Dear Mrs Fawcett.

Do you know anything about the writer of this letter? I found it, brought left by hand, when I came back fr. Church. I don't want it back, I have ans^d it, with generalities.
I have n^d I think Joe wd rather lose South Africa fr. the Empire than give the sex the franchise there! There is a good deal of sense in what she says, tho' pompously expressed.

I am getting a good many letters fr. women wanting to emigrate.

I hope you noticed Agyle told the women not to be afraid of being called a "matrimonial agency," I had not said one word to him, (indeed did not know) he was to be at the meeting. a pure case of great minds! He was very funny, unconsciously suggesting an English as well as a native wife.

He voted agth the women in the end. Pure sentiment afraid as 'mayors' they might have to read the Irish Act. Agyle is all right on the franchise. I have very unregenerate relations - Yrs affly
