Dearest Pippa

Mama & Ellen have decided to leave on Monday. Ellen is much better & up but washed out & rag like. I expect she will be quite well enough for the move on Monday. All is arranged with Trevor & Elinor. So that's all right - & Simon will go to B.P.G. on Friday.

Miss Harvey was a lady nurse I had for Jamie the summer we were in Scotland - recommended to me, I remember, by Edith. She was a very good old soul and her health was delicate even then - I think she would be very worthy of help - and if you think it advisable I would contribute a small sum. She was highly religious but at the same ^{time} put-up with our heathenish practices with great good humour.

Janie bore the separation with perfect equanimity! She is very much looking forward to her round of visits.

The Cambridge pictures are now all in their frames & look charming. They are to be left with Pernel.

I will find out who is publishing the grand new magazine and send a begging letter for it - but I shan't get more than the 1st number - if that.

Your existence of noising round curry smelling flats sounds too horrible for words. I wish you weren't going to leave Bury's just - as we appear.

Now I must stop. Every single article I possess in the world is lying on the floor - or floors -
