mary, and then became the Parish Church for the District.

ST. MARY'S, SPITAL SQUARE, NEW PARISH, Comprises the Liberties of Norton Folgate and of the Old Artillery Ground, together with that portion of Spitalfields Parish on which St. Mary's Church stands.

Education. A Mixed School.

Visiting

For a small parish against fairly numerous & well-versed opposition use of the Trust Agents. Although the money is small it is good to the owners who they work in. The chance is that at least very much less finds its way to the public house.
It is the expenses that go there, rather than the large sums withdrawn.

Day School. Mixed for boys & girls from 7 upwards.
Infants.

The school is very good. Two years ago a master was appointed head of the mixed school. When a visitor here the past the older boys always left & went to some other school. Now they don't. The school full. Under staff all women, except a pupil-teacher, son of headmaster. The school is full. No disadvantage of any kind from mixing the boys & girls.

Visiting very thorough. Regards it as the most important of all the agencies at work. Primary object to get to know the people, & in as far as possible to see that they use the ministrations of the church.

General Questions.

No. parish nursing. London & Dal's view, + good dispensary in Fournier Street. This work very well looked after.

Special use of the Hammer is to relieve the religious workers of charitable work, but this not completely expected. In the work is covered somewhat. Weekly parish relig. committee; C.O.S. line mainly for welfare. Mr. Daw a member of C.O.S. committee.

Charity amount to about £800 per annum. Of this £38 is spent in pensions, £29 coming from "Miss Vaughan's Charity" administered by this parish. [N.B. Preparation of Pensions considered not particularly important - W. V. P.]

No other place of worship in parish, except Synagogues, + there are no fewer than 8 or 9.

Mr. Daw attempts work among the Jews... he going to have a missionary, has had in being service in "Hebrew + Yiddish"; 30 or 40 present.

Praise activity of W. V. P.

Police good.

Drinks - "the old story".

There is no bad house in parish, though one is suspected.

Colubation behavior to be quite exceptional. Early marriage frequent. On the whole a good moral character given, though the reputation of the work is rather than the possession of many virtues ~~is~~ the main characteristic.

Interview with the Rev. G.T. Cull-Bennett Vicary of St. John's Church, (St. George's) at the Vicarage, 400 Commercial Road.

(Jan. 7. 98)

Mr. Cull-Bennett has been in the parish for 18 years, coming to it from a little Dorsetshire village living with a population of about 200.

The parish of St. John has a pop<sup>n</sup> of nearly 13000, + the special feature about it is its proportionately large Jewish element. When Mr. Bennett came there were very few in the parish; now he reckons that there are at least 70% Jews, & they are still increasing in every part of the parish. Mr. B. says that the bulk of them are foreigners of the poorer class. But they make better tenants than the English. Some are or another they pay more & they pay regularly. So the English gradually go. The Wesleyan Church in Cannon St. Road was turned into a synagogue 6 months ago, holds 1000 or more. & at the Wesleyan Chapel in Cable Street where sometime ago "you couldn't get a seat, now you can get a gallery".

There are no well-to-do residents & the large local employers give nothing to the church. They give, if at all, more the Parish.

They live + eat where their work is. The decline of the sugar-reaping industry to has had a great effect. Millinery buildings are all coming down, & this is far different from those which a local undertaker remembers when he used to reckon on one sugar boiler a week?

The Gentile population are mainly dockers + carriers etc. Many of the women are match-box makers. There is a considerable colony of Irish R. Cs.

Vicar + 1 curate. (For 17 years he had 2 curates but private expense due to a long break-

S. GEORGE'S EAST.

[Reprinted from "THE STANDARD," of Tuesday, Oct. 2nd, 1894.]

"Just beyond the Proof House of the Gunmakers' Company, near the Whitechapel end of the Commercial Road, begins a series of narrow streets, running at right angles to the main thoroughfare, and cutting Fairclough Street at the further extremity. More or less alike in appearance, these byways, for they are nothing else, consist entirely of small two-storied tenements, with an occasional cowshed or stable to break the monotony, and a sprinkling of little shops devoted to coal and dried fish, stale fruit and potatoes.

"There is Backchurch Lane, where the Irish resident still holds his own against the incoming Russo-Jewish settler, and Berner Street, where the window bills written in Hebrew characters proclaim the nationality of its denizens. There is Batty Street, wholly given over to the foreign tailors; Christian Street, long since an appanage of the East End Jewry; and Grove Street, where the low-pitched tenements are so far below the pavement level that the passers-by can comfortably shake hands with the residents of the top floor through the bedroom windows. And intersecting all these are a number of courts, alleys and passages, so dark and narrow, so dirty and malodorous, that the purlieus of the Seven Dials, and the back ways of Clare Market, may be called light and airy in comparison with them. Some are blind, others lead through the adjoining thoroughfare. Some branch off to right and left, others conduct one to open spaces forming irregular quadrangles, lined with houses below the street level, so small and snug that the occupier standing in the front parlour can open the door, stir the fire, reach the dust-bin outside, or make the bed inside, without stirring from the spot. Courts and alleys, streets and yards, are all densely packed, in many cases even to the cellars below, lighted by small gratings in the pavement. And the whole district, stretching from Back Church Lane on the one side to Morgan Street on the other, is the resort and principal abiding place of the East End Anarchists. In the side streets and alleys hereabouts the majority of them live and loaf —within a stone's throw are their favourite haunts, the coffee shops they patronise, and the private gambling rooms where they spend their evenings; and close by is their printing press, their temporary club and meeting house, and even the tavern where their Friday evening discussions take place." * * * * *

This is a faithful picture of the Parish of S. John the Evangelist, where for the past 15 years I have in some degree striven, with the aid of willing helpers, to do God's work. Readers will be surprised to hear, as visitors are when told, that in Grove Street above described is situated the Church of the Parish, where in spite of the surroundings, there are bright and hearty Services, and in which may be found a congregation that would do credit to more favoured localities. Those who attend are earnest and devout, and evidently come from a sense of duty. There is also a daily Morning Prayer and a very enjoyable Evening Service on Wednesdays. Holy Communion is celebrated every Thursday and Saints' Days at 7 a.m., and at 8 o'clock on Sundays.

In addition to the Church there is also a Mission Hall and Mission Chapel, where Mothers' Meetings, Social Evenings, Guilds, Bands of Hope, &c., &c., and occasional Services are held.

The poverty of the people is beyond description. I have known some of our most regular worshippers stay in bed all Sunday because they had nothing to eat if they got up.

I feel sure that all those to whom this appeal comes will deeply sympathise, and I trust will lend a helping hand. We could do much more if we had the means, many things are left undone, and much of our attempted work is sadly crippled for want of money.

The people who attend our Church Services are so poor that many of them cannot afford to give even a penny at the offertory, consequently we are always in debt; this is a great hindrance to spiritual work. It is scarcely possible for any mere written description to convey an adequate impression of the amount of sin and suffering that one comes across in the course of the daily ministrations. And while there is much to distress and dishearten there is also, thank God, much to cheer and to be grateful for.

Social Agency: A "Scientific Bible Class".

The congregation.

The Social Agency are unimportant, but there is one thing of interest, viz. The Bible Reading Union. It is really a Bible class run on scientific lines, + "wonderful" + "scientific" were the two epithets that Mr. Bennett, with genuine + simple pride applied to it. Science is his hobby, + he lectures not on purely scientific subjects. He brings the resources of his laboratory to bear on his Bible lectures, transcripts, + largely by experiment he ~~tests~~ tests to make his people realize not only the Bible story, but a little science too. The Union has gone on for 6 years, but they have only got to the end of Genesis, + the story of the Creation has clearly been a fine field for the experimenter. He tries to illustrate on many subjects, e.g. when read "God made the firmament" - "What do they know about the firmament?" So he teaches them the nature of gases + what you can do with them.

Success has attended his efforts - this class room is full. Tickets are given out at the beginning of the session, + is forfeited by 3 absence. There is a fee. Last year 48 or 50 gave him a bit and he has a simple meeting. Last week - for whom there is no room. There is a fair proportion of men.

The majority ~~of~~ of his congregation, + most of those who attend his other agencies are non-provisioned, but many of them have been

of the inner circle of communicants are those who have become personally attached to the Vicar.

The idea, however, of working on the provincial system in London is "nonsense", & he alluded gaily to the attractive force of Harry Wilson with his 74000 a year to administer, & the peripatetic ways of the members of his master's meetings, most of whom he visits at home & abroad.

The other religious agencies that he mentioned were

The George Vaux Mission (forgetful of names)

The Salvation Army "member - Whitecross".

R. C. Catholics.

Mabrogan Wat (not later Wesleyan mission) were one of because there are more houses & shops.

St. Augustine (Little St) with its own special situation.

Mr. B. is himself a moderate Quaker, & tells his people that if they get more ritual than he gives them they get too much, if less too little. But his Quakerism prevents him, I fancy, from being indifferent.

Visiting is made very difficult by the large Jewish element.

Notes.

Mr. George's account:

General Questions:

Marriage Age:

he is, I gathered, not very strong. They do "as much as possible".

They give relief almost exclusively to the sick, mainly to those they come across in visiting. There are no pensions. Mrs. Elton is quite angry, mostly in kind.

Mr. Bennett was rather bitter about the reduction by the water works of Mr. George's various Mr. George's accounts. His calculation is that these accounts ought to be divided up among the four parishes in which the original parish has been formed. As this he seems to have had in an order for a few hundredweight of coal, & this he saw broken "with his complaint". He was not with anything about.

Sanitary Administration "not too strict".

Police praised & liked.

Increase of drinking among women. Much recently a decrease among men, but lately suspect a revival of the practice. Perhaps the example of the women is beginning to tell.

Very little prostitution or crime.

Average age of the parishes he mentioned last year between 25 & 26.

- Nothing for the people to be tragedy upon.
- Even London the healthiest place in the world.

The Overcoming a positive disgust, he took enough to check.
 The Jesus the greatest offender, as also in disturbance lots of love + peace.
 - What a blessing God would be to answer! They at least get dear then. Everything they possess is overhauled.

Before leaving, Mr. Bennett showed me his laboratory in which he has the greatest interest of which he is very proud. He is a thorough man full of thorough hospitality. In his boyhood he was a Quaker or Shaker, strong + his wife I fancy, but he has very good educational advantages. But he loves his business; + his church, which he styled a "little cathedral";
 + is very human in his point of view. He complains of the isolation of the non-union clergy, mentioning the fact that he had not had a cup of tea in any one house in his parish since he came 18 years ago. He is from 50 to 60 years of age, big + bearded, but not very distinguished or impressive. His <sup>simplicity</sup> ~~strength~~ <sup>is</sup> in his simplicity of nature, his kindness, his gentleness. But these qualities do not make him an effective preacher. His parish is one of great difficulty but his success seems to be the "miraculous" Divine work, + the few personal addresses he has round him who form his congregation. It is probable, however, that some of these are drawn by their love of the place.

P.S.

Since my interview Mr Bennett has sent a Report, the letter drawing special attention to the fact that nearly 12000 persons have used the Mission House during the last six months.

The work of the parish has been well maintained during the past year, our Church congregations have been fairly good, and the services bright and hearty. Our Jubilee Service will long be remembered by our poor people.

The Mission House is a most valuable institution, without which the parochial organization could not possibly be carried on; many persons can be induced to attend a Mission Service who would not attend the Church. During the past six months 11,972 persons have made use of the Mission House, a proof of its great usefulness and that it meets a want.

During my conversation Mr Bennett mentioned in his report, & the above sentence conveys a false impression. There may be a little service, but the numbers are clearly made up by the Bible class, Band of Hope, & the work in the Mission House. An attendance of 11,972 persons at the Mission House by 170 persons weekly is not readily accounted for. Due to the prospect of coming snow is in itself a sign of weather, & it would have been ~~more~~ better from his own point of view, if the Vicar had refrained from writing the letter on the other side.

P.S.

Since my interview with Bennett has been a report, the don't - the fact that nearly 12,000 mission house during the last six months.

The parish has been well maintained year, our Church congregations good, and the services bright and bible Service will long be remembered people.
The house is a most valuable institution, the parochial organization could not be done on; many persons can be involved in a Mission Service who would not be. During the past six months have made use of the Mission House, great usefulness and that it meets a

Mr. Bennett mentioned in his report, & a false impression. There may be a little of a cloudy haze up by the Bible class, but of the Mission House. An attendance of 1000 persons weekly is not really recorded for.
The work is in itself a sign of health, & it is better from his own point of view, if the view is the better on the other side.

You will also see that nearly 12,000 persons made use of the Mission House
the first 6 months of the year (you know)
I hope that our Missionaries are all together in view of that the has some idea of a hold on the masses.

We should not have so many attendances
the last 6 months
the last 6 months
of summer
last days

In faith,
Yours truly,

Wm. Bennett

As I have by the way
I will write this.

Interview with Father Wainright: head of St. George's mission Commonly called St. Peter's, London docks, at the Georgy House, Old Gravel Lane.

(2)

Jan. 10. 98.

St. Peter's is a historic church in the annals of English Ritualism, its first head, Father Lancelotti, having been a leader in the 'Catholic Revival'.
Father Wainright was with Father Lancelotti on a cruise 25 years ago, & lived in the same capacity with Father Madhonnini, following him, I believe, <sup>some years ago</sup> as Vicar. On arrival I was shown into his study room a large & untidy place, carpet-less, curtainless, with no easy chair, & a sofa that looked as though it was never used. The ceiling was blacked, in one corner a pile of notes, clearly to be given away; few books on the shelves of a large book-case, & and nearly everywhere. The booktable on which the Vicar wrote had like a large counter & there was evidence on my hand that personal expenditure was reduced to a minimum. On one wall was a large crucifix & a few small pictures were stuck about the room. On the mantelpiece were a few photographs, some old photographs, but none I took. There were three Christmas cards (the only things felt & seen in the room) & over all a large card in memory of Father Lancelotti.

There was no fire, & the fire-stove was unlit. It was always warm, the said said, except ~~at~~ when any one came. The room light is if I did not mind, as it would do him good. He was so self-denying.

After about a quarter of an hour Father Wainright arrived, in habit and coat, & at once suggested that we should go out, so that I could see things with my own eyes. It was clearly the best thing to do, especially as Father W. wanted to go to the records, as we needed them.

After looking at the church, we went to the mortuary chapel, built by Father Lamer. There is one at St. Albans Hallam & they proposed to build one at St. Augustines, Little West. Its use in poor districts is evident, & it is reported to be in the 1846 Report as "a most valuable help, in which the friends may place the bodies of those whom they lose, & take their time over arranging the funeral (p. 17) & again in 1847 as approving the immense benefits of being the resting place for their burial of many of our people; & when our reared remember that in some cases the unadorned chapel would have been the resting-place they will understand the difference between a really church-like building with its lamp continually burning & what such resting place as when the parish mortuary would be."

In the church Father Wainright expressed the fact that all expenses of the church were met by special voluntary offering, that is, the account of the Mission & the Church are kept distinct. Everything therefore that is done for the former goes to various practical objects, mainly to the Poor Fund, & the Vicar urged the importance of this because so many people thought that money sent was spent on ritual. Reference to the statement of accounts shows that there is a good deal of drawing from one fund to the other, but they are now the less kept distinct.

From the Church we went to the schools & realized the joy they were to Father Wainright. He has within the last 2 or 3 years won a long fight with the L.S.B. who threatened to build a large school in Brethouse Lane. Now the St Peter's school provides the required accommodation & there is "no danger" of the Board school coming. £5000 has been spent, & the Board, he is told, proposed to spend £32000, & £5000 a year from the rates. Now Father Wainright's political bias is much less interesting than his personal attitude: he regards the Board as a necessary foundation for parish work; he gives the ordinary point that is raised; once known he has the influence over the children & the fulcrum on which a great deal is made to turn. Above all they give the chance of moulding religious opinion in the early years of life. In the 1895 Report he writes as follows: -

Handbook.

Surely the best decoration of a church, in God's sight, is the Altar crowded with devout communicants, whose daily life is a living witness of His truth, and the sweetest music, the singing of the little ones learning to love His House as their own Home.

Ah, if Catholics would realize this, and exercise a little self restraint in spending large sums on things that can be done without, until the schools here and elsewhere throughout the country are made perfectly sure, it would be well pleasing in God's sight. "These ought ye to have done and not to leave the others undone."

If one speaks strongly, it is because one feels, with increasing force, that the sterner part of the work, and its more real part, is not inapt to suffer, while the æsthetic part (most important in itself, it is true) is taken care of with an exaggerated zeal.

To our Schools, then, my dear friends, let us devote all our attention and bend every effort.

His hands are large, bracketing our faces on the walls, & increasing. His hair had a good deal to say to my nose about. coming tears, & slightly, towards rounded, seemed quickly fond of him. He has a delightful manner with children, a little abstracted & evasive, but overflowing with affection. They are his solace as well as his care, & I am not sure that some of the older teachers have not the same sort of feeling for him as he has for their scholars. But their affection seems to be mixed with the feeling, & if one or two could have spoken I am sure they would have said: how good he was, how devoted & self-denying, how dear the individual! But he is not forgetful of the ordinary necessities of the world. He himself keeps his up to the mark, the standard of general efficiency is going up. The boys seemed a much lower class than the girls + infants, + it appeared that a good many of the better boys go to Raines School. There are some good boys among the teachers, but they are no more so as a rule as teachers very high standards.

Cards are sent for attendance, one colour for no more requirements + another when a longer span of attendance has been received, the possession of a certain number of ~~the~~ cards entitling the holder to a pair of boots. He said that on a certain day + that on the first of them, + did not seem to think that any discrimination or gift of anything ~~of~~ boots, was necessary for any section of the children. From my own glimpse of the children I could not see the wisdom of this policy.

From the banks we walk by way of Lower Street (very poor) to White Town Place, a little blind court that is regarded as the worst spot in the parish. The people are mostly Irish Romans, but the general view gave no suggestion of extreme poverty or neglect. The court is not a narrow one. We passed a row of new houses, one-story, built on the double entry plan, making very convenient provision for two families. All the back are steps leading down to the yard. It is a type of house advocated by Father W.

In Wapping Walk was a house occupied by the Mission, with rooms for a Girls Club on the top; card-club in the middle; + a small mission-room (including perhaps too) on the ground-floor.

At Rainy R. House was a first class Room for men, open to any parishioner; + in the same building were the very pleasant rooms of the M. Chamber Club, for male communicants over 18. The desirability of making extensive provision for members of the Church has been forced upon Father W. by experience, + he mentioned that Mr. Valdes had come to the same conclusion at St. Philips.

As we passed through the street Father W. was greeted by about half the people we met, he some seemed a little shy, perhaps ashamed, + that I fancied, avoided seeing him. But the general impression given was that he was regarded as a friend, + we were welcomed by almost every child we met, many of them running across the street into his arms + all anxious for a look or word of recognition. Sometime we had a little group round us; they sometimes called their friends to us; + he was "father" to them all. We talked of their affection, + he said that the young people were also very loyal + devoted. They are almost like a village, and in as they are by the dock under the bridge, + the river, the people are much less migratory than in most parts of East London + many of those who leave come back again, partly because of the church partly because of the general as-

Opinions of friends. He has his own - to foster the corporate sense, & in every possible way regard himself not only as the pastor of the church but as the Vicar of a whole parish: "no distinction is made between good or no good, good or bad, all, as they require help have it, as far as we can afford it. Alas! that it has to be such a help in the vast ocean of need." (1895-Report, p. 7).

At an additional cost, for our Communicants, of 10/- each, we have had a portion of the Plaistow Cemetery reserved especially to ourselves. This gives something, at any rate, of the privacy which we here in London miss so greatly, and are at so great a disadvantage as compared with our country brethren who still enjoy the use of the peaceful country churchyard, and, as may easily be imagined, is much appreciated.

(from Report-1896.)

It is this present & far-seeing care; the absolute devotion; the self-sacrifice of the man in the midst of a busy & new work, provides for all of whom he cares, that explains the love that he has taken here on the parish. His following is not so much for supporters & voters than for parishioners, but it is dependent on his relationship to the latter:..

All I have to spare is truly at the MISSION'S service; but having had to insure heavily, and being considered, through the early deaths of all my family, who have now all passed away, and partly through having had, at various times, some rather sharp illnesses myself, a "bad life" by the insurance offices, and thus having to pay a heavier premium on all my policies, I cannot do all I would. It is for the Mission's sake that I have so insured that, at any rate, there may be some benefit to it in my death, if it please God to allow me, as I should myself desire, to die at my post.

Special Arrangements for Burial

Father Linder

The use of the title "Father"

The personal nature of the work

Opportunities opened up by affection

He mentioned the help that it was to him to have been in the parish with Father Linder, even saying that he owed all his influence to that fact. He values the use of the title "Father", which on the clergy assume. He gives him he says a special power, enabling him to do + say things that a plain "he" would never make possible. He probably carries some of the authority vided by the Catholic priest. He is moved about - he told me a good deal about the work, but the personal detail - persuaded anything. There is no method in his reports; they are jottings for the work - made on opportunity comes, + the spirit prompts him. And a conversation has to be somewhat of the same kind. System would shroud him up; figure rather disturbs him. He is always on the look out for the individual. Supposing, he said, there are 4 or 500 who come to church. It is not those that you think about, but those who don't come. Illustrating his point of view I can quote the following in the 1896 Report:-

And it must be borne in mind by those well-meaning, but in these matters, I venture to think, imperfectly instructed persons from the outside, who, from time to time, visit us, that the growth of the Church in such parishes as these, cannot be gauged accurately by the attendance at services. No, it is to be mostly found in the hold, more or less, that the Church has over the whole population.

The great weapon in dealing with people's sinfulness. The ~~power~~ position of the mission was made by the outbreak in Father Lander's time. So now his successor is set on the look-out for opportunities that they included may provide, "for a broken leg or small-pox". They being suffering but "from our point of view they have another side". On our road we met a woman she stopped Father Wainright to say that her son Tom had a chill & was laid up. "I'll call & see him" & then, as he rejoined us, "Tom has a providential chill", with a little kindly chuckle.

Thus, by an apparent inconsistency, this priest, whose poor fund runs into four figures; who provides a nurse; & dines for the children; & clubs for every age; who does his utmost to make people healthy & happy & himself, loving the Cross, is full of affectionateness & delight in the affectionateness of others & in all human sympathy, is led to say to us that "the grave is the great consolation".
 "You know that they are safe there. I think that funerals are the happiest part of my work - marriages the least".

He is comforted as others are by the falling away of a few, many as they grow up, & we met him or three other on our road. If he had not been afterwards I should not have known he was they were the most regular of his communicants. "They'll come back, in time" he said. ~~He is~~ ~~indicating~~ as we proceed

Rector to fishermen who had "fallen away".

at home he said that an old man lived here for whom he had been waiting for years. "I would like to know just his name". And as an illustration of the trip, the comfort he told me how the "protest riots" during Father Lander's time had recently died, he had sent for Father Wainright - ~~to make his will~~ to make his confession, & receive the Com- rite. "I made his will for him; rode to the funeral in the same coach to keep the peace between his daughter & her step-mother; & read the will to the family afterwards".

It is so difficult to understand that the Church Association has rather a rough time of it when it attempts as it did a year or two ago to protest against the ritual practices of the church. They were turned out by the crowd-people; run across the bridge by the police-people; & left all exposed from the police. "One fellow was hit - they could be very injured".

London - time came there was time to see to see & say that I stayed. Father W. took us first. He breakfasted late & had writing from then till tea, so he handed me over to the Rev. clergy. I had three others, Father Bullock, the Rev. Mr. ... Father P. ... &

Father Dudley is a man of fine years, a strong, but not highly temperance man, & "our best preacher". The headmaster of the school was at lunch. He was an entirely but quite abundant meal - cold beef, potatoes, lettuce, cheese. The three days are on moving the bricks & crossing.

From after lunch Father Wainright took me out again, to the St. John's House: (Copper Room; Parsonage Club for male Communion etc.) & the Crèche; - show me the Open Space, which he is approved of, holding that this space was wanted for building; that the people did not use it; that they did not want the house but playground. Apparently the way in which the space was used & the land required was created by Father W. We finished up in the Parsonage Room, where the sister nuns were preparing the table for one of the school teas.

There were about 12 children in the class, all but one asleep. They are taken up to school; washed; temporarily detained at school for 20 per day, from 7.30 am to 7.30 pm. The room was large & perfectly clean.

main club; a small mission room the church, to by getting of are "up to date" as he said, now that the banks are finished. "We are well-organized; what we want now is concentration". ~~But~~

If there be one special service which I think seems the most appreciated, it is the Children's Eucharist on Sundays; soon indeed the Church will be entirely inadequate for the numbers that attend it—even now it is often inconveniently crowded.

Confession

The ritual tradition of the parish.

Visiting

The other services are more or less fairly attended. Putting together the separate attendances at the several Celebrations of the Holy Eucharist on Sunday—the One Great Service—as distinct from the total numbers, which might include some who had been twice, I should think we might say 300 adults are present each Sunday morning.

Then as to the number of Confessions made. To my mind, this is by far the truest test of progress of spiritual work. And this is certainly increasingly becoming better proportioned to the Communion made, even more amongst men and lads as I have before more than once noted, than amongst women and girls.

On the importance of Confession Father W. said a good deal, speaking of it as the real test; saying that it implied courage, <sup>patience & will,</sup> & implies a stand to the test of death. On Easter Eve, in a crowded church, he said that only 10 of the ~~men~~ men would have confessed probably 100 of the women would not.

There is no resistance to any of the ritual practices of the church. He was the first church, that admitted his own traditions. The people are like loyal subjects.

The parish is divided into four districts, each under a priest, & under the priest a sister. Under the respective titles are the lady visitors. But we believe in home to home visitation with a little under the arm. The first thing is to get to know the people. Sometimes visit 3 or 4 years until 'religion' comes in. They have a nurse on the usual E.L.N.F. plan.

The charitable relief is large, but goes mostly to the sick.
The average of the "Poor fund" in the account for 1846-7 is over £800, besides a considerable sum for holidays, heat, hot etc.

There are no other religious agencies actually in the parish, except the Old French Lane Chapel and its joint services. There are very few dissenters.

They are off the line of protection, there is no such in the parish. But there is much impunity. It is a worse one than that, & after words the non-repellable ones. It is the most insidious of foes.

Highly directed from Bishop Creighton view that another

I am proud of the fact that the votes placed me, in this Ward, as regards the Guardians, at the head of the Poll, and on the Vestry second by only one vote.
I mention this as I take it, as a tribute of affection to
S. Peter's, and as an outcome of the loyalty and love felt for him who is gone to his rest.

At the <sup>end</sup> of <sup>his</sup> <sup>report</sup> some figures are given, but in 1897, after appealing for financial help + beginning to ~~devise~~ <sup>do</sup> the work itself, he writes a foreword:-

And as to the work itself, which we are endeavouring, by God's help, to carry on, it is always a difficult matter to write or speak about, for who can really know its merits or demerits but God Himself. Of what value after all are statistics? We certainly print them for what they are worth—in my humble opinion, very little —they may be interesting, but they can, by no possibility, prove anything. All we can say is that we are trying to do our best, and the results we must leave in wiser hands than ours. If we may notice anything with thankfulness it is that the number of those who attend the Service of Sunday, the Holy Eucharist, does seem to be increasing. And this is a great point, for however excellent and helpful are both Matins and Evensong, (and I believe them to be both most helpful and most excellent, and I can but deplore here, as I often do in Church when speaking to our people, that foolish idea that it is the true sign of a real Catholic to abjure both the one and the other, a very favourite idea with the young, and exceedingly convenient, as it makes the observance of Sunday very limited in its demands) still, of course, there can be no keeping of the Lord's Day by those people who stay away from the Lord's Service, and therefore one does rejoice that there should be, I think we may honestly say, a steadily increasing number, who do make a point of doing their duty in this respect.

Interview with the Rev. G. Davenport
Vicar of St. Mark, Whitechapel on the vicarage

7/10
M 2
Jan. 22. 1905

Mr. Davenport has been at St. Mark for 27 years. He is as present in ill-health & ought probably to be put on the retired list. He is now a question whether his parish, like that of some others in Whitechapel, ought not to be merged again in the great parish of St. Mary & workers from there as mission districts. The rapid judaizing of the neighbourhood opens up the whole question of the appropriate parochial areas. In the City the problem arises from the disappearance of a resident population; in Jewish East-London from the increase of the non-Christian element.
Apart from the schools there is little to be found in St. Mark's as a present worker, to justify its existence.

Mr. Davenport & his daughter were present at the interview & one of them had filled up the accompanying form. Without any conscious wish to mislead, they gave the strong impression of wishing to disguise the fact that affairs in the parish were in the worst-possible condition, & that work was constantly creeping up that tended to show that even the little work rests largely on a foundation of bribery.

of St. Mark's Whitechapel

[Where possible, a comparison should be made between Past and Present.]

It is not intended that this Form should be filled up, but it may be found useful for making notes preparatory to an interview.

Estimated that from 1/2 to 2/3 of the people are nominally Christians.

The Church had 700. The "hall in Commercial St." is outside the parish, has been recently taken, without the real approval of the Bd. by the Jewish courts for meeting for the Jews.

The refuge for men in which there is a daily service is run by the Kilburn Sisters. Men pay 1s. [The curate who goes is a poor old fellow, one of the pathetic figures that one meets in the streets of Whitechapel. He is almost as old as his vicar, & like him ought to be superannuated. He probably performs some beaten round of duties with complete devotion & complete ineffectiveness.]

It was difficult to get at numbers for the Sunday congregation but 150 in the morning & 200 in the evening (mostly women) are eventually mentioned.

The transcripts however that date half the morning congregation are children, & toward the end of our talk "free breakfast" on Sunday morning were mentioned. These are given in the winter to about 100 people, some of children brought on from school, & the rest adults who turn up. I could not quite learn on what any basis of collection. I asked if those who breakfasted

(which they did at 10) came on to church & the Vicar said they did, adding - "how long they stop, I don't know". Mr D. cried in - "Oh! they stop, my dear", he is so fondly dear that you could shatter away the genuine skull-congregation, following the choir, almost to zero. It is extremely doubtful whether you really go on an average in the evening, even when Mr D. is well. Mr W. said that his illness appeared marked a good deal, but the whole clerical trio would be a very weak attracting force.

The Schools are the important bit of work in the parish, but the worry of raising the necessary funds "dominate everything". Gower's work fund is managed by a body of trustees & is non-parochial.

The visiting is not thorough but it is claimed that they are in touch with the people, though living in their midst. About 12 persons are said to help.

Charitable help is given to an irrespective of creed. It is claimed that the relations are very friendly with all. But the few years' special clerical for them, & show their dislike by putting him on the church door etc. Due to the Dampford personality they show good will. The friends could only succeed in raising one of the points, & Mr. D. warmly thanked them for their ~~kindness~~ ~~and interest~~ in his relations with us & so friendly of us we were ~~not~~ for their prayers for the help he was able to give their expectations of relief. Mr. Brown is a member of the C.O.S. Committee.

There were 575 Communion in an hour year; 28 in Easter; regular communions 50-60.

Sunday School - Register 150; Average 100. Terms 12.
With the above attendance is a small one for that so things were given away. The vicar mentioned this in correcting a too low estimate of the number given by his daughter.

The ~~only~~ only fact that tended to modify a very adverse opinion that most one feel rather a brute in coming to do was Mr. Brown's very sincerely weak health, & a vision of Mr. Brown's futile devotion in the background.

At last the Committee have the satisfaction of announcing to their subscribers and friends that the work of reconstruction and enlargement is now complete. The numbers on the School Books are now over 600, and everything is in excellent order. The Grant for the year, including the Fee Grant for the quarter, is £419 5s. 6d., as against £390 15s. last year. The following are from the Reports of the Diocesan and Her Majesty's Inspectors:—

Extracts from Diocesan Report, June 19th, 1896.

BOYS' SCHOOL, DIVISION I.—“The Boys answered well in the Bible Subjects. The explanation of the Catechism should be gone into more generally and deeply.”

DIVISION II.—“The Subjects were generally well known, and the Boys answered brightly and intelligently.”

DIVISION III.—“Catechism repetition might be a little more accurate, otherwise this Division did creditably.”

GIRLS' SCHOOL.—“The Girls' School has again passed a good examination. In Division I. great pains have been taken to make the lessons in the Catechism definite and useful. Commendable pains have been bestowed upon Division II. I was pleased with the answering in Division III., but should like to find the knowledge more thoughtful.”

INFANTS' SCHOOL.—“The Infants' School is carefully and reverently taught, and passed, on the whole, a very good examination. The answering in both Divisions was correct and pleasing. More attention should be given to individual repetition.”

Government Report, January 19th, 1897.

BOYS' SCHOOL.—“The Schoolroom is warmed by new open fire-places in an effectual manner, and is ventilated as well as circumstances permit. The order, on the whole, is generally satisfactory, but it should be stronger in the first standard. The instruction, taken as a whole, is sufficiently good to justify the payment of the higher Principal Grant.”

GIRLS' SCHOOL.—“The Girls are in excellent discipline, and are taught with accuracy and success. The Class-room seemed to be overcrowded. This should be avoided in the future.”

INFANTS' SCHOOL.—“The Infants are in good order, and, considering the sudden influx of a large number of children, owing to the closing of the Darby Street Board School, the instruction is, on the whole, satisfactory. The Reading might be improved, and the Object Lessons be still more productive than they are of habits of observation and thought.”

To the Parishioners of St. Mark's, Whitechapel.

MY DEAR FRIENDS,

The past year has been marked throughout by much anxiety; old friends have left the neighbourhood, and their places have not been filled by newcomers, but though the number of our kind helpers diminishes, yet those still with us have again been more than kind, and my heart is full when I think of them. I have again to thank Mrs. Tarratt most gratefully for her liberal assistance. Sir Richard and Lady Dickeson have afforded me much needed help. The Rev. C. Dale-Williams, Rector of Brondesbury, and his estimable partner have laboured very earnestly with us in the Lord. The Misses Teape have been indefatigable; the numbers attending their Mothers' Meeting are larger than ever, while Miss Squier's Meeting has been greatly blessed, and the numbers are well sustained. His Honour Judge Bacon continues his loving sympathy and interest in our work. I desire especially to thank Richard C. Michell, Esq., for his wealth of love and sympathy, not only to the Parish generally, but also to myself individually, and I am also deeply indebted to Miss Jenner, of 49, Eversfield Place, St. Leonard's-on-Sea. Miss Gardiner has again been most kind. Miss Fenner has kindly sent £5 10s. 0d. to be expended for the Sunday School. Mrs. Williams and her devoted co-workers, Miss Fisher and the Home Work Society, Mrs. Aske, The Misses Cory, Mrs. Allen and R. C. Michell, Esq., have all sent most valuable parcels of warm and useful garments during the year. I thank them all most warmly. I gratefully acknowledge the obligations I am under to the Churchwardens, Day and Sunday School Teachers, Miss Smith and Mrs. Field, and all who labour with me in the Lord. May God bless them.

Wishing you all a very happy and prosperous New Year.

I am, my dear Friends,

Affectionately Yours,

GEORGE DAVENPORT.

 since 1862.

A SHORT HISTORY OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH AND ITS ASSOCIATIONS.

UNTIL the year 1825, no effort had been made by the Church of England to evangelize the large number of seamen entering the Port of London. On July 20, 1825, a meeting was held at the London Tavern, Bishopsgate, presided over by the Lord Mayor, "to consider the best means to promote the spiritual welfare of the seamen and their families of the Port of London." It was resolved that a Society should be established and called—

The London Episcopal Floating Church Society.

A Committee was formed, which held its meetings at 32, Sackville Street, Piccadilly. A Chaplain was appointed to visit the seamen afloat between London Bridge and the Pool, and the seamen's families on shore. A suitable boat was provided, and two seamen engaged to assist the Chaplain. A room also was engaged in Wapping, where services were held and a Sunday School opened. His Majesty King George IV. was so impressed with the importance of this effort that His Majesty became patron and contributed annually £50 for its support, which he continued until his death. His Majesty, King William IV., also contributed £50 per annum until his death.

The Admiralty gave the ship Brazen for the purpose of a Floating Church. The first service was held on Good Friday, March 24, 1826, and divine service was continued to be held regularly until 1845, when it was found that the old Brazen was no longer serviceable, on account of its decayed condition from age.

The traffic on the river had so enormously increased, that there was no longer accommodation for a ship to be permanently moored.

The docks also had been constructed and established by this time, and the system of retaining the crews on board to discharge the cargo abandoned, and the men resided on shore at the Sailors' Home, the Boarding Houses, or with their families, consequently a Floating Church was no longer necessary.

It was felt, therefore, that the great object of the Society viz., that of benefiting the families of the seamen, as well as the men themselves, could be better carried out by having a Church built on shore. A meeting was called "for the purpose of placing the Episcopal Floating Church Society on a more permanent footing," and held at the London Tavern, on April 30th, 1845, presided over by Lord HADDINGTON. Amongst those who advocated the cause were Admiral Sir EDWARD PARRY and Captain Sir JOHN FRANKLIN, R.N., K.C.H., there were also present several of the officers of the Erebus and Terror, which were about to sail to the Arctic Regions—the fate of which Expedition is now a matter of history.

The following resolution was carried unanimously:—

"That a subscription be entered into for the purpose of erecting and endowing under trust, according to the provisions of the 1st and 3rd William IV., cap. 38 (Building Churches in Populous Places) a church with free sittings for seamen frequenting the port of London."

A number of gentlemen formed themselves into a Building Committee. Ground was purchased of the Commissioners of H.M. Woods and Forests, in Dock Street. It was felt that the building of the Church in Dock Street would also materially assist in carrying out the great desire of the founders of that noble institution, the Sailors' Home, which had been built ten years previously.

H. R. H. The Late PRINCE CONSORT,
ON MONDAY, MAY 11, 1846,

AND
THE CHURCH CONSECRATED

By The Right Rev. CHARLES JAMES BLOMFIELD,
The LORD BISHOP OF LONDON,

ON JULY 10, 1847,

AT WHICH CEREMONY

H. R. H. The Late PRINCE CONSORT was present.

A conventional district was assigned to it in accordance with the Act of Parliament, 1 and 3 William IV., cap. 38, which district, slightly modified, has since been legally assigned. It includes the London and St. Katharine Docks and River Thames, to the end of the Pool.

Divine Service which had been held regularly on board the Ship Brazen from 1825 was now to cease. The last Service was held on May 31st, 1847.

The old Brazen, having fulfilled her purpose, was immediately removed from her moorings, where she had laid for twenty-seven years, and taken to the dockyard and broken up.

The Society could now no longer be called "The Floating Church Society," as the Church was on shore, so the Society had to take its title henceforth from the name of the church—

ST. PAUL'S, DOCK STREET,
CHURCH for SEAMEN of the PORT of LONDON.

The office was at this time at 32, Sackville Street, but about five years afterwards was removed to King William Street, and again removed, in 1865, to Dock Street.

His Royal Highness the late Prince Consort ever took the greatest interest in the Church. When the Church was being built, he presented a very beautiful Stained Glass Window of two lights for the East end, and also the brilliant St. Katharine window above it.

Only three years before his lamented death, he gave a very handsome Silver Service for the Holy Communion, and a strong Oak Chest to contain it, with a brass plate engraved—

PRESENTED TO
ST. PAUL'S CHURCH FOR SEAMEN, WHITECHAPEL,
BY HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS
THE PRINCE CONSORT,
1858.

The Church has been greatly improved from time to time as repairs were needed. All the windows had so decayed from the lead-work having perished, that many were blown out by the wind. They have all been replaced in a substantial manner, and filled with Cathedral glass. The large three-light window at the West end has been filled with stained glass in memory of the late Captain Sir JOHN FRANKLIN, R.N., K.C.H., who died June 11th, 1847, in the Arctic Expedition, in lat. 69° 37' 42" N., long. 95° 41' W. The subject is—

CHRIST PREACHING FROM THE SHIP.	CHRIST SAVING PETER FROM SINKING.
CHRIST STILLING THE TEMPEST.	THE MIRACULOUS DRAUGHT OF FISHES.

There is a fine window on the north side, in memory of Admiral Sir EDWARD W. PARRY, the great Arctic navigator, born December 19th, 1790, died July 8th, 1855. The subject is—"The peril of the Hecla when forced against an Iceberg in 1825." Admiral Sir Edward W. PARRY formerly attended the Church every Sunday morning for nearly four years and read the lessons.

There is also another window at the east-end, which represents the "Wreck of the Gossamer," Captain THOMPSON, off Prawle Point, near Dartmouth, on December 10th, 1868, when the Captain and his wife (only married ten days), two passengers, and nine seamen were drowned. The ship was outward bound for Australia. The Captain and his wife and many of the crew were at this Church the previous Sunday, and attended Holy Communion.

There are also two other very fine windows—one to the memory of Mr. JOHN BUTLER, the first Churchwarden, and the other to the memory of Mrs. GRAVELEY, the wife of another Churchwarden.

There are also the following Memorial Tablets in Marble, to commemorate the deaths of four lads who were educated in St. Paul's Schools, and were regular Communicants:—

JAMES HENRY NOBBS,

JANE ELIZABETH,
WIFE OF
THOMAS BALDING,
LATE MANAGER & SECRETARY OF THE SAILORS' HOME, AND A MEMBER OF THIS CHURCH FOR THE PAST FORTY YEARS.
BORN DEC. 2, 1823. DIED JULY 31, 1892.

The work of the Society, which began in 1825, has been continued to the present time in visiting the ships on the river, and the families on shore. The district having been legally assigned to the Church, the great object of the Society has been closely pursued in its great Missionary work with abundant success.

The whole of the St. Katharine Docks and the London Docks, throughout their entire length, and also the Regent's Canal Basin, and the River from London Bridge to the Pool, have been continuously visited; also the Boarding Houses, both English and Foreign. Those seamen living in private houses are left for the ordinary parochial visitation of the Rectors and Vicars of their respective parishes.

The following is a list of the Chaplains from the commencement:—

1. The Rev. HORATIO MONTAGUE, formerly a Lieutenant in H.M. Navy, resigned January 28th, 1828.
2. The Rev. JAMES HOUGH, resigned January 1st, 1830.
3. The Rev. JAMES DAVIS, M.A., resigned to take the post of Ordinary of Newgate, January 5th, 1834.
4. The Rev. NEVILLE JONES, resigned September, 1842.
5. The Rev. CHARLES A. J. SMITH, M.A., appointed to the Perpetual Curacy of Macclesfield, May 31st, 1847.

Since the building of the Church—

1. Rev. CHARLES BESLEY GRIBBLE, M.A., appointed July 10th, 1847; resigned April, 1858, to be Chaplain of the English Embassy, Constantinople. Died in 1878, and interred at Malta.
2. Rev. ROBERT HALL BAYNES, M.A., appointed April, 1858; resigned August, 1862, to be Vicar of Holy Trinity, Maidstone.
3. Rev. DAN GREATOREX, B.D., appointed October 21st, 1862.

H. R. H. the late Prince Consort, at the laying of the foundation stone of the Church, expressed the hope, that now a Church was provided for the Seamen and their families, the welfare of their children should not be lost sight of.

This excellent hope was realised in 1870, when Their Royal Highnesses The Prince and Princess of Wales opened the splendid Schools in Wellclose Square, to accommodate 800 children. Again, this benevolent desire was fully carried out when the Infant Nursery was erected in 1874, and opened by Their Royal Highnesses The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh.

Population.

The population is one mainly following outside employment, but there are also carriers, a few city police, + a certain number working on Howard's Brewery. The lot are the best of the lot live in Howard Street, occupying some 18 of the 26 houses. Some of the street belongs to the brewery but in a few of the houses own-ers families live + there is much cooking. The 3 or 4 of the houses (see later) are said to be used for immoral purposes. There are only a few Jews in the parish.

Staff.

Vicar + 1 curate. Mission women 16 S. Coast Tenders.
 4 British Visitors + Mr Perry. (Two of the latter live in the parish + two of them are connected with the Brewery - Mr Walker + Mr John).

a good man on the "social" side, but no visiting, <sup>except the min.</sup> + little other, parsonial work was on. his features had however been more or less indicated for 1 year.

Sunday morning congregation - about 20 adults.
 evening - - - 150 - (There were not 6 before Mr. Perry came).

Sunday school: about 170 regular + attendances
 Thursday evening mission service. "a few".
 Communion (regular) 80-90.
 Mothers Meeting.

The Chapel is occupied by from 30-40 children daily, 4c per per. - Sundays. 3c per day is charged. The net cost of the place is $170 a year.

Band Hope - 50.

Mr. Perry's own social work has hardly begun. He has not yet really settled in, + is at present living in temporary rooms at Broad St. his plan he got to the Village proposed - about - and temporary work etc.

The funds are few. About $500 of the total cost $1100 has to be

Raised. They get $100 a year from the United Chapel Foundation.

Visiting - Mr Barry regard to the foundation of his work, & he himself gives at least 12 hours a week to it. The whole parish has been visited since he came, he this year having together with his wife visited a large part of it. They are discovering a satisfactory amount of responsiveness - much more than in Bradley. He does not know why it should be, but suggests as a possible explanation that it is "Virgin soil". [This is another way of saying that the people in Bradley had got rather sick of their Pastor's activity].

Arrangement are being made to secure a B. Nurse for the parish.

A Relief Committee meets weekly, & works more or less on Col. line. He expects the relief sum amount to about $100 a year.

Spoke very lightly of the Seaman's Bethel. Says they are doing very badly; have a great debt, & that the distribution of tracts on Sunday afternoons is the only work. Thinks there is a lot of history on the Indragang bar (Colo - London Watergen mission).

They have a large Sunday school.

A great many R.C.s in St. Katherine's District. The Bowyer

Mr. Perry "wonder what mind" corresponding with other religious bodies on social things, but not on religious matters. He will be reminded that it was Mr. Perry who was a visitor ~~to~~ from the Dennis Bitch that the "wonder what" came in his parish: "they were his people". He is probably not an intellectual man, but like his brother in Bowley, he likes to feel that his parish is his own successful show. I remember the letters of Bowley's offensive & half-considered objection in the decline & drooping by the Church & Roman. cathos.
The Vicar of St. Paul is less aggressive & less unctuous than his brother but he is certainly not a man of wide sympathies or ambitious nature. When I got to the Church for the appointment he was just finishing a Celebration of the Holy Communion. There was a vacant place (one from Mr. Perry) & as he walked away bearing the secret words the conversation rose & I had a feeling of regret that I should ~~have~~ immediately after he had proposed the more secret office of the Church, have to bring him down to fact & figures. But the contact was almost unendurable between the figure & my imagination as I had viewed from the

for all the church, & the very ordinary, practical, limited man with whom I was a few minutes later talking in the vestry.

General questions: Drink & Prostitution

Drink is "awful". The greatest obstacle to reform are drink & in-sobriety. There are sets of hostels in the other side of Wall St. in the adjacent courts (front Allen St). The Sailors Home is Wall St. bring the women round. Land - marks that they are they are always hovering round.

There are 3 or 4 houses of an unusual character in Court St. occupied by a better class of women, & used by City men. Often see houses coming round in the middle of the day.

Mr. Kettering's Billings has a bad name. He would like to have the pulled down.

Not much crime. Queen St (Court of Royal into St) the worst in the parish.

An excellent - Long Bank. Has about £1200 in, & only £540 taken out at times.

Housing in the parish largely dwelling. Mr. Kettering's has, & several large & insanitary houses in Queen St. Rent high. So near the City but demands paid. Regulations in some building as to size of families make it very hard for Crime.

Housing.

One purple to get long. Head of woman the other day also had triplet: the mother she felt she was born to have one in his hands].

Mr. Parry is a man of about 40; complexion clear like his brother but of somewhat taller & lighter build.

The following report is the last issued by his predecessor. He is an interesting account of work in a part decided by his success<sup>or</sup> being well practically neglected, leaving it "virgin soil" for him. Mr. Parry said nothing to me about the work apart, & did not lead me to suppose that he was undertaking it.

The late Vicar's Report:

TO THE SUBSCRIBERS, AND FRIENDS OF
 ST. PAUL'S, WHITECHAPEL,
 (The Church for Seamen of the Port of London.)

MY DEAR FRIENDS,

It is with thankfulness that I am again spared to give you a brief account of the work done in this Parish during the past year. Some of you are aware that in the earlier part of the year I suffered from an attack of the terrible Influenza, which confined me to my bed for a month. I was in hopes I had quite recovered, but in ten days afterwards I had a relapse, which kept me in bed another month. I then went to Bromley, in Kent, for a change of air, and in a fortnight I got much better, but unhappily on Whit Sunday at three o'clock in the morning I was seized with a stroke of Paralysis. I am thankful to say that after the serious illness, I was able to give a general supervision of the work, and am glad to say I am gradually getting stronger.

I am glad to be able to report that the work, both ashore and afloat, has been abundantly blessed.

On looking back to the time when I took charge of this Parish, thirty-three and a half years ago, with its narrow courts and alleys, and its degraded population, and the vast field of work amongst the Seamen, whose spiritual state was very sad, and the drunkenness and vice reigned supreme, I see the change is great.

Now all is changed, courts and alleys have been replaced by blocks of well constructed buildings, and open vice and profligacy, which formerly existed, has now almost wholly passed away, and given place to orderly conduct and moral living, so that few parishes, consisting of the labouring classes, are quieter or better conducted.

The Seamen, who have naturally our sympathy and care, have greatly improved in every sense, both spiritually and morally.

In former times they had not been properly cared for but now there is no other class that more is done for; but it is most important that the Seamen should receive attention, as they are really the representatives of our Nation's Christianity in all parts of the world, wherever a British ship floats.

I am thankful to be able to state that, whereas in former days drunkenness may be said to have been the rule amongst the Seamen, now it may be said to be the exception. At one time it was common to see thirty to forty men during the day in a helpless state through drink, but now you may go for many weeks and scarcely see one. There is, perhaps, no parish in which so many licensed houses are wholly closed, or nearly so, as this. Surely we may "thank God and take courage" for this improvement.

Ever since 1825 the work amongst the Seamen of the Port of London has been carried on successively by our beloved Church to the present time, and is the oldest by many years of any Church Mission in existence; it has not only been established to benefit the Seamen themselves but also their wives and children.

When it is considered how large is the number of Seamen in the Merchant Service who lose their lives suddenly by shipwreck, or otherwise drowned (over 4000 annually) the importance of this work cannot be over estimated.

During the months of February and March the weather was very severe, and the Docks were all frozen over, and ships could neither come in nor go out, consequently the distress and suffering was very great. In addition to the severe distress amongst the shore population, the Seamen suffered greatly, and I had to give dinners daily to Seamen, who were starving, and sometimes I had as many as 105 men to feed.

I am sorry to say that the income is not sufficient to meet all the expenses. It will seen that the balance due to me, as Treasurer, are still very large.

In consequence of the Sanitary Officers finding fault with the drainage and lavatories during my illness, a large expense was incurred, but WILLIAM HOARE, Esq., and the other Members of the Committee raised a special fund to meet the expenses, so that the weight should not press upon me when I was so ill. I feel deeply indebted to them for their kindness. Details of the Special Appeal will be found on pages 71 and 72.

Many valued friends have passed away during the year, amongst them being PETER BRACHI, Esq., who was one of the Committee for a quarter of a century.

I have been ably assisted by my staff of workers, viz:—
The Rev. FRANCIS JEPHCOTT, M.D., Curate—Mr. Thos. J. BOOTH, Scripture Reader to the English Seamen—Mr. G. H. GILLMAN, Missionary to the Foreign Seamen—Mr. JOSEPH ETTRIDGE, Missionary to the District, and Mrs. S. A. PAGE, Mission Woman—all of whom have worked faithfully.

I am sorry to say that my appeal for funds, for an extra Scripture Reader, to my populous and ever changing flock, has not been responded to.

Our Church Services are of a bright and cheerful character; have been well attended and appreciated during the past year; and the Services on board Ship have been carried on with much zeal and fervour, and with most encouraging results.

Divine Service in Church.—The attendance is still very gratifying, the aggregate number during the past year being 3,600 Seamen, making a total attendance of 486,800 since the opening of the Church.

The following is a very short outline of "OUR WORK," which I will give in three divisions:—

- 1.—Seamen, English and Foreign.
- 2.—Homes in the Parish.
- 3.—Children and Infants.

1.—SEAMEN.

WORK AMONGST ENGLISH SEAMEN.

The London and St. Katharine Docks, the Shipping and Barges on the River as far as the Pool, Boarding Houses, and Shipping Offices, are daily visited.

The Ships, Sailing Barges, and Lighters are daily visited, and every opportunity is taken to impress upon both Officers and Men the importance and the happiness of true religion and a daily walk with God, so that the good work began in 1825 by those noble Christian Workers, under the name of the Episcopal Floating Church Society, has been continued to the present time.

The Boarding Houses are regularly visited, and I am glad to say that both myself and my workers are always welcomed by the Boarding Masters.

I am glad to be able to report that Temperance is making a great advance amongst the men. A large number of Officers and Seamen are total abstainers, 151 having enrolled during the year. To all those who value the work of Temperance amongst Seamen, this result will be most gratifying, as the "drink" is the hindrance of all good.

Ships' Lending Libraries.—These are Boxes of Books put on board Ships for the use of the Crews during the voyage. Very much more could be done if the Captains would take more interest. The fund is greatly in my debt.

The Sailors' Home.—This valuable institution has our special attention. I am assisted in the work by Mr. CARROLL, Scripture Reader, who gives his whole time to the spiritual work amongst the men, conversing and holding Mission Meetings. I am thankful to say our labours have not been in vain.

The following is a summary of the Visits to English Seamen :—

642 visits to seamen on board ship ;
 53 " " on barges ;
 413 " " in boarding houses and shipping offices ;
 154 readings and short services on board ship ;
 81 services held on shore, at which an aggregate of 1,971 seamen have attended ;
 15,310 tracts have been distributed ;
 93 copies of the Holy Scriptures sold ; and 30,604 seamen have been individually spoken to.
 151 seamen enrolled as members of the Church of England Temperance Society.
 95 Prayer Books and Hymn Books have been circulated, exclusive of Tracts and Scriptures given for use on the voyage, which amount to many thousands.

WORK AMONGST FOREIGN SEAMEN.

This work of visiting Foreign Seamen on board ship and in the Foreign Boarding Houses requires the greatest amount of prudence, tact, and boldness, coupled with earnest zeal, on the part of the Missionary. It is the most difficult part of our work. I feel I cannot speak too highly of the labours and persevering zeal of Mr. GILLMAN—the Missionary.

Few can realize the labour of visiting Foreign Vessels of all descriptions which are to be found alongside the Quays near London Bridge, and the various Docks down as far as the Albert Docks; the distances are far and the bodily fatigue very great. Further, it requires great courage to go on board ship and into Boarding Houses to speak to men of various nationalities, who, if they have any religion at all, are most prejudiced and ignorant. I am thankful to say the visits are now very rarely resented. Finding they are addressed in their own tongue, the men give a respectful and attentive hearing.

Mr. GILLMAN reports :—

Goodness and mercy has again followed our work. The strangers who have come to our docks and wharves during the past year have been daily visited; strength has been given for daily efforts which have been put forth for the spiritual well-being of these Roman Catholic Spaniards, Portuguese, French, and Italian seamen. We have also worked among Greeks and Austrians, Germans and Scandinavians; among all a kindly reception has been given. When these men have seen that efforts were being made for their care, and protection from danger in our streets, and for making known in their own tongue something of the wonderful work of God, then they have valued it. We have shown to them in the Scriptures which have been distributed among them, and in the tracts which they have taken to sea for further reading, the importance of a Godly life. Religious services have been held in their cabins, and we are glad to say many have taken a part in them. It is hoped that those thousands of foreigners who have stayed with us, even if only a few days, may be much the better and none the worse for their visit to the Port of London.

Our care, too, has extended beyond the London Docks, for when during the past summer a squadron of Spanish war vessels put into Plymouth the "warmth" of their reception was not equalled by that which was shown them when they came on a previous visit 300 years ago—only then it was "defence," and not "defiance." Last year it was "good will towards them" in which we were able to take part. We stayed in Plymouth eight days while they were there, and guiding, helping, and caring for these Spaniards, and of the 1200 who were there all were more or less influenced for good. It was a matter of satisfaction to know that many loudly proclaimed how they should make known at home how kindly they were received in England.

The following is a summary of the Foreign work :—

Services held in Foreign languages.

48	Services in Spanish have been held on board ship;
15	" in French " "
11	" in Italian " "
Total .. 74	Services, at which there has been an aggregate attendance of 645 Spaniards, Portuguese, French, Italians, and Germans.

Visits to Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, and other Foreign ships.

349	Visits have been made to Spanish and Portuguese ships;
107	" " to French and Italian ships;
346	" " to Scandinavian ships;
79	" " to Foreign Boarding Houses.
Total .. 881	Visits.

583 Readings on board Spanish and other Foreign ships, at which there has been an aggregate attendance of 3,889 Spanish and Portuguese seamen; 1,474 Italian and French seamen; and 1,641 Scandinavian and German seamen.

There have also been distributed in Foreign Languages—

125	copies of the Scriptures in Spanish;
55	" " in Italian and French;
19	" Prayer-books in Spanish;
662	" Gospels and portions in Spanish and Portuguese;
402	" " in Italian;

2.— HOMES IN THE PARISH.

The Visitation of the Parish is carried on by myself and Curate, assisted by Mrs. PAGE, Mission Woman, and Mr. JOSEPH HENRY ETTRIDGE, City Missionary.

Visitation.—The residents in the parish are all of the labouring class, such as seamen, stevedores, dock and waterside labourers, and a few shopkeepers and tradesmen. There are not 40 families whose incomes would average forty shillings per week.

Constant visitation has caused a very marked improvement in many homes. The improvement is seen in the personal appearance of the people and their children. Many who were careless and indifferent and rarely attended Public Worship are now regular attendants at Church and Holy Communion.

I and my staff of workers attend at the Committee Room of the Schools every morning (except Saturdays and Sundays) from 9 until 10.30 to see cases of need, and to receive any who desire counsel.

The following is a summary of this Parochial work :—

18,608	Visits have been made;
11	Cottage Services have been held, at which there has been an aggregate attendance of 189 persons;
2,947	Readings of the Scriptures;
17,867	tracts; and 38 copies of the Scriptures have been distributed.
7,560	Visits to common Lodging Houses and Warehouses.

Mothers' Meetings are held in the Mission Room, Wellclose Square, every Monday afternoon, from two to four o'clock, and have been well attended during the year.

This Parish Mission is most useful, and its success is most encouraging. Details of the work will be found in the Report.

I am much indebted to Mrs. THOMPSON, of the Tower of London, for her kindness in acting as Secretary, and also to Mrs. JEPHCOTT for her kindness in reading to the mothers.

The Penny Bank and Provident Fund is still doing an excellent work. By its means many a home has been saved from being broken up, by having a little money put by which enabled the rent to be paid. I am greatly indebted to my kind friends who assist from time to time.

This division of our work consists of the following—

1.—The Day Schools.—These are well attended. The children receive a good, sound education, and are well instructed in God's Holy Word. There is a deficiency of funds of £27 6s. 6d.

2.—The Sunday Schools.—These are doing a great work. The little ones are taught to value God's Holy Word, and to love their Saviour, and to follow Him fully; but like most other Schools we suffer from want of more teachers. There is a deficiency of funds of £5 19s. 2d.

3.—The Clothed Scholars' Fund, for clothing the fatherless children of Seamen and others. In order to overcome the deficiency of funds, the vacancies have not all been filled, hence this excellent charity has only been able to benefit two-thirds of the number of fatherless ones it might otherwise have done. Are there no lovers of fatherless children who will help me in this time of need? The receipts were less than the expenditure by £29 4s. 4d.

4.—The Children's Branch of the Church of England Temperance Society.—The Meetings have been held every Wednesday evening from 6 to 7 o'clock, and are most successful. It is a matter of great thankfulness that some 600 children have enrolled themselves amongst the total abstainers.

5.—The Infant Nursery.—This is doing a good and substantial work. There has been a deficiency of £23 18s 6d during the past year. The Annual Subscriptions fall short of the necessary amount by about £75, consequently Donations to that amount are required.

6.—The Wilfred Cottage Hospital.—This is a most valuable institution. I am sorry to say that I have only four annual subscribers to its funds. I feel very sad that this admirable effort to benefit the little sick children should meet with such small sympathy from the public. Only very urgent cases can be received, and it has often given much pain to Dr. LOANE and Dr. F. J. OXLEY to have their efforts to benefit the children so crippled for want of funds. They have given most untiring attention to the little patients. There is a balance due to Treasurer of £9 9s. 7d.

7.—The Children's Dinner Fund.—This has proved a great blessing to the poor children. It is impossible to speak too highly of this important branch of "Our Work." The colour has been brought into the cheeks of many poor little ones by the good and wholesome food given to them.

The success of this effort has mainly depended upon the kind and liberal assistance I have received from that valuable institution — The Destitute Children's Dinner Society—a Society which deserves the support of every one who can feel sympathy with little hungry children.

I trust it will be seen from these simple and brief statements of "Our Work," that a large and valuable work is being carried on to benefit those living in this poor East End Parish and for the Seamen of the Port of London. The only hindrance to an increase of usefulness is want of funds.

Full particulars of each Charity will be found detailed in the statements of the respective Charities in the succeeding pages.

To all those who have helped me, either by their gifts or personal assistance, I tender my most sincere thanks.

I would also desire to thank The Church Pastoral Aid Society and The East London Church Fund, for their help to provide my Curate's stipend; to The Mission to Seamen's Society for their grant of a Scripture Reader; to The London City Mission Society for the grant of two Missionaries. To these Societies I am indebted for the greater part of my staff of workers.

It is a great privilege to do any work, however humble in the cause of our Heavenly Master, especially in the sphere of labour to which we are called—to benefit those whose calling is on the "great deep"—He Himself having set us the example by selecting His first followers from those whose calling was to labour on the Sea of Galilee.

I pray that the Lord Himself will enable us all to do more for Him in the future than we have done in the past to work with a single eye to His glory in winning souls to Him, having the full assurance that "our labour is not in vain in the Lord."

Bélieve me,

Your faithful friend in Christ Jesus,

Interview with the Rev. Michael Rosenthal, Missioner to the East London Mission to the Jews.
at 32 Navarino Road, Dalston. Jan. 20.

Mr Rosenthal was won to the Christian Church 20 years ago, by the present Bishop of St. Andrews, then Rector of St. Peter's, Eaton Square. Before that he had been a Jewish Rabbi, & had preached in various Synagogues in many countries. He was a well-known Jew therefore, & it is his past-history that gives him special power as a Missioner. The Jews know him & know of him, & many are drawn by curiosity to hear & see him. He is humorously speaking 'the most successful Missioner', & is consequently the most disliked by the unconverted Jews. He has been working at the Jewish Mission for 21 years, & for the last 6 years exclusively. Previously he had been also curate at St. Paul's, Haggerston.

The active operations of the Jewish Mission are carried on only in East London, but Jews of all kinds find their way to him, & he has baptized Jews of all classes.

Beside Mr Rosenthal 8 lay workers are employed in the Mission.

Building:

Service etc.

Numbers.

The Mission Hall is on Commercial Road, (in St. Augustines Parish). The church is licensed. The building holds about 250. There is also a reading room open from 5-9, & other smaller rooms. There is a small orphanage for about 12 children in Dalton.

The regular Sunday service is at 11, with good collection. The reason given for having no evening service is that the work is regarded as being of a preparatory kind. They do not want to keep new people at the mission, but rather that they should accustom themselves to attend their own parish churches. In the same way it is preferred that baptism shall be performed by their own proper incumbents rather than by the mission. Mentioned the fact that Harry Wilson was just baptizing 2. The total he has himself baptized is 600, of whom 240 were British & 360 foreign Jews. They were of an class, perhaps  $\frac{1}{2}$  being of the higher class. Of the 600, 3 are known to have expired. They give a great deal of trouble.

The average congregation at the Mission is 60. They have a Communicant roll of 300, but there are many more Jewish Christians <sup>in London</sup> who are true etc. This is the only Hebrew Christian congregation in Christendom.

The Jewish point of view.

Turkish habit of coming and work:

Mr Rosenthal said that the hope of the speedy advent of a Temporal Messiah is the whole secret of the preservation of the Jews as a separate body. No nation is kept for the maintenance of their exclusive integrity when they discover that the Messiah came some 1800 years ago. This temporal hope which is not nurtured by the Jew to the Gentile, he deep down in their hearts it is there, & forms the main spring of their ~~lives~~ lives. Moreover many orthodox Jews believe that it is their duty to persecute any member of their own faith who deserts, the reward being "a golden crown & a seat between horses & Aaron." Jews do this believe are thus incensed by our action as that of Mr Rosenthal, who the more enlightened Jew, one as true who belong to the Reform Church, regard attempts to convert to Christianity as an insult.

The upshot of it all is that Mr Rosenthal is himself a very marked man. He has, I gather, never been insulted, but his "habit of work" is the gnashing of the teeth, the snake fist, & the fierce look. He never visits alone, nor even walks unaccompanied. In the street which he has always a man with him, & in his own neighborhood either the same attendant or his daughter. He is never alone away from home. At the Mission they have always his policemen as the low using the services.

There is a Jewish Anti-Comunist Soc. which Mr Rosenthal says works by the method of anti report of scandal.

He has a star factory, he was baptized, & composing post. He has the bar come to the for service but he had fear of det. to them in his face. The animus against him is reflected in their own agents: the Catholics: & persecution, loss of work etc. is a main source of relief & help that he has to give. But the $704 that is spent would have to be $25,000 if he had to spend at the same rate per hour as other doctors. And one that it is an inevitable source of expenditure, found to be so both by home & foreign missions. The girls who come to the orphanage are destitute, sometimes from the same cause, being care over by relatives of converted parents.

Mr Rosenthal has no medical mission; finds it unnecessary. He has of them: "while the patient waits to see the doctor, the missionary preaches the Gospel: I don't want over things".

Mr Rosenthal himself is a High-Churchman, he was so high as Mr Harry Wilson. He never baptizes a convert - until he has been under instruction for 2 years. The letters, proves them, to be genuine or false. No children are admitted to the Sunday school except those whose parents have and persecutions, with the result that he came back to London penniless. From the moment I became aware of his condition and whereabouts, I did everything I possibly could to alleviate his distress. As soon as I heard he was ill I sent for a doctor, who lives near the Mission House, requesting him to give the poor convert medical attendance, and I provided him with everything he prescribed and suggested. Last Sunday I was told he had left his lodging and gone to the Infirmary. I at once went there to visit him, accompanied by a fellow labourer, Mr. M. Cohen. When I noticed on the board at the head of his bed he was described a 'Hebrew,' I asked him whether he was still a believer in the Lord Jesus, and wished to die in the Christian Faith, to which he answered in the affirmative, as emphatically as his strength permitted, and requested me at the same time to take his two children into my Orphanage, and to see that they were brought up in the Christian Faith. Mr. Cohen, the Sister of the ward, and two other men present heard his statements and are witnesses thereto. As I have been told that the burial of Jews who die in the Infirmary is under your control, it is therefore my duty to apprise you of the fact that the late Barnat Kemff was a Christian, and that his dying request was that he should have Christian burial, and to add that, as his spiritual adviser, I now claim his body for Christian burial.

"I am, yours faithfully,

"Rev. M. Rosenthal."

The Hebrew Guild of Intercession is increasing both in numbers and usefulness. This is being done gradually, but surely. Ever since its institution, it has been a source of comfort and strength to a large number of our converts. The Jews are the most clannish of all people. They generally congregate in certain localities, keep to themselves, associate with their own co-religionists, and employ their own people. When a Jew comes to London from Europe, Asia, or Africa, he has only to find out the Synagogue bearing the name of his native place, and there he is sure to find a hearty welcome. He is befriended, sheltered, guided; either employed, or assisted with means to start in some trade on his own account. But as soon as he embraces Christianity, or even is discovered frequenting a Christian mission-house, all his friends become his bitter foes. He finds himself deserted—none to pity him, none to comfort him. When he goes to Church, he feels his solitude the more by contrasting it with the hearty welcome and friendly greetings he had been accustomed to receive in the Synagogue; he is a stranger to the people, and the people are strange to him; he neither understands the services nor the ritual. It is for the new convert that our Hebrew Guild is such an inestimable boon. In the midst of our Hebrew congregation he finds himself at home again; here he learns to appreciate Church privileges and to love the Anglican liturgy and ritual, and in a few years he is Altogether the work of Mr. Rosenthal's mission seems not unimportant. He "Caper-a hearing" & he clearly thought that no one else working in the same field had anything like his own opportunities. His "humane speaking" was also in the same work. He seems to think, for instance, that Mr. Abrahamson, Mr. Barnhart's credit & one of Mr. Rosenthal's on Calcuttians, would not be able to achieve much.

Overleaf is the balance sheet, the following extract from the Report was printed out for me by Mr. R. when I raised some questions about the funds:-

On the following Monday I addressed a public meeting in the Town Hall, the Mayor being in the chair. In accordance with my usual custom, before the collection was made, I told the meeting that whatever they were disposed to give to the Mission must be entrusted to my absolute discretion.

After the meeting he remonstrated with me for making these remarks, as he thought that otherwise the collection would have been larger. Upon this I told him there had been a very fair collection, and I felt quite satisfied with the result. I then explained to him our system of keeping accounts, viz.: that all the moneys received for the Mission by me and the Treasurer are placed by the latter in the bank to the credit of the "Sabbath Day School" & "the Service of the Sabbath Day School." Finding, however, on several evenings in his company. Finding, however, on finding him a very pleasant acquaintance he spent three years ago he met at St. Petersburg a Hebrew Christian who lodged in the same house with him, and months. Again, every cheque I receive from the Treasurer is put into the bank to the credit of the current Mission account, on which cheques are drawn as occasion requires, and at the end of each year, a list is published of every penny received for the Mission and expended by the Mission, and the accounts are duly audited. Yet, although a strict account is kept of every penny received and expended, and although I have vouchers for the remittances sent to the Treasurer, and receipts for the cheques drawn by me on the Mission account, owing to the unique nature of the work, it is only on the understanding the money is entrusted to my discretion that I ever venture to appeal for funds.

“MY DEAR MR. ROSENTHAL,

“I had heard of your great work among the ‘Hebrew Colony’ in East London. I had also the privilege of reading some sermons by you one on Isaiah vii. 10-17, preached at St. Mary’s, Oxford.

“I was much impressed by your masterly acquaintance with the ‘Hebrew Verity.’ Hence my invitation, which you so generously accepted—which I gave for what I heard of your Christ-like work, for what I saw of your capacity to make a real contribution to the great question of the Old Testament.

“At present I can only express my bitter regret at the way in which a portion of my countrymen have caused events to travesty my invitation to yourself and other learned and pious men. I am ashamed as a gentleman, pained as a Christian, humiliated as a Bishop.

“The reduction of your ‘Mission Fund’ by £500 is a shameful thing. The ‘Derry Congress’ has been adroitly used against you by some adept in the art of misrepresentation.

“Will you put down my name for £10 to your blessed work in ‘seeking the lost sheep of the House of Israel’?

“Yours faithfully in Christ,
“WILLIAM DERRY.”

JEWISH MISSIONS.

Address at the Norwich Church Congress, 1895.

BY THE REV. MICHAEL ROSENTHAL.

I AM thankful to find that, after a silence of thirteen years, the Church Congress has once more taken up the Jewish subject, and I feel happy in being again permitted to take part in it. If there is one Christian enterprise more conducive to the vital interests of the Church than another, it is mission work among the unconverted of all nations, including the Jews, of course; for no universal missionary effort is possible which does not embrace the Hebrews.

But owing to certain misconceptions, there are many who recognise the imperative obligation to engage in missions to the heathen, yet stand aloof from missions to the Jews. Some think that as the Jews possess Moses and the prophets, they have no need of the Gospel. But surely this is a fallacy. Mosaic Judaism is no longer practicable. In the synagogue the Jews bemoan their loss of Church privileges in these words:—"We have neither temple nor altar, neither priesthood nor sacrifices." The Judaism of the ancient Hebrew Church was purely sacerdotal and sacrificial, and it came to an end when the Jerusalem temple was destroyed. Modern Judaism has very little, if anything, in common with the Levitical law. It consists chiefly of boundless traditions, compiled during several centuries by honest but misguided Rabbins. Besides, Christianity is not merely a system for civilising and humanising savages, it is equally needed by the most cultured and refined of mankind. Jews and Gentiles alike stand in need of Christ, Who alone is "the Way, the Truth, and the Life" (S. John xiv. 6).

Some Christians neglect Jewish Missions because they argue that the miraculous preservation of the Jews as a distinct people, notwithstanding that they have been scattered among all the nations of the earth for many long centuries, betokens that God has not yet done with them, but, as the Bible leads us to believe, there is a glorious future in store for them, and that a time is coming when all Israel shall be saved. All this is quite true, but surely the blessed apostles must have known that in God's own good time all Israel shall be saved. S. Paul must have known this, for it is he who specially asserts this truth (Rom. xi. 26), and yet wherever he came he delivered the message of salvation to the Jews—to the Jews first.

The Divine purpose and our obligation are distinct. Again, we know by the analogy of God's dealings with Israel in the past, that He condescends to employ human instrumentality for the achievement of His object; and what reason have we to doubt that He expects the Church to prepare His ancient people for that great event, when the Jews shall look upon Him Whom they have pierced, mourn for their sins (Zech. xii. 10), be pardoned and reconciled to God? By energetic work and fervent prayer the Lord may permit us to hasten on that blessed state which Israel's conversion will usher into the world, and which S. Paul calls, "even life from the dead" (Rom. xi. 15).

Some people are deterred from engaging in missionary effort to the Jews by the difficult nature of this particular work. That this work is very arduous no one will deny. The Jews, who are proud of their origin, intellectual attainments, and ever-increasing worldly prosperity and power, resist vehemently any attempt at proselytising among them. If the missionary is to do his duty by them without fear or favour, he must be prepared to lead a life of daily martyrdom, and this is most particularly the case when the missionary happens to be himself a convert from Judaism.

But although this mission is difficult, it is by no means an impossible work, and it is our bounden duty to carry it on. Whatever Gentile Christians may think of Christ's command "to begin at Jerusalem," to the mind of a Hebrew Christian the terms of His commission to the Church are too explicit to admit of a doubt. I feel sure that we can never engage in any mission with greater certainty that we are acting according to the mind and will of our Divine Master, than when we are making efforts to bring to Him some of the "lost sheep of the House of Israel" (Matt. x. 6, and xv. 24).

As a matter of fact, the Church is gaining annually far more converts from the Jews than from the heathen, comparatively speaking. Baptisms of Jews are now of such frequent occurrence that they no longer attract the attention they used to do in former years. I am right glad that this is the case, for it is most undesirable to make a parade of the encouraging results which God vouchsafes to our labours. Still, the Church Congress ought to know that every rightful effort made for the conversion of the Jews is being blessed with visible tokens of Divine favour.

In London we are now having vast opportunities for conversing with the Jews, and the Lord is graciously blessing our efforts in converting many of them. In the Providence of God, mission work among the Jews has been my vocation for the past twenty-two years. For the last eighteen years I have been working among my brethren in London, chiefly in the East of the metropolis. In the mission under my charge at Stepney we have regular Sunday and weekly services, a congregation with a roll of communicants, our lay-helpers, our representatives in the rural deanery, one of whom is also a member of the Diocesan Conference. We have our own guilds and clubs, and all the ordinary machinery of a small parish, and all entirely and exclusively Hebrew Christians; whilst in addition we have meetings for inquirers and catechumens, Sunday Schools, mothers' meetings, classes for discussion, and meetings for all sorts and conditions of Jews. And the result shows that the Gospel of Jesus Christ has in no wise lost its savour through the lapse of centuries; it is still fresh and edifying; it is now, as ever, "the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek" (Rom. i. 16).

One of the difficulties in connection with Jewish missions is that we often meet with some cases of a most perplexing nature. As a missionary to the Jews, with twenty-two years' experience, I would venture to suggest to some of my younger brethren to demand of every Jewish candidate for baptism to give a lucid and convincing "reason of the hope that is in him" (1 Pet. iii. 15), before administering to him the Holy Sacrament. Conviction may not, perhaps, be accompanied by conversion in every single instance, but in the case of Jews it invariably precedes it. Humanly speaking, a Jew cannot be converted to the Faith before he is convinced in his own mind of the Messiahship and Godhead of our blessed Lord; and when he is thus convinced, with a few very rare exceptions, he is able to show his conviction to others, however illiterate he may be.

Most of the orthodox Jews, from whom the largest number of converts is drawn, may, as a rule, be convinced of the truth of Christianity by a reverent, literal, and judicious exposition of the Messianic prophecies of the Old Testament. Some of the reformed Jews may be brought to see in the fulfilment of Christ's prophecies respecting the destruction of the Holy City and the Temple, and the establishment of the Catholic Church, notwithstanding all opposition, in addition to His own spotless and matchless character, that His claims to the Messiahship and Godhead were just and true. Some Jews find in the errors of the Talmud, by contrasting them with the sublime teaching of Christ, the most convincing arguments in favour of the Divine origin and inspiration of the Gospel.

In the course of my missionary career I have had to deal with several very learned Jews, whom at first no argument could reconcile to the doctrine of the adorable Trinity; but when I showed to them in the Zohar (Zohar, vol. 2, page 43, one of the most ancient of the Cabalistic books) that Rabbi Simeon ben Jochai, a contemporary of S. Paul, taught that the Godhead comprised Three Spirits, namely, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, they became convinced and were eventually baptised. By the way, it is impossible to read the ancient Cabalistic books without coming to the conclusion that the doctrine of a Triune Jehovah must have been a fundamental article of Faith in the Hebrew Church before the Christian era.

The most difficult part, however, is not so much to convince a Jew of the truth of Christianity, as to arouse in him a spirit of inquiry. There is a tendency in the Jewish mind to rest satisfied with the religious system to which, through circumstances, he became endeared, and to associate with it a general notion of the Divine approval. He argues that since it has pleased God "to suspend Ancient Judaism," and to suffer the Jews to have for their religion only a few conventional rites and ceremonies, that state of religion is one to which it may not be wrong for him to adhere; and so long as he is in a position to observe those rites and ceremonies, it is most difficult to bring him to see that even if his tenets were sound, his argument in support of them is not more convincing than that which any benighted Pagan can adduce in favour of his own superstition. When a spirit of inquiry has been once aroused in the mind of a Jew, then any devout Christian who is familiar with the controversy between the Church and the Synagogue is competent to instruct him in the faith. But in order to arouse in him a spirit of inquiry, to set him thinking, it requires a thorough knowledge of Judaism and the Jews, their aspirations and phases of thought.

About twelve years ago a poor Jew applied to me for baptism. Finding on examination that he had never read the New Testament, and that he was still labouring under all the Jewish prejudices against the Saviour and His religion, I asked what induced him to seek for baptism. To this he answered with evident simplicity and truthfulness, that in a moment of great emergency he had been obliged to part with his phylacteries and fringes, and fancying that without those sacred emblems of Judaism he could neither observe his religious duties nor remain an acceptable member of the synagogue, he had therefore decided to embrace Christianity, rather than lead an irreligious life. After listening to the account he gave of himself, I came to the conclusion that to set him thinking would be the best service I could render him, and in order to effect that purpose I had better say nothing to him on that occasion about the respective merits of Judaism and Christianity. Accordingly, after giving him a little money for the purchase of his religious emblems and some stock in trade, I exhorted him to remain faithful to the God of his fathers and pray for more light. As I anticipated, my action was an inexplicable enigma to him, and when he left me he looked quite bewildered. Before a year had elapsed, during which time his circumstances had much improved, he paid me another visit. I then persuaded him to join my instruction classes, and in due time he was baptised. Before his first Communion, he told me "that nothing could have more effectually uprooted his native prejudices against Christianity and Jewish converts than the way I treated him when he first called upon me." Ever since his baptism, about ten years ago, he has led a life of harmony and consistency with his Christian profession. Since his conversion he has been the means of bringing several Jews to Christ. When a Jew embraces the Faith, he becomes instinctively and by force of circumstances a missionary to his brethren. The very process of defending his act of leaving the Synagogue is itself preaching the Gospel; and we have had many instances of converts who gave themselves no rest until they had brought some of their relatives to the Faith, with the never-failing argument of personal experience: "We have found the Messiah . . . come and see" (S. John i. 41, 46).

Some persons object to Jewish missions because they are obnoxious to the Jews, who, we are told, "have a right to their conscience"; certainly, but so have other people, and so have Christians. It is not to the Jews alone that the Cross of Christ is a stumbling-block and rock of offence. If unbelieving Jews resent our missionary efforts on their behalf, we ought to point out to them, in all loving sympathy, that the teaching of Christ must beget in every heart in which its real power is known, an earnest longing for the Gospel message to reach all nations it is therefore impossible for Christians to ignore the nation from which Christ came (Heb. ii. 16).

To the honour and glory of England, be it said that Her Majesty's Jewish subjects enjoy perfect liberty and quietude throughout the whole world wide British Empire, and as the Jews love, therefore the English people, the Anglican Communion is sure to meet with greater success in Jewish missions than any other branch of the Catholic Church. Our opportunities for preaching the Gospel to them are very great. In London alone there are many thousands of Jews. Now, would it be right if Christian people—who, in obedience to Christ's command, are sending missionaries to the uttermost parts of the earth—should neglect the Jews who live in their midst and next door to the Church of God. Loyal servants of Christ cannot, and will not, remain indifferent and utterly callous to the eternal welfare of the Jews, who, according to the flesh, are the very brethren of our Divine Redeemer. Although in His inscrutable Providence the Lord may defer the national conversion of the Jews until His second coming, yet He graciously allows us to win for the Church daily "a remnant of Israel according to the election of grace" (Rom. ix. 27; xi. 5). And this is about all that the Church is at present permitted to accomplish among other nations, namely to gather a people out of the world, a Church out of all nations, a people for Christ's name, and whom "He will present faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy" (Jude 24). But when all Israel shall be saved, then shall the mission field really and truly flourish, for then the "earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea (Isaiah xi. 9).

Radclyffe - 24 Jan 1898. (2)

I met Mr Knowles at the Vicarage which adjoins the Church & after half an hour conversation there we went to the house occupied by some of his lady workers & a girls club at the top of Linden Street. Mrs Knowles going too.
At the vicarage we discussed general questions &
Mr Knowles was very frank on the failure to get people to come to church 50 in the morning & 150/200 in the evening rather overstated the numbers he thought - in a parish of over 6000. There are a considerable number of Catholics but no Jews. Almost all are poor. In other ways they ~~do~~ do a good deal for the people broadly without regard to belief or practice as to religion & seem to be popular. They have also their band of adherents & of those who come to Church <sup>at all</sup> most come regularly & are communicants
I heard a good deal as to Guilds & Clubs & Schools in conversation of an unsystematic character & found on going to the workers meeting that Mr K had prepared some notes. These we went over in the presence of the workers. The group consisted of the two Curates, Miss Keightley, the Superintendent of the Ladies Home & Girls Club, & Principal parish worker, with 3 other ladies. All seemed on excellent terms & were in full cry of talk when we joined them. Mr Knowles has been incumbent for 3 years - having succeeded Mr Arlthnot who was here 14 years & to whom, Mr Knowles is very ready to admit, the organization is due. His work has stood, they say, the crucial test of surviving him - "Its foundation laid deep in the hearts & consciences of his people." Hence the small band of attached persons of whom a fair proportion are men.

The Coopers Guilds are used as a mission & ~~many~~ of the institutions are duplicated - 2 mothers meetings
2 girls clubs - 2 boys clubs - serving different classes.
Girls with & without hats - boys with & without collars.
All seems active & intelligently worked - no very large numbers but a good regular attendance & plenty going on in the clubs - Large Bands of Hope & strong temperance work - All hearty teetotars & believers in the influence of the Bands of Hope on the children & through them on the parents. Good Templars large meet in the school.
Savings bank - money collected weekly by district visitors.
Burling Society meeting weekly -

The most remarkable social effort is a weekly out door entertainment in summer with music & dancing in the school playground - The Church yard also is opened for promenade - there being a door through to the school ground - The County Council takes a band and admission is for all corners except Chilam and 14. The police stand at the door - order inside is kept by the Church people - or sometimes, if gathered, is not kept - The hours have been from 7.30 to 10 o'clock & an argument arose whether this should be altered. Mr Knowles had proposed to move it half an hour earlier but Messrs. Keightley & the other ladies demurred & seemed inclined to the former way - They said that at 9.30 no one was ready to go home to bed & that the young men & young women would adjourn to the Public House or sit out together somewhere - they loved music rather to make it half an hour later - & face the possibility of disorder inside. The disorderly element they say is not the worst. It is the better dressed young men & girls who are rowdy & unmanageable. Great crowds come - especially since they got such good music. Previous to getting the C.C.C. band they "did what they could" & the effort seems remarkably successful. It is evidently absolutely non-religious.

[ I think it was here that a strong opinion was expressed against the closing of Churchyard recreation ground on Sunday ]
It is evident that what is wanted is lots of light for such an entertainment as is here described visiting appears to be regularly organized & there is a Parish nurse. In connection with this charitable relief is given without respect to creed - R. C.

girls come to the club & the prayers used were submitted to & approved by Cardinal Manning Altogether there is a very broad spirit shown & the good of the people is the object sought rather than the good of the Church

We have here a small body of devoted church people working for the good of the Parish without any direct propagandist appeal. No one comes to Church from fashion - or ~~for~~ <sup>actual</sup> for gifts. Most are communicants, many are women all this seems to have sprung from Dr. Arbuthnot

5

& the Parish has been fortunate in Mr Knowler a simple modest man free from all egotism - Conciliatory & helpful. A man of more force might have made much mischief. He is not at all like a clergyman - more like a prominent professional man -

I append some extracts from his report - & the cards for members of the Men's Help Society for communicants & non-communicants which indicate the spirit which pervades the inner circle -

There were two separate Guilds - affiliated to large organisations - Men's Help & Christ's Working Men's Society - Mr Knowler succeeded (with some difficulty) in amalgamating these - they were each small - & met on different evenings with practically the same objects & programmes

- Amongst other religious influences Mr K mentions Medland Hall (London Congreg. Union)
- Thames Seaman's Mission -
- Placed School Union -
- Society of Friends - Meeting House, St School -
- Westleyan East End Mission - Stepping Stone -
- London City Mission Love Lane
- R.C. Church - St Mary, St Michael

He also recommended us to see Mr Mills who is one of his helpers but also has a boys club of his own & gives his life to work among the people

Interview with the Rev. E. Bray, Rector of St. Pauls, Shadwell
Feb. 2. 98.

I saw Mr Bray in the Parish Committee Room, where the Curate was busy writing & occasionally - only 2 or 3 lines - dealing with some application. His manner was a bit professional & unsympathetic. The Nurse & the Mission Woman also looked in to report themselves but seemed to have little to say. The Scripture Reader came & stayed on: he was a man of about 30, of slight build & looked more like a musician than a missionary. He was occasionally opposed to, as was the Curate but there was nothing to show that the parish is alive. The Curate is a pale, dark, bearded man of perhaps 40-45. Looks capable, but seems pre-occupied & rather unresponsive. The Rector is a large man, of perhaps 60, bearded; optimistic in the wrong places; had a club & wore a silk & scented handkerchief, also in a rather helpless way, as though he were dignified, by his influence, the unreasonableness of any expectation that things of that sort should be done. He seemed full of those quiet, heavy, ineffective men, who have persuaded themselves that they have no time for anything.

The parish is a small one of about 7000. Limehouse Basin took about half of it away. The people are almost entirely outside voters, with a few small traders, some doctors, & the social-workshop.

No great change of late. Fewer workers, but the common language has retained a large proportion of the poorer class. Otherwise they were probably doing for the immediate neighborhood.

Rector & Curate. Scripture Reader, Mission Women, Nurse.
A few other helpers also visit. 20 Sunday School Teachers.

Church holds 700-800. Social Mission Room, 120 High St. holds about 40. The church was a room & bit in the vestry hall, & there is an infant school, used also for other purposes.

For services & other expenses see card.
On Sunday morning there is an average of about 200, & the same number in the evening. In the morning those who are a little better off come.

- Mr. W. J. JAMES, Parish Clerk, Vestry Hall.
- Mr. J. WELLER, Scripture Reader, 120, High Street.
- Mrs. WELLER, Mission Woman, 120, High Street.
- Miss WATSON, Parochial Nurse, 51, High Street.

The Clubs are open to every one in the parish.

The general visiting is done by the Scripture Reader & the mission woman. The systematic work of the kind the clergy "have no time".

They have a trained nurse of the E. L. N. S.

Charitable efforts runs from £200 to £300 a year, given away mostly by tickets. The recipients who come are known, & are semi-chronic cases, always turning up the ~~same~~ any person comes.

There is a Penny Bank, but no balances are carried forward. Every depositor is compelled to take his (or her) money out before the end of year. The only reason for what seems an extraordinary rule was that a contrary practice would involve much bookkeeping; they would want a clerk "to take it as it". At least what would be done if anyone wished to leave money in & rather they gave it via or helped people to open P.O. or other account, I was simply told that people there all draw the Post Office.

As regards other religious work I was told of the London City Mission one in Love Lane, & the other, a very small affair, in Three Cross.

There are few R.C. & not many Jews - the latter chiefly in King Edward Lane, & the shops in Cable Street.

Mr. Chatter's Relief Society has broken up.
Mr. Brown is a Guardian; directs the Home Relief; former Police Council; Voluntary pensions don't meet the case.

The Police are very well conducted.
Less drink & immorality. A good set of publicans. The Lager-Beer on the corner of King David Lane always does well. Publicans do not think that he suffers. Say that those who want to drink or eat are only the brackets. Women drink very much as the men do. Inside next field in pubs in the same way to have a glass. Not much stolen results, but much spoil-bad. Reminded the time when no woman went to the pubs. First noticed the practice on the lines of the collapse of the Ship-building trade on the Thames. People were very hard up. Women discovered that a plumage of beard & a plumage of potter gave a satisfying result. Bought the beard & went to the pubs to get it & get the potter. Then this was the beginning of the practice of women going to the pubs, & all.

No criminal class. His daughters were about everywhere with impunity day or night. Freedom of movement & welcome corroborated by the descriptive reader.

Prostitution "very nearly disappeared". No sailors' houses in the parish. Change of the kind of houses and in Finsbury Basin, ~~being~~ main explanation of very few sailors' houses there now. Alms-houses occupied by women who are said to be sailors' wives & not those who come to live when ashore, rather than prostitutes who ply as a general trade.

Marriage standard on average as. Fair rate to be very much irregular combination.

Health very good.

Housing very good. Many houses. Sheds covered away.

Note on Local Finance: For Poor Law & Local Government purposes Finsbury got into Lincoln, Baldiff, & Wapping. Minors Wapping they also form a parliamentary constituency.

Mr. Bray to be in Eton later 20 years, & Col. Dow 12.

Personal

It is now too late to get over that he has been there long enough. He is not one of the "beards" here - I think he is one of the "beards" to the people of the Church in East London.

Interview with the Rev. A. W. Harris <sup>S</sup>/<sub>20</sub> Rector of St George's in the East. (2) CD Feb. 4. 98.

Mr Harris has for some years been Sec. of the East London Church Fund & succeeded Provdary Turner at St George's only 2 or 3 months ago. He has therefore taken control of the rich East London living & one of the most substantial worked parishes, for a very short period & has hardly yet mastered his position. Although the living is a good one (£910) Mr H. only accepted it with hesitation from the actual pressure of his predecessor. The charges are so heavy, & the work so extensive that it was a serious step for Mr Harris, a man with small means, to follow a man like Mr Turner, a wealthy man. Mr H. is faced by the difficulty that work-people will: when they are younger they are not eager to work, & thus work accrues to spend money: you cannot "pile up capital" & see work done. But on the other hand it is not right to ignore the duties of a reasonable provision for later life & for children. Mr H. is a married man, has an attractive personality; is possessed of fairly clear but slow judgment; & seems a little over-weighted.

The particulars before me are fairly complete, but the Parish Manual

Mr Shelton in Stoke Newington referred to Mr
Turner as "the model parson".

Jews.

"Over + less vicious".

The people.

Turner "touched"; few "prosper".

for 1896-7 ought to be referred to. It was the last one drawn up by Mr Turner + is a very full statement of a remarkable list of parish organization.

The Jews are coming into the parish, but Mr Turner only estimated them at £ about 1000. Harris thinks this under the mark + that there are probably about  $\frac{1}{2}$  of the 10000-11000 who are Jews - say 2000. They are found at particular in the main streets. They are the main element as regards overcrowding.

Mittraris' premises have been recently bought by a Jewish syndicate, but no one at present knows for what purpose.

There is a consensus of opinion that Mr Jones has in recent Jews become "more prosper + much less vicious".

The population is a mixed one, the dominant occupation being furnished by riverside work + the cognate employment of carmen. Many of the women + kids find employment in the City.

Mittraris claimed that in visiting the whole parish, R.G.
+ Jews included, was "touched"; by the "mistakes of the crowd", but that they "prosper" few. Friendly relations are maintained with the Jews, many of whose wives come to the Bank at home. The Jews often do not mind their own people going to any length short of Baptism.

If the day is taken the bank follows.

- Workers: Pair: Pastor & 3 curate.
- 1 Baptism Receiver.
- 1 Lady Worker
- 1 Nurse (E.L.N.A.).
- 2 Mission Women.

There are also 1 Lady Worker (unpaid), Lady Priddel (Miss Howe she has been here for 30 years) 2 Ladies (District Visitors).

There are also 60 Sunday School Teachers & 2 boys for workers. Mr Harris has promised an annunciation.

- Buildings: Church: £1250
- St Matthew's Church - £400. [St Matthew was united to St George by Act in Council in 1891].
- St George's Mission House - £400. Also includes Gymnasium, Sewing Room, Dress Room, etc.
- Mission Room - Total £ - £160.
- 2 Rooms in St Matthew's school being £0 + 100.

London City missionary - aspect for supervision in the manual.

In St George's there are very close connections between the Church & the Board Schools. There are large endowed schools in the Parish of which the Rector is ex-officio a Governor. They are called Rector's Schools, & are necessary for the Boys & Elementary for the Girls & Infants.

In visiting they aim at a complete covering of the parish, but there is a good deal of cross-division that goes on owing to the tendency of people to visit on the basis of the particular association into which they are connected & working.

There is a London City Missionary who visits in the parish, he seems rather slack. Lives away, & not under any very strict control. Used to be under Jones, & had to report to him. But not part in the same reaction to Harris. The latter thought to be too High Church. The Missionary therefore put under "the firm partner of a Patrol Field's Brewery"! "No - Thomas"? "Yes it is: I think the partner is Mr Noel Duxton".

The arrangement stands to Harris as being rather absurd, specially as he is not extreme at all. He adopts the Edward position, but the charges have been ~~been~~ right altogether.

Religious removal of incumbents.

Has a parish wife & is securing another for St. Matthews.

Parish fund for year ending March 31, 97 came to about £120. Good mainly to wife. Parish Trust. fund insignificant in amount.

Cooperates with C. O. S. Pays 1/2 of cost when taken up. Approved + policy of B. of Questions. "is seems to have worked as well".

Mentioned St. George's Whapping Relief Soc. Originally intended to be non-political. He therefore gave his name as a Vice-President. Radical have boycotted it. H. knows nothing wishes to have nothing of Marks.

Knows little about the East London (Whapping) Mission is doing. Has just recently opened a Chapel on a Synagogue - Cannon Street Road.

H. sits on Vestry of St. James. Is Chairman of local group of Parish Committee of Managers.

Discussed difficulties arising from old incumbents, or those who were wily. There is no power of removal but in these cases. Can only rely on persuasion. Walthamstow Billing has a bar plan in dealing with those who wanted to work by practically saying "What are you taking to go?" When terms had been come to a Committee in charge was put in. In one case <sup>where he would take</sup> the reply was "The stipend", & he was sent a book let that the terms were open to.

When an incumbent takes the first step he requests retirement. But this usually involves an allowance secured by a charge on income. In some houses the stipend are not enough to be shared in this way. The late bishop of Downey hit on the plan of using some of the E. L. C. fund to supplement the retiring allowances. This has been done in some cases, & may doubtless be done in more.

But the cases are very different & sometimes men want, & ought to have, no retirement but change. Many are good for more work than parish in that crisis were lighter & perhaps for a different character, would be good persons. Many are strong for the ministerial office, though weak for evangelistic work. As instance of such a man his name mentioned in Barnes. An excellent man in the wrong place now.

MY DEAR FRIENDS,

You will allow me, I hope, to address you by this name in anticipation, and in right of the introduction that Prebendary TURNER has given me to all friends of St. George's, both in and out of the parish, by asking me to write a letter to accompany his Report of the doings of the past year.

What these doings have been the following pages will clearly show, and it would be both unnecessary and impossible for me, with my present imperfect knowledge, to discuss them in detail. I can only say, as I look round upon the work which I have been unexpectedly called to superintend,

"The lot is fallen unto me in a fair ground ;
"Yea, I have a goodly heritage."

Ps. xvi. 7.

I notice first two great institutions with which the Rector of St. George's is brought into close contact, and to the good work of which Prebendary TURNER has largely and valuably contributed. In the first place the Vestry, over which he has presided, has constantly been on the alert to make things better for the inhabitants of the Parish. The magnificent public garden, the baths and wash-houses, the swimming bath, the projected public library are striking evidences of the efforts that have been and are being made, and it is a cause of thankfulness and pride to be called to live under and to take part in so spirited an administration of public affairs.

I am struck in the same way by the conditions of the Parish in regard to Education. It contains three large Board-Schools, with the teachers of which the present Rector, as Chairman of the Local Board of Managers, has maintained the most friendly relations, demonstrating that, behind all the din of the unfortunate controversy on the educational question, the teachers and the clergy may be the fastest allies, and that in the hands of the right men and women the Education Act allows of a solid and real religious training. In addition there are the Raine's Schools, the old endowed schools of the Parish, Church of England Schools, administered by a most efficient Board of Governors of which the Rector is ex-officio a member. Here I find one of the strongest supports that the Church possesses and it will be my care and my hope that in both classes of Schools I may be able to assist in the good work as those before me have done.

I turn to the direct work of the Church, for which the Rector is responsible, and I find a far-reaching organisation and an apparatus complete and in perfect

Prayer Meeting.

A Parish Prayer Meeting is held every Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, in the Tait Street Mission Room. It is especially intended for Church Workers.

Invalid Kitchen, &c.

This useful Institution is under the management of Mrs. Kelly, who comes twice a week from the West End to superintend the cooking. Dinners are provided for the sick of the Parish on Tuesdays and Fridays; the number of dinners sent out during the year 1896-7 amounted to 1871. The appreciation shewn for these dinners is very great. A basin of really good beef-tea, a nicely-cooked tender slice of meat accompanied by some vegetables, or a tempting little pudding, coming in at dinner time, all hot and ready to eat, will induce many a poor invalid to make an enjoyable meal when home-fare would seem distasteful.

In connection with the Invalid Kitchen the "Odd Minutes Society" must be gratefully mentioned as doing a most useful work among the sick of the Parish by presents of Clothing, Coals, &c., distributed through Miss Sargent, of the East London Nursing Society.

Children's dinners are provided twice in the week during the months of January—April. These dinners are intended to serve a different purpose from penny dinners; they are good wholesome meals of roast beef and pudding, and are for the more delicate and ailing children of the very poor. It is found that a good dinner, even if it be only once or twice in the week, may often be the means of keeping a child in health and gladness, and saving it from decline.

Free breakfasts are provided during the Winter months for the really destitute among the children attending the Board Schools in the Parish. They are of a very plain description, consisting of porridge, cocoa, or coffee, with a piece of bread or occasionally bread and butter, and are served at 8.30 each morning and cleared away before 9 o'clock when school commences. Tickets for these meals are distributed by the Teachers, after careful inquiry, to any of their children who without such help would come to school hungry and cold. The expenses of the breakfasts at Lower Chapman Street School are defrayed from the Poor Fund; those at Bett Street are very kindly provided by Miss Steer, whose Mission Buildings are close to the School; the expenses at the Highway School are paid by Mr. E. Arrowsmith, who has for several years done this kindness to the School.

The following account is taken from the Parish Magazine :

Never have the breakfasts been so fully appreciated by our Board School Children as during the recent frost. At each of our three schools nearly 100 children receive a plain hot breakfast during the Winter months. At Betts Street School 80 hungry little learners (all of the very poorest) are entertained, morning by morning, at Miss Steer's Home, and any day they may be seen trooping happily in at 8.30. One of the rules is, no child may be late; and then at the stated hour, hot porridge or cocoa and bread are served out by the lady-workers of the establishment; all is very orderly as might be expected, for a shivering, hungry little child is too delighted at this hot meal to think of being noisy. The children are selected by the day-school teachers, irrespective of creed or antecedents, and it is a real satisfaction to know, day by day, that our poorest children do not begin their lessons hungry.

By the generosity of Mr. A. G. Crowder, J.P., the old people of the Parish are entertained every year at a Christmas supper of beef and plum pudding. The meal is served in the Mission Hall, and is one of the most picturesque sights of the year, all the guests being over sixty years of age. Widows with dependent children have a Christmas gift of provisions to the value of five shillings. Over 300 of our widows and old people were thus assisted last year. An account of the Old People's Supper of last Christmas from the Magazine is printed below.

On December 29th and 30th, some 260 of the oldest people in the parish sat down to a very substantial meal in the Mission House. Although age has effected the limbs of many, it did not seem to have hurt their appetites. For, one help of pork, two of beef, two of plum pudding, besides mince pies and coffee, was the order of the day.

After supper each evening the members of the Dramatic Society gave an Entertainment. One could see that even the oldest had not yet forgotten how to laugh. After according a very hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Crowder for providing the supper, and to all who had entertained and waited on them, the guests started to go home, but even then all was not over, for as they reached the door, each received a parcel of groceries, which would help them to remember, for a week or two at least, their happy New Year.

- (g) St. James' School, Ratcliff.

- (i) St. Gabriel's House, Old Gravel Lane.
- (k) St. John's Mission House, Christian Street.

And the plants when registered must remain under the care of the Exhibitors from the day of Registration until the day of Exhibition.

The Ninth Annual Flower Show was held in the grounds adjoining the Parish Church on Thursday, July 30th, and was most successful. Shortly after three o'clock in the afternoon The Hon. Mrs. Whittuck, formally opened the Exhibition. The Countess Grosvenor distributed the prizes.

About 400 plants were exhibited, and the judges reported that they showed evidence of careful training, and were very creditable to the growers.

The Silver Watch, presented for the best cultivated plant in Class II., was awarded to Florence Higby.

A financial statement is given on page . The following account of the Flower Show is taken from the Parish Magazine :

The Annual Flower Show which took place on Thursday, July 30th, was once more a great success. The weather favoured the large party which gathered in the Churchyard, which the gardener's care keeps bright with flowers all the summer long.

At 9 o'clock some of the Committee began to receive the competing plants, and perhaps it was that they should have a last gentle watering a few showers fell while they were being brought. At noon, in solemn secrecy, Mr. Child and Mr. Pocock passed from flower to flower, and with unerring judgment attached the fateful cards of merit.

The Exhibition itself was formally opened at three o'clock by the Hon. Mrs. Whittuck, who was introduced by the Rector. Mr. Whittuck responded for his lady to a hearty vote of thanks, which had been proposed by Mr. Martineau, and after Mrs. Whittuck had received a bouquet, prettily handed to her by the Rector's little son, who was accompanied by his sister, all wandered about to see who were the successful competitors, and who had gained the special prize. Annie Higby's splendid fuchsia was found to be a champion.

At six o'clock all gathered round the prize tent, and the Rector made a short speech, in which he alluded to the large increase in the number of flowers entered for competition, which was partly due to new centres having been worked. Hearty thanks were due to Messrs. Sly, Dibble, and Co., for supplying all the tents, of which they only allowed the Committee to pay a nominal price for one; and also to Sir Jn. Bennett & Co., who provided the silver watch at a very low price. The prizes were then gracefully presented by the Countess Grosvenor. Short speeches were made by Archdeacon Sinclair, D.D., Mr. Churchwarden Hellings, and Mr. Mullens.

Fuchsias—Over 3 years: Mr. Bailey, Mrs. Neisby.

Under 3 years: Mr. C. Bauckham, Miss L. Kingston, Mr. Cox.

Children: Arthur Bryan, Charlotte Bryan, George Bone, Ellen Goth.

Geraniums: Mr. H. Brydon, Mrs. Platten, Miss E. Thompson.

Children: Emma Goth, Margt. Hageman, Ellen Clarke, Walter Hyman, Wm. Carter, May Miller, Sarah Chawner.

Other Plants: Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Brookes, Mrs. Redding, Mrs. Bryan, Mrs. Cooke.

Children: Bertie Hazeldine, Alfred Nash, Thomas Clarke.

Special Prize for best flowers exhibited by a child: Florence Higby.

Mrs. Hasler, with the help of Mrs. Kelly and many others again made ample and dainty provision in the refreshment tent, from which a handsome profit accrued, which was increased by the kind efforts of Miss Hasler's fortune-telling gipsy and Mr. E. Hasler's splendid photos of the Church, of which the whole stock were eagerly purchased. The Police Band discoursed bright music through the afternoon, and the bells of the Parish Church broke forth repeatedly in merry peals. The unceasing efforts of the Committee and Secretaries, assisted by Messrs. Sutton, Bath and Ward, thus resulting in the splendid success of our Ninth Annual Flower Show.
