

Vol. XI. No. 13

June 14th 1924

WEEKLY

The unofficial Strike.

The unofficial strike is a triumph for the rank and file—however it may end. It shows that the rank and file is acting for itself, and acting with effect. This strike is the bigbest rank and file effort since the Armistice.

The Labour officialdom has condemned the strike; condemned it, and opposed it, as strongly as the employers themselves.

The "Labour Press Service" gave the cue to the capitalist press by denouncing the strike as "fomented by an unofficial committee dominated by communists," as thought the workers had no real cause of discontent, and as though to be unofficial and to be communist were altogether evil.

Of course, the capitalist press was delighted to follow the lead of the "Labour Press Service."

The "Labour Press Service" is an official Labour Party publication, designed to lead and inform the various local Labour newspapers. It more closely represents the views of the Labour Party Executive than the Daily Herald itself. The Herald, having an eye to circulation amongst all sections of the prolotarian movement, speaks often with a dua: voice.

More serious than the utterance of the Labour News Service, however, was that of Mr. Tom Shaw, the Minister of Labour. Mr. Shaw on behalf of the Government, stated that:

1. The Labour Government would give protection to men desiring to work during the strike. 2. In the event of public utilities, suce as food, lighting, water and power being threatened, "the Government will maintain those public utilities."

3. The Government will not take the railways out of the hands of the companies and operate them.

The - Labour Government therefore pr > mised to act like any other Government.

Mr. Shaw further averred that it would is what it could to end the dispute, but would not recognise the strike committee. He said:

"It is impossible for any Government to attempt to recognise a body which neither the trade unions nor the railway companies will recognise."

Thus when Parliament adjourned for iss holidays, the Labour Government spoksman endeavoured to crush the strike and annihilate with contempt the strike committee whilst capitalism gloated with satisfaction.

The strike, however, continued and by the beginning of the week Mr. Shaw's department was becoming, in appearance at least, somewhat more reasonable and was willing, at least ostensibly, to lend itself to the task of bringing the N.U.R. and the strikers together.

The strike committee's attempt to negotiate with the N.U.R. revealed, nevertheless, a weakness in the strike committee. The rank and file must learn to become solely responsible tor its own actions, and to hold its own apart from the Trade Unions before it can be a really powerful force. The bitter, insulting, reply to those attempted negotiations, issued to the Press ty Mr. Gramp, N.U.R. Secretary—once believed to be something of a Red—lies before us as we write.

This statement declares that the unrest of the rank and file, which is manifesting itsel' in every union, is a "foul disease," and that "decent workmen are being led away by persons chiefly interested in obtaining prominence, or money, or both."

Apparently the Trade Union leaders ignore the hardship that has befallen the masses through the great reductions in wages, brought about in rapid succession during recent years, and by the vast unemployment, which has east its burden upon innumerable households, even where some members of the family have remained at work.

Apparently, too, Mr. Cramp and his colleagues are unaware, of the great hop is and desires for emancipation for the workers, which at one time they themselves helped to raise; hopes and desires which have been en couraged, as flames are fanned by the wind, both by the great upheavals through which the whole world has passed in war and in revolution, and by the recent advent to office of a Labour Government in this country.

In spite of Mr. Cramp's denunciation it is obvious that if the strike holds firm, the N.U.R. will shortly become but too anxious to negotiate with the strike committee, lest th, N.U.R. hold on the workers become serious'y weakened.

One of the regrettable features of the strike was the repudiation by the strike committee of the charge that it is influenced by communist ideas. We shall not have moved very far until the answer to such a charge as that will be: "Guilty, and proud of it."

Another backward feature was the protest that the strikers are loyal members of the N.U.R. Presently the cry will be: "We are the workshop councils and more competent to act than any other organisation."

The great propoganda for this strike, as 'or all strikes should be: An advance of wages 'may secure a temporary Improvement, but what is required is the permanent to the system of production for profit.

COAL PRICES.

And the second sec
Pit Head price per	statute	ton raised—
	1913	1923
Britain	8/7	16/3
Germany (Ruhr)	8/10	7/3 (1922)
France	13/4	She - All and a
Belgium	14/1	27/9 (1922)
U.S.A.	1 Contraction
Anthracite	14/5	25/4 (1922)
Bituminous Coal	5/5	15/3 (1922)
Average 'Spot' prices	in the seal of Bituminous Coal	5/8	13/6
		The state of the second

DREADNOUGHT BANNEL IN INDIA.

Government officials state that there is no censorship of British newspapers sent to India, but our Indian correspondents constantly inform us that the Workers' Dreadnought is prevented from reaching them.

THE WORKERS' DREANOUGHT

THE LILY OF THE VALLEY. An Indian Story by S. N. Ghose.

2

Someone else in his position might hav been happy—at least one of his class, an nder those circumstances ; he was now freefree as any other man, he had now no-one t look after, no burdens whatsoever, and what he had some money-what cares was more. an a man like him have?

It was on the afternoon of the day he had been released from prison; the chaplain had generously given a long discourse on the re wards of plain living and honesty—the prison authorities had given him a few rupees (1) start his new career with.

Hari was now sitting on one of the benche the Esplanade. The dull ache-the longing and the drepression he had been teelin all this morning had now gone. He was no longer so very wretched because his power of teening was now completely lost—a condition of semi-stupor like one drugged had come He tried to think, but he could not; he had been thinking for a long while and been trying to nnd out the only people wno would care for him—those for whom he had lived, for whom he had suffered willingly, whom he was eager to do all he c all filelong; but they could be found nowhere.

The place where he used to live with his wife and child before the arrest was in a backyard-there was a motor garage as we as a stable over there. But all these hat completely vanished. The City Improvement Trust had pulled them down when he was in prison.

In a city where hundreds and thousands all struggling hard every day of their lives t get some shelter it was absurd to expect that nis wife—a mere girl—was still safe and leit unharmed by the blind and the ruthless machunery of our society.

Who could tell if Hari's wife had at ad been told of her husband's arrest and thus imprisonment? imprisonment? She migat have thought that he had gone out as usual m ch of work and at nightfall he had fe too ashamed to come back with the vacant hopeless look and the downcast eyes and the 'They don't want any mo. sual answer new hands in the docks.'

How could she ever manage a single day without Hari ? She was a mere scrap of girl-beautiful and trail as a flower. Ha Ha had pondered over this for hours that day; he had thought of it when in goal; the lon leepless hours of the night in the dark prion cell had been spent only in thinking ov

"If I could only meet her I would" something seemed to say— What is the use of thinking if 1 could meet her? She is nowhere." Yes that was true. How could he ever meet her? He had searched for her all lay long, but the vast multitude of the town had swallowed up the girl and the child—and not the least trace whatever had been left.

His feet had been aching; he had been walking up and down for hours—in hopelessearch; he had asked the same question to s many people. But there was no need to walk any more now; there was no use thinking over the old thing, ot old days and of the might-have-been." His wife and his child -they were now things of the past.

Before him was the ceaseless stream of swiftly-moving motors, lorries and tramcars, and the rushing crowds of people-all ap parently impelled by one desire—a mad pas-sion of hurrying onwards. . Cries of the newsboys reached him faintly, mingled with the hootings of the motor cars and the monoonous and the meaningless song of some workers hauling up a heavy load.

All these seemed as if in a dream. "What are they rushing for?" Hari cried out aloud.

"Are they rushing to their doom?" An un-known voice replied: "Beg your pardon, sir." Hari turned round. Next to him was rather stout man in tattered stranger-a clothes. He had no idea how long this man had been sitting near him watching his help less attitude.

Hari inquisitively looked at the strange at the pink sports paper the man is knees. It was one of those favhad on his knees. journals which have a large circulation among the poorer people, and which always claim to furnish authentic news about "A" the Winners," in the races. After a time Hari slowly said: "Oh it was nothing, I am feeling rather faint that is all.

The stranger was a very friendly man; h once volunteered his assistance and afte a very short time he made Hari feel quite dif ferente, took Hari to a public house on the corner; induced him to take a couple of glasses of strong rice-wine; he spoke on many important things and privately confided his secret to Hari—the possibility of making fortune at the end of the day in the King Cup Race. From the public house they boo went to the race course hand in hand lik two very old friends.

What an enormous crowd was at the race course! Hari had never seen so many bid motor cars packed in rows. That itself, Ha thought, was a sight worth seeing.

Everything now seemed clear to him; be no longer felt worried; he thought "After ait what is the use? Life is not so very bad. Why bother over people who are gone? Theyll not come back. Why cry for justice? It is the unjust who succeed.

'Why cry against the rich? Had it not been for them, the poor would have been nowhere; there is no use complaining, nothin, will change; in spite of life's defects and dra w acks who will care to die willingly alive-even alone and neglected-is much etter than being dead That day few men had been so strangly dea t with as Hari by the blind goddess Fortune In the morning he had left prison—expectant and hopeful, during the day he was forlorn nd unwanted and now at nightfall curious chance gave him an unreasonably large sur of money—the result of the sweepstake at the race; Hari had put all his money on the most probably because he did not know what to do with a lot of money-now that he had nobody of his own in the world that is why fortune chose him to play her cruel game with.

A number of 'sportsmen' friends of Hari's first acquaintance came to shower congrat 1-lations on him; they wanted him 'to play the game,' and 'make a night of it.'

One of them very obligingly volunteered personal knowledge about some select 'Houses' where the rich landlords from the country came to spend their hard-earned enues of the year; there one could find the est dancing girls of the city and the most comfortable lodgings for the night.

At other times Hari would have refused even to hear such conversations; he very rarely drank, and had never been with any man of the type they were referring to But that evening he did not care. He hat plenty of money now, but what was the use of that-his wife and his child-they we Why should not he drown his sorgone. rows?

By this time it was quite dark: the crowd had been gradually dispersing. Outside the racecourse he saw a small gathering round a platform. It was not one of the bookmakers for he could see a red banner with a crude!y written inscription on it "Workers Unite." There was a man holding an acetylene lamp in front of the platform. The speaker was a sort of deathly pallor in the gas light, by was his wild gesticulation that drew Hari' attention; he became curious and wanted mow what it was all about.

His companions, however, did not approv this inquisitiveness. One said "Just on the anarchists. They want the moon" good listening to them," advised "they are against racing, again he rich, against the poor, against the and the priests and what not. Against ever They want other people's money Hari's first acquantance put in "Against that barbers as well, I believe. Just see how with he looks. One would think he is a lunatic

Above the murmur of the gathering t speaker's voice could be heard," Brother We do not want their charity. of Hari's companions interrupted at moment by shouting, "I say—How will y explain this? Our friend had paid only a f upees and now from the race he has gundreds. What of it?''

'Yes brother!' was the reply, "that is f to make money out of nothing. But you know very well the money came from a others who have lost and after the promot of the race had removed their share, that a good deal of.

'We can't understand your nonsense. I us go

They took Hari to a small restaurant a there they had their supper. Now Hari s that there were eight of the 'Sportsmen' w him. As the evening drew on his compan became more voluble and more quarrelso Droll stories, filthy and vulgar, came out numbers from everyone of them.

Hari, however, remained perfectly sile he watched the company in a curious ch ish way; he saw the fantastic shadows e dirty walls of the restaurant-the sn lames of the paraffin lamps—there was arge white moth fluttering about. The fect of the rice-wine was now complet gone; Hari began to think once more.

He wondered what did these men war most of them had very dirty clothes-s were in rags; apparently none of them any home or relations; what impelled live such a life, wallowing in filth and fane vulgarity, talking so loudly of the sl the womanhood-of woman-- the m and wife. Did they never feel sorry for t conditions? Did they never feel that ere wretched? Did they never think ne way of this world is all wrong? Perl they never did, or perhaps they, too, i great sorrow, maybe far greater than Hat and so they, too, had been forced to take so a course in life.

Yes, at that time Hari knew how peo are dragged into the mire—really the not dragged nor accidentally pushed inall deliberately driven into it. Noon his own free will would choose such a squalor. The tragedy of the whole thi Hari thought, lay in the fact that they drive people into the mire are always power.

His brief reverie was broken by the pu of one of his companions. He paid the and then they all started out in their qu of vulgar amusement.

For the first time since their entry into restaurant they paid some attention to entertainer. One said "Dear Hari, darlings ought to cheer you another complimented him on his good loc ome others corroborated this staten Hari's first acquaintance now began "By bye, I had forgotten to tell you that Xmas, I saw one of our big landlords there.

The meaningless, but very animated co young man with long hair; his face had a versation, went on again as before witho taking any part in it. Hari now was wing them against his will, at every at corner he wanted to turn back and run from them, but he did not know where in to, so he followed them like one drug one who had not yet lost consciousness had no power to exert his will.

hey had now come to a narrow vere tall houses with balconies on both s and Hari noticed that there were wositting on those balconies, whistling and ning over as people passed by.

here were a lot of girls walking up and In that street. Some of them said Good ning" to Hari, some smiled and made stive movements with their heads; the le thing had been revolting to Hari from very beginning and now it seemed to have ched a breaking point. Was it a night-re? If not, how long could that system

He did not dare to look up now: he tried distract himself; he thought of the day of trial-he seemed to see before him the nt electric clock over the Judge's dais an i red canopy and the lion and the unicorn-n he saw the big baldheaded judge mophis face repeatedly, he remembered how judge nad burst out laughing when he had "I am unemployed but I am always trj to find some honest work." The shallow us looking government advocate strutter ut like a vulture, he had such a red nos , l then Hari once more saw the shivering kpocket who had been caught red hande a de the court during his trial.

Hari had fa'len very much behind his com nions while thinking of all this. One of the nen in the street had just stopped him looked very thin, one would say almost ving skeleton. She had taken Hari's han a d had said "Oh! do come. My child is thout any food." Hari turned his face to better at her, but the woman covered face with her hands and faintly uttered 2h Hari, Is it you? I am Lily' She sans wn on her knees as if in a swoon.

Hari gave a shout-a shout of joy. His comnions all turned round and saw the kneelg woman :t Hari's feet weeping piteously. hat had passed between these two they not know.

They were all vexed at Hari's attitude to s woman. One of them said "Mr. Ha.1, ase don't be fooled by a weeping old hag have still some way to go. 'Shut up you fool,' Hari shouted back to m "It is she—Lily. She is my wife. The idea that Hari might shp away from em had been making all of them rather un-sy for the last halt an hour or so; an l is strange woman coming up from the side ne and snatching Hari right away from nem seemed more than they could bar. They had all so eagerly looked forwar i the entertainment and for the time being y had become convinced that Hari ough follow their advice. One of them tried plain to Hari that the woman was an im ter, and the place and the hour of the th were both unsuitable for a decent wife meet her husband-at least a husband like ari, with such a lot of money in his pockets. woman on the street was giggling; she said My word! Some wife I should say.''

But Hari had neither heard the gigglings or the comments. He tenderly lifted the wo-nan up and was weeping himself as he drial er tears. He said "O Lily! How you have nanged. I could not recognise you. They ave taken away all your beauty, but you ac ill the same to me. Are you not? There is byron-Maintee Hauff-La Kar. t is their shame; the well-fed that have riven both of us here. Each day the hear:trample down the weak and this they Il always do.

"But you are pure—pure as the dew of the awn—pure as the Lily of the Valley."

THE WORKERS' DREANOUGHT

ESPERANTO-

Since the "Dreadnought" began giving lessons in Esperanto the language has made great progress, the apathy and set back caused by the war have given place to a vigorous for ward movement, partly through the effort f devoted workers in every part of the world and partly because radiography has made ous than before the need of a language reaching beyond the frontiers of any particular state

Mr. Graham, who by the way, opposed the apital Levy when the Labour Party was English, French, German, Spanish, etc. English, French, German, Spanish, etc., are all too difficult and complicated for ac-quirement by busy men so Esperanto holds the field. The few difficulties that it pre-sents to an Englishman are entirely on the making it a principal plank in the propaganua is credited with being one of the most con-servative members of the Labour Party. surface: the principal one is perhaps the ac-Mr. Graham looks for salvation to methods which I will now tackle at of greater industrial efficiency, "grouped un der the name, Scientific Management." By bona means good and tago means day, but when you wish any-one Good-day, you d) not say bona tago, but bonan tagon! A child will ask why this N is added to each of those two words, and one must be ready for a clear and simple answer

First point out to the child that it is correct a English to say "I see him" and not "I see ;" and that it would be quite wrong to say his mother, 'I love she, and her loves instead of "She loves me and I love her.

That is because most of the English pro-nouns as I, he, she, we, they, who, have au accusative form, me, him, her, us, them, whom, and every child knows perfectly when and where to use this accusative form The rule is the same in Esperanto, but it extends further, it covers not only pronouns but nouns and adjectives also. So that it is wrong to say in Esperanto for "I love my father," "Mi amas mia patro," you must say "Mi amas Mian patron." The N added here to the pronoun mia and to the neuro patro, is because the accuration in oun patro, is because the accusative is reired, just as him is required if you say in English "I love him, not ne.

In the case of "Bonan Fagon," the N added because you mean 'I wish od day'' although you leave out the wor is 'I wish,'' the same applies to "Good morn-ng,'' bonan matenon''; "Good evening,' g,'' bonan matenon''; ''Good e bonan Vesperon''; ''Good night,'' "bonan ther elucidation. Once this point is made clear all will be smooth sailing.

World to Read.

Shakespeare-Hamleto Macbeth

Sonĝo de Somerome. La Reĝo Lear Moliè re-

L' Avarulo Georĝo Dandin ... La Malsanulo pro In

Ifigenio en Taŭrido Faŭsto

Bunyan La Progresado de

Lesage-Gil Blas Goldsmith-Si kliniĝas po erome K Jerome

Prevost-Manon Lesĉau Saint Pierre-Pa ("kaj" and "ky" as in Greek) Byron—Manfred Children's B Aladin kaj la Mirinda Cindrulino (Cinderella) Struvelpetro (illustrated Kato en botoj (Puss in Fabeloi de Anderson

The Editor will gladly receive a post card from any-one to whom this explanation is not yet clear and will endeavour to give fur-

Standard Works in Esperanto for the whole

a Nokto	1/6 2/- 2/-
	$\begin{array}{c} 1/2\\ 1/9\\ 6\end{array}$ $\frac{2}{6}$ 2/-
a Pilgri venki	1/6 1/- 1/- 1/- 2/-
ginio onounced	2/6d.
ooks. po	2/- 6d.
 pots) px)	1/- 2/- 1½d 3d. 4d.

FROM THE PUBLISHERS

THE SOCIAL UNREST: Its cause and solution by the Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay Mac-Donald. (Hodder and Stroughton, Ltd., Warwick Square, 3/6).

This book of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald 1s a e-printed work with a preface by Mr. Wil-iam Graham, the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, to bring it up to date.

ship, but it seems he will be very well satis-fied by joint councils of employers and employed, and even under collective owne hip he visualises the continuation of the wage system and an organisation of industry which would not differ greatly from that under the great trusts of to-day Competition to secure foreign markets seems to dominate Mr. Graham's view of the industrial field. For this reason he regards strikes as "a calamity.

Mr. MacDonald, on the other hand, minmises the loss caused by strikes to the employer, to thr employee, and the public at large. He says: "though many strikes are the workman is quite right in putting the highest value on his power to strike. He adds: "The decisions of wages boar.is will, as a rule, be for a lower pay than organ ised labour can get organised capital to agree to, if organised labour is free to strike."

This is an exceedingly confused book. In his final chapter "Conclusion," Mr. Mae-Donald is declaring for the nationalisation of industry. At the same time he sandwiches such passages as the following:

"Under the Labour State men and women are to have an exchange value which is t ecure for them at least a tolerable standard life. This can be fixed in various ways, it the State has already selected the method wages poards, and they must now be applied to more and more industries.

Mr. MacDonald then urges that voluntary agreements between Trade Unions and em-ployers' associations are best in well-organised trades, adding: "The State ought to recog-nise them and encourage them by making them general to districts and trades.

He argues further that some Trade Unions give security against breaches of agreement, nd others will do so when "the confidence si the workmen is restored in the honourable in tentions of the emloyers.'

Such argumentation does not read liky nationalisation. However Mr. MacDonald says: "The state which begins to engraft Hunanism upon Capitalism finds itself faced with two great alternatives. It must either adopt the futile policy of Protection or the Socialist policy of Nationalisation."

Capitalism has got to go: many realise that But what is to follow it ought not to be a mere tition of the present order under a centralised state.

Plenty for all, production for use, not sale must be our goal.

WHERE TO BUY THE DREADNOUGHT IN WALTHAMSTOW.

ght can be obtained from Mr. The Dreadno Quartermass, 444, Hoe Street Walthamstow.

Workers' Dreadnought Founded 1914.

Editor: Sylvia Pankhurst All Matter for Publication- To The Editor. Business Communications- To The Manager.

* * * WORKERS' DREADNOUGHT 152, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.4.

SUBSCRIPTIONS. Post free.

Three months (13 weeks) 18. 7<sup>1/2</sup>d. 3s. 3d. hix months (26 weeks) . One year (52 weeks) 6s. 6d.

Subscriptions can start from any week.

Vol, XI. No. 13, Saturday, June 14th 1924

Our Diew.

A TORY BRINGING THE LABOUR GOV. ERNMENT back to its Socialistic principles in respect of housing is a curious spectacle. Yet the other day a Conservative member, Sir Kingsley Wood, introduced a Bill to prevent the sale by the first Commissioner of Works (Mr. F. W. Jowett, of Bradford Municip*! fame), of more than half the working class houses on the Well Hall and other Estates. The Well Hall houses are being offered for sale at from £500 to £700. Obviously prohibi. tive prices for the ordinary workman to pay Yet there is said to be a waiting list of 3,00) people desiring to rent these houses. vonders, indeed, why the Government should thus gratuitously play into the hands of its opponents since Mr. MacDonald at York expressly stated that whilst the last Govern nt had got some houses built for sale this government, the Labour Government, is facing the problem of producing houses to let.

Government Sells its Houses.

We are waiting for a social organisation which will provide houses primarily to live in; and all the evidences prove daily and more ly that this will never be until the private property system is abolished.

* * *

QUITE AMAZING was Mr. MacDonald's statement to the House of The Prime Commons on June 4th thus "the Irish question nas been placed outside the am-Minister and Ireland. bit of party controversey so this country is con

' and thus the Treaty embodies a final settlement of Anglo-Irish relations made once for all." He "The task of the present governmen; atly facilitated by the fact that it has merely to give effect to the policy of our predecessors with which we are in perfect agreement'

That puts Mr. MacDonald's position verv clearly. It is unmistakable to all who understand plain English; and the position applies with equal force to Indian, Egyptian and African, as well as to Irish Nationalisation. Mr. MacDonald, without the least shadow cf doubt or deception is an Imperialist. He pro-mises the conquered people within the British Empire to advocate for them no more than a limited degree of home rule in local affairs under the shadow of British arms.

He offers, in short, conciliation under the gion and economics.

THE WORKERS' DREANOUGHT.

dominant Capitalist-Imperialism. His programme for the subject class, the workers, is essentially the same as for the subject peo-The workers are to accept conciliation Boards and Trade Boards under their capitalist employers. Yet Mr. MacDonald often speaks and writes of Nationalisation. Does ha that the first Labour Government which obtains a Parliamentary majority shal tackle the subject of nationalisation, or dose he propose that this generation shall conten: itself with conciliation Boards?

That is a question his followers should press home?

More important, however, is the question what is meant by nationalisation.

If nationalisation is to mean that the existing owners of private concerns are to continue drawing their profits when the concerns have been placed under Governmen: control, the position of the worker will be little changed and he will have no more that the conciliation Board provided for him afts. all ernment. There is nothing inspiring in the appointment of an official expert committee to inquire into the working of the present Act consisting of three members of the Governor General's Council, and the three secretaries of the Governmen of India. The adding to the committee of some non-official members is a step taken of placate the Indian movement, but the new omers will affect little difference in the situtaion. Only activity by an implacable extra-Parliamentary movement will produce changes in India. It is the same with all agitations all the world over.

> * *

The

 $\operatorname{RED}$  TAPE is being meticulouly observed by the Labour Government its dealings with India. It is proceeding as cautiously as any Liberal or Tory Go7-Government and India.

*

THE DECISION OF THE CO-OPERATIVE CONGRESS to start, though The Coming not at present, a Co-opera-

New Daily. tive daily paper will, in our opinion, make for progress. , and when, the proposed daily appears. It will increase the number of people who will read a paper which is not precisely a cappaper. It will probably force the Daily Herald to move further to the Left, as the co-operative paper cannot possibly be further to the Right than is the Daily Herald. If it it would be indistinguishable from the capitalist papers.

The existence of another working class daily will break down the mistaken idea that be cause the Daily Herald is the only workers daily, all things must be excused in it.

Nevertheless we do not look for the 30operative daily to be a Left Wing paper. it is not in the nature of things that it should Politics apart it may easily reach a higher journalistic standard than that of the Daily Herald, and its competition may cause the Daily Herald to embark on many must needed improvements.

LORD DANESFORT'S BILL to prevent the teaching of "blasphemous and "seditious" doctrines to children, which has been read a first time in the Freedom of Education Menaced. House of Lords, must oe be allowed to pass unnoticed. The Britis Fascisti is a tiny burlesque little organisation yet here we find it permitted by the author ies to scale the roof of the Town Hall a drill there and then to come down and be people with sticks.. Mr. Henderson says ice knew nothing of the affair until aff it was over; yet it is strange there were a police in and around the Town Hall when public meeting was being held. Was that b cause it was a Conservative meeting? This a matter into which Mr. Henderson sho inquire particularly if he wishes to preser the impartiality of the police force for whi ne is at present supposed to be responsible.

THE ASSAULT AT ROTHERHITH British Fascisti.

We ask comrades in all seriousness wheth they propose to stand idly by whilst a terror body is allowed to practice violence with a punity and to grow until it has drawn into ranks all the cowards who may enjoy playn at White Terrorism so long as it can be car ried on without risk?

* * CIVILISATION has apparently shortened The Last of the helioved to be apparently shorten the life of the race. Sta tjie, believed to be the la the Bushmen. pure-ored survivor of South African Bushmen. said to be 130 years old. These unfortune people were killed off like wild animals the early European settlers. Now the last them is forbidden by a paternal government : cross the seas to Wembley, lest a Sout African curiosity should perish overseas.

. . .

MILLERAND has retired in the wake" Poincare. They clung to offic as long as they could, bu France

France is moving Leftwar and they have had to ... Moving. Nevertheless there is very far to travel yet l fore we can say that France is on the eve actual changes. Herriot is but a Liberal an not an advanced one. He supports the Rub invasion and possesses a completely capita ist outlook in all respects. The French prot tarian movement is not advanced; it has not a strong anti-Parliamentary workshop mov-Though the Parliamentarians ment. there, as everywhere,, much less importan than they fancy themselves, they neverthat less, still hold by far the greater part of the horizon of the awakening workers. Time and conditions and propaganda with change that, but the task is great and the workers are still too few.

TOWN HALL commit upon numbers of people a body calling itself British Fascisti should Unemployment in India. The under secretary denied the existence of the end of the existence of th Austrian Armaments. Mr. Morel again asserted that Austria has reased her manufacture and export of Mr. MacDonald said his information was contrary effect The Daily Herald and the Committee of Privileges. Mr. MacDonald replied to questions that on Mr. Hamilton Fyfe was called before the use of Commons Committee of Privileges was told that the proceedings were to re n private. Yet a report appeared in the Herald and the editor stated that he and no apology to offer to the House. Mr. MacDonald said as to this: "The atement to which the hon. Member draws attention belongs to the type of conduct ch asks for, but ought not to receive, fucer notice

Kenya Land for Lord Delamere.

Complaints were made that 60,000 acres d in the Loldaiku Hills, West Kenya is ssing over to Lord Delamere and the nativas being deprived of it. Mr. Lunn (Lab.) lied evasively, detending the transfer, and I that the native population in the area ust be very small.

Foot and Mouth Disease.

Animals slaughtered or authorised aughtered, and percentage in Britain— title, 104,076—1.48 per cent.; Sheep, 43,681 0.2 per cent.; Pigs, 48,005—1.7 per cent., ats 128. cost of outbreak to Governmen', 6/6 a week for 60 years.

3 274 600.

Small Holdings.

The number of statutary small holdings in gland and Wales has grown from 504 in to 31,835 in 1923.

We desue not small holdings, but common nership of the land and its products. Foreign Relations and Parliamentary Control

Mr. Clynes, on the Government's behalf. used the request of Mr. Morel for a day discuss the following motion: That in the opinion of this House, no munity iplomatic arrangement or understanding with a foreign State, involving directly or directly, national obligations shall be concluded without the consent of Parliament. and no preparations for co-operation in war between the naval military or air staffs of a reign State shall be lawful unless conequent upon such arrangement or under standing; and this Resolution shall be com-municated to all States with which we are n diplomatic relations and to the League of Nations.

Protection for Government Tenants.

Sir Kingsley Wood (Cons.) obtained leave bring in a Bill to give Government tenant same protection against eviction as other He was accused of doing this, not ants help the persons concerned, but to em rrass the Labour Government. Be that as may, the Government tenants are sorely as they do not benefit like other tennts from the Rent Restrictions Acts at pr :-

Mr. Wheatley's Housing Bill.

Wheatley's Housing Bill is to provid or the erection of more houses of the type and size provided for by the Coalition Gov mment in the Act of 1923. One might have the rent and said:

Parliament as we see it. Our Parliamentary Reports and Comments are based on the official Verbatim Reports.

hoped for a better type of house to-day, after the agitation, and the verdict of the general election. When that type of house was orn-ginally proposed. Mr. Wheatley protested. Here is an extract from the speech he made lemning them in 1923:

"The houses are too small—they are iserably small. These houses will never homes, they will very soon be slums He is here laying down the standard housing in this country, not merely to day, but for 30 years to come—he is stereotyping poverty. Why do you propose these boxes for our people? Are they inferior people to you? Are they less useful to the com-munity than you? All these proposals emnate from men who believe in their souls that Britain is a spent force.

The ourden of the moneylender is to be placed on the community for the building t houses which Mr. Wheatley thus scathingly condemned. He declared that his predecess was setting a standard for 30 years and stereotyping poverty. How much more this the case when a building programme o 15 years is being entered upon.

The Government is to make a grant of  $\pounds 9$ a year per house and £12 10s. a year in rural areas for forty years. Where a house s not subject to certain special conditions the grant will be only £ 6 a year for 20 years 100,000 cheap houses are required annually to prevent the housing shortage from increas-ing; only 17,383 such houses are being built 6/6 a Week to Moneylenders.

Mr. Wheatley explained that the charges for land and building of the proposed hous 35 would amount to 3/3 a week for sixty year: but the interest on the money borrowed for land purchase and building would amount to

The answer to that is the question why the Labour Government did not raise the money required by taxing the rich instead of by borrowing from them.

The Labour Government objects to confisca-That being so, it intends that the interest on money raised for housing and other needs shall be paid in perpetuity or until the money is refunded.

To do this is to give those who sow not, neither do they spin, but live on rent, interst and profit, a permanent hold on the com-

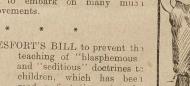

The Shortage of Skilled Workers.

Mr. Wheatley said last year, 900 joiners transferred from the Trade Unions Clyde to those of New York, and that the e now 62 090 fewer skilled mechanics building trade than there were in 1913. There are now 53,000 bricklayers; there w 109,000 twenty years ago. There are 13,000 plasterers; there were 227,000 20 years ago There are 2,800 slaters, there were 8,400 20

the Trade Unions had been rejected l employers, and being out of work had cause t e union to pay out much unemployment be ev was giving too much for the houses price on the price of last January He taunted him with having abandoned hi alism now he was in office. Sir Kingsle given in the "Forward" in March, 1914. Wheatley had then advocated "The Labour Party £8 Cottage Scheme." He complained that profit and interest absorbed at least half

Labour Party £8 Cottage Scheme.

Sir Kingsley Wood (Cons.) said Mr. Wheat

'The first principle of Socialism was the abolition of profit and interest. Every Socialist ought to subscribe to that, or gen utside the Socialist movement.

The only method by which they could stablish Socialism was to provide the r own capital free of interest.

Mr. Wheatley had then urged that the nat ional exchequer should provide money fo housing free of interest.

In and Out of Office.

Those were Mr. Wheatley's views out of lice: in office he finds himself in the mids: of a complicated system with inter-communi cating machinery. If he makes any radical change in the principles governing one part of the machinery he dislocates something elso. Therefore he proceeds according to the old

Contract versus Direct Labour.

Mr. Raynes (Lab.) advocated dispensing with contractors and hiring direct labour. He spoke of his experience as a member of the Derby Corporation. The lowest contract price for a building had been £46,750. By direct labour the Corporation had secured it for £28,341 17s. 4d. The Corporation had let a house building contract at  $\pounds715$  per house. and immediately by its direct labour depart ment, built houses at £424 each under same conditions, on an adjoining site. The contractor then offered to build for £424 pe: house and built two blocks of similar ho side by side; one at the old price of £715, the other at £424 per house

He urged the Government to build its own es and to re-open the war-time factor for the purpose

The Review of the Fleet.

H.M.S. Enchantress, at a cost of  $\pounds1,100$  is to be prepared for the use during 10 days, of the Board of Admiralty, and some official guest for the naval review, organised in connection with Wembley. Four other vessels are also to be used. The expenditure on the Enchantress is defended on the ground that was the cheapest way to prepare adequate commodation for the guests.

Strange that the old fleet does not contain single vessel fit to take a meal on Viscount Curzon said H.M.S. Princess Ma: garet proved good enough last year; but Mr Ammon replied that was only an inspection limited number of vessels not a review of

Mr. Short said there is a dispute over the piece work rates to be paid on the Enchantess but Mr. Hodges from the height of his pos-tion as first Lord of the Admiralty answered : We cannot undertake to deal with any ma ters that do not come to us officially #### 25/- for a Dinner.

Lyons are charging at one of their Wemblev estaurants 2/6 for a cocktail, 7/6 for tea, for dinner.

Mr. Lunn said : "The Board of Managemen: felt there was scope for an establishment which would be comparable with the pest class of restaurant in the West End."

The Wembley Sweating.

Asked what the waiters and waitresses are oaid at Wembley and what hours they work, Mr. Lunn did not know and had received "no specific complaints from either waiters or waitresses employed at the Exhibition.'

Mr. Hodges will only take it from the rade Union; Mr. Lunn must get it from ie actual employees concerned.

What about collective bargaining?

Dear, dear; these little potentates!

The Turkish Treaty.

There was a wrangle over the Lausanne Treaty. Mr. Lloyd George attacked thy late Tory Government and complained that (Continued on page 8).

THE WORKERS' DREANOUGHT.

Socialism and Literature. By Henry S. Salt.

Reprinted from "Forecasts of the Coming Century." Published by the Labour Press. Tib Street, Manchester, in 1897. Continued from last week.

While the writer's idea of Socialism is not wasted in the production of useless volu ours, the article is, we think, still of interest. We invite the comments of our readers upon

But here it will be objected that "pure literature," being the very flower and con-summate expression of thought, must not be thus lightly subjected to the risks consequent on a rough equalisation of civic duties, but must rather be fostered and safeguarded with all possible care; the condition of the people no doubt the most momentous subject for is no doubt the most momentous subject for politician and sociologist, but the interests of "pure literature" are of a still higher and more lasting importance. To which it may fairly be answered that to neglect the material well-being of society, out of a sentimental reverence for an art which is ultimately de pendent on that well-being, is to repeat the error of the old woman in the fable, who killed the goose that laid the golden eggs.

Pure literature, invaluable treasure thouga it is, becomes a mockery and a sham if once men recognise that it is the voice of class supremacy and not of a nation's life, even as at the present time we are more and more recognising that much of our so-called "culis based on a hideous substructure degradation and suffering. A refinement which can ignore the misery around it or even batten on that misery, is no refine-ment at all. Our literae humaniores are no; numane, and not being humane they are soon und to be illiterate; so that there is real ruth in the caustic remark of the satirist Peacock that "Great indeed must be the zeal for improvement, which an academical edu-cation cannot extinguish." Learned professors and busy scientists may shut their eyes to the facts which have made socialism a ne cessity and may elect to play the part of accomplished ostriches in a barren literary w.'derness, but the facts are none the less byious to those who face them. If literatur in the future is to be something more than a sickly hothouse exotic, it must draw it, sustenance from the subsoil of a just and humanely organised community-which is Equally striking is the contrast between the actual and the possible state of letters when regarded from a purely economic stand-point. At present there is an immense com-petative system of production for private in-terests; books are largely written, printed and published, not because they contain matter of real value, but because a profit is expected to result from them, which profit usually to parties whose share in the work is not literary but commercial.

In each grade of the process the same sor-did conditions are observable. The publisher too often sweats the author; the author sweats the copyist or literary hack; the printer sweats the printer's devil: then in any cases, a false market is manufactured log-rolling, puffing advertisements, and the various devices of the middleman-and o! another worthless book has been foisted the reading public, who in the confusion thus generated, are naturally rendered more and re incapable of forming a sound and reliable judgment.

Thus it is that the whole canon of taste is in great measure distorted and productions of monumental dulness are artifically exalted into "standard works." 'It is among the standing hypocrisies of the world," says D<sub>3</sub> Quincey, in reference to an instance of the kind, "that most people affect a reverence for this pook, which nobody reads." It is pitiable to think of the amount of human system for his successors, like Sydney Smith's the solution the present state of the presen labour, mental and physical, that is thus country gentleman who having wasted his dom than the academic culture of oneself.

An author who has no manner of business to be an author at all writes, let us say, abad novel, and forthwith gives employment perhaps with a proud consciousness of stimu ting trade, to a number of persons, pub-shers, printers, reviewers and others, who like himself, would be quite capable, in a rationally ordered society, of performing some useful part.

Under a Socialist system, all this would be amended, there would be no unworthy mducements to do bad work in one direction when one could do good work in another, and public extravagance would give way to con-siderations of public economy. Editions de tux would no longer be issued to mark th; growning degradation of letters; for who would care to waste his substance upon non-sense bound in vellum, when he could buy good literature in cheap and serviceable torm? And finally the State, which at present spends so much on military armamen's hat it is compelled to plead its poverty, whenever literature asks for a share, would be able out of its abundant treasury to endow a handsome library in every town and village, and do more for the encouragement of national culture in a single year than can be done in haif a century of our hap-nazard suicidal individualism. From whatever point view one looks at the question, it is diffialt to resist the conviction that the true ver has nothing to fear, but, on the conary, everything from Socialism.

e author of Looking Backward is of opinion that the adoption of a Socialist system would be followed by a revival of letters even greater than the Renaissance—'an era of me-chanical invention, scientific discovery, art, musical and literary productiveness to which o previous age of the world offers anything comparable." Whether this be probable or we may at least reel assured that it will an age of genuine, and not artificially ulated, production; that there will be an mense improvement in the quality of the poks produced, in proportion to their quan-ty; that there will be no Grub street to end out bad works on the one side and no elgravia on the other; and that the whole of r literature will be informed by a hopeful d helpful spirit of behef in human comradeip, in place of the present pessimistic tone cynical dilettantism. Nor is there any reaon to doubt, in view of the impending social truggle, that the sympathies of the literary ass even as now constituted, will be in the ain with the workers; for as has been weil remarked, "literary men in all ages have been the organs of the sapienza vulgare or eneral sentiments of the people

The literary man is the client of Dives and n excessive consideration for his patron's asceptibilities and sometimes for his own ort has enfeebled the vigour of his hought and dùlled the incisiveness of his pen; ut he, too, has not seldom known what it is suffer, and his heart has all along been ith his prother Lazarus at the gate. It is now over a century since literature emanc. ated itself from the thraldom of the indivial aristocrat—is it not time that it also rid of the plutocratic ascendancy? Socialsm, while removing the raison d'etre for a special class of authors, will simultaneously own youth in fruitless classical instruction is resolved that he shall not be the last of long line of victims?—"Aye, aye, its mighty well—but I went through this myse and I am determined my children shall do th same." Unless the signs of the times ar wholly deceptive, literature, like every othe expression of thought, is now approaching ew and critical phaze of its The existing forms of literary workmans have been carried, in the hands of a few g masters, to the re plus ultra of technical cellence, and it seems improbable that further progress will be made on the old lin a fresh impetus is needed, and this can be supplied by a new ideal. Whence will new ideal be forthcoming? Assuredly from that withered, wrinkled, unlovely of pitiless competition which has long a national literature as impossible as a onal art. Not from that so-called ualism" which has stultified itself by b ishing true individuality from the monotor death-in-life of the masses. precious "freedom of contract" which mysteriously allied with the worst forms class slavery. Not from the "gentilit which abnegates gentleness; nor the "inc pendency" which lives on sweated labour nor the "respectability" which is everywhe ceasing to be respected, nor the beauty-wo ship which ignores the hideous moral deform from which there is the slightest possibi of the new ideal uprising, and that is growing sense of universal brotherhood a equality of man. This equality, I n scarcely state, is not the uppish, priggish, tempt to be level with one's in eriors, which is periodically deprecated to certain learned professors, who are so steepe in the atmosphere of competition that e eir conception of equality is tinged by but simply the recognition of the fact that a human beings hold their life by the san tenure, and that no individual can find the happiness who in his, inmost heart can conceive of himself as better, or more deservin than the meanest of his fellows. can put new live into the culture which present faints and flags under its half-co sciousness of the inhuman and sordid con tions of its social environment, it will be th ideal of equality. The literature that wi result from the cheering sense of world-wid solidarity and fellowship will be ten fo saner than that which is now supported will not say inspired) by the craving for pe sonal distinction or the necessity of somet earning a living among a host of hungry con petitors: furthermore it will be based on th ock of actuality and self-knowledge inste of on the shifting sands of a fastidious a ntimental "refinement." Concurrently v this progress, the general conception of the duties and privileges of authorship will be 'The Idea of th Author," said Ficht," is almost unknown our age and something most unworthy usurp its name. This is the peculiar disgrace of th age-the true source of all its other scientifi The inglorious has become glorious and encouraged, honoured and rewarded. Accord ng to the almost universally received opinio is a merit and an honour for a man to hav printed something, merely because he has printed it, and without any regard to what i s which he has printed and what may be it esult. They, too, lay elaim to the highes ank in the republic or letters who announc omebody has printed some hing and what that something is; or as the hrase goes, who review the work of others. It is almost inexplicable how such an absurd pinion could have arisen.

The literature of the socialised community of the future will surpass that of the present

SCHOOLS.

PLANT CELLS. lant-cells are usually enclosed in a firm wall fany animal cells are not thus enclosed, are naked. Though divided by the cell s by which it is encased, the protopla ne cell communicates with its neighbours cans of minute channels.

he protoplasm moves within the cell wall it rotates. Sometimes it flows up bot'i of the cell and down the middle, carrywith it various food granules, and a luctive centre as explained previously. The plant cell wall is of cellulose, stance chemically allied to starch. Jany plants have hard, woody skeleton formed of lignin. Both animals and plants contain a large centage of water. A man contains up-ds of 59 per cent. of water.

ithin the skin the bodies of vertebratals are as soft as a very weak jelly; in-they are semi-fluid. lertebrate animals, amongst which food. n beings, horses and dogs, are those possess an internal skeleton and a tions instead of one.

MULTI-CELLULAR ORGANISMS.

two cells

s we have seen the Amoeba, the little uni

somewhat higher forms of life the waist not break; the animal continues to have cells. In some creatures these divide a and the animal has four cells. In rs there is a further division: the animal eight cells. Others again divide and pr>- ese are multi-cellular, which means many egarding each cell as an individual, the Animals consume solid food. al column. hilst such animals as we have an inter skeleton, some animals are encased in an ernal skeleton, a shell or scales, or a hard ing like that of many insects. living organisms.

Plants can assimilate, that is to say, build up into their protoplasm, chemicals which contain only two elements; for instance vater, carbon dioxide and ammonia. Chemists know water as H2O, carbon dioxide as CO<sub>2</sub> and ammonia as NH3 llar animal described in an earlier lesson, oduces itself by dividing in two. First the leus divides, then a waist develops be-Chemicals built up of two elements are called binary, which simply means composed en the two nuclei. The waist grows smal-until it breaks and there are two little aniof two. Bi means two.

Animals cannot digest binary compound : They must have what are called tenary com the meantime before the waist breaks Amoeba is bi-cellular; that is to say :t pounds.

ternary compounds.

tenance from both.

other animals.

That is to say composed of elements com-bined in threes. Tern means threefold. Animals require for their sustenance nitroen and carbon.

Nitrogen they can only extract from proteins.

Proteins, as explained in a previous lesson are compounds (or mixed) chemical sub-stances never found apart from living matter and containing carbon, hydrogen, nitro avvgen and sulphur anism is a colony. here are three kinds of Colonies:

A collection of cells, the protoplasm of ch does not intermingle and from which cell can be separated without injury to rest, and can live independently of the

A collection of cells, alike, or mus! colony and if one of them dies another grow in its place.

f these cells have flagella* the flagell in unison.

These cells have not separate functions h one performs all the vital function ome of these cells, however, may be e to form eggs, or spermatozoa, whic'n organs for fertilising the eggs.

Colonies consisting of cells which ar ssary to each other's lives and perform arate functions.

ost animals and plants consist of num cells, various functions being per by various sets of cells.

Flagella: a thread-like fibratiny process Hydro-Carbons, supplied by fats. the organism to move other bodies along. See last week Carbo-Hydrates, supplied by sugar

Foods.

tive tissue, etc.

an individual.

organisms.

LESSONS FOR PROLETARIAN

A collection of cells of one sort forms musle tissue, a collection of another sort nerve issue, others form digestive tissue, reprodu

Only in colonies of the first order can eas ell be regarded as an individual. Where the cells are not independent of each other th whole collection of cells must be regarded .

All protoplasm must have food or the place

The nature of the food which the organism requires enables us to separate plants from animals and fungi from green plants.

Substances containing the chemical ele-ments contained in protoplasm must be taken in from the outside, dissolved and distributed to the living cells.

The chemical elements contained in proto plasm are known by chemists as C.H.O.N.S P. Cl. K., Na. Mg. Ca. Fe,

There is no general food suitable for all

The protoplasm of plants and animals appears the same, yet their food is different. Plants, as a rule, cannot consume solid od. They must take their nourishment in the form of liquid or gas. There are excep-

Fungi consume dead matter or the product

Plants can only get their Carbon from pro-eins, carbohydrates, or fats. These are all

The binary compounds required by plants exist in the air, in the water and in the ground. Thus plants need not move to seek their food. They find it all around them They are literally bathed in it. They present e greatest po sible surface to the air above. and the ground below, and draw their sus

Because they do not move from place place they are called sessile.

"Whilst plants take their food from the elements, the ternary compounds which animais need for food are only formed by plants and

Professor Goddy, in his "Cartesian Ec ics," has therefore said that the plants were the first capitalists, because they alc an transform the original elements into foot or themselves and animals, and therefore vithout plants no other forms of life could

Animals require to keep them in health: Proteins, supplied in the main by flesh ious kinds of which are contained Salts. ve-mentioned food. Wat

e shall have more to say about foods next week

Lantern slides illustrating these lessons may be obtained from Mr. James, 23, Maudslay Road, Eltham, S.E.9.

AGRICULTURAL WAGES BILL.

The Government Agricultural Wages Bi' as passed its Second Reading.

This Bill sets up local Wages Boards Should the Boards fail to agree the decision ests with the national wages tribunal and the Government

The Labourer's Hard Lot.

The pitiful state of the agricultural lab-urer was graphically described during the debate. No-one ventured to suggest that bictures of hardship were over-drawn. The Bi Il by no means revolutionise the position. It vill do no more than mitigate the worst cases poverty

Amongst the evils described were the light y of the farm labourer to eviction if dis missed from his workb ecause he occupies cottage supplied by his employer.

Small, badly-built dwellings in many of which an adult cannot stand upright.

The increase of tuberculosis in rural areas owing to over-crowding and poor feeding. In 1900, bread formed 20 per cent. of the diet; now it is 50 per cent. 68 per cent. of agricultural labourers get less than 30/- a week 23 per cent. get 25/- a week and 24/- (actually 23/7) in winter

Some get only  $\pounds 1$  per week. Wet days often bring nominally higher wages down to  $\pounds 1$  or even to 14s, per week Mr. Buxton, president of the Board of Agriculture said 3s, a head per week was the common sum available for the food of one nember of a labourer's family. He quote i Mr. Edward's, who said :

"Forty years' experience has convince l me that the labourers cannot get a living wage by Trade Union methods alone. The difficulties of organisation are so great that we cannot get our organisation strong enough to enforce it."

Sir L. Scott, Chairman of the Unionist Social Reform Committee, was quoted as follows

"In many counties the great majority of labourers are ill-educated and ill-fed. therefore becomes necessary to establish some means of raising wages to a sub-sistence level in order that the labourer and is family may be adequately nourished

'The land question means hunger, thirst, nakedness, notice to quit, labour spent .n vain, the toil of years seized upon, the breaking up of homes, the misery of parents, children and wives? the despair and wildness that spring up in the hearts in the poor when legal force, like a sharp arrow, goes over the most sensitive and vita! of mankind."-Cardinal Manning

"You find in many of the country schools the children, except the children of farmers, are pale-faced and anaemic looking with eyes lacking lustre, undersized, under-fed and sad-faced."—The Medical Officer of Health for Devonshire.

The following farm labourers' budgets were

A labourer with five children aged from 2 o 11 years; pays 3/9 rent; 6d. a week for th. Daily Herald, ouys 14bs. of margarine, 2/A for meat (pieces), 7/- for flour (bread :s baked at home), Sugar 38bs., Milk, 1 pint skim per head per week for children. 15/1) is spent on food, 9/- on rent, insurance, clothes, candles, oil, soap, coal. The wage is 24/10.

The Unstable Basis of the Agricul ural Industry.

-8

Sir T. Davies (Con.) opposed the Bil H said 'you cannot pay wages on a liness or you will become bankrupt.'

He urged the big co-operative societi which have got customers for everything th. produce in their innumerable shops, and often only pay the usual wages of the district, can not make agriculture pay.

Out of 174 societies farming upwards of 19 acres, only 28 made a combined profit f £3,235. The others made a combined loss of £348,284. The co-operative societies buy their farms and only charge 23 per cent. 13

The Belfast Co-operative farms 188 acres, and made a loss of £831 in one year.

Of 30 farms in the Midlands every one made a loss. Long Eaton, Derby, made a loss of £7.996. Ashton-under-Lyne made a loss >> £12,000.

A co-operative farm six miles from wher: A co-operative faith six lines from whet's Sir T. Davies lived lost last year £44,865 on 3,005 acres. The wages paid were the cur-rent wages of the district, 25/- a week for ordinary day men, and 30/- to 37/- for shep herds with house included. All this shows the terribiv unsatisfactory system on which production is based.

WHAT WE STAND FOR.

The abolition of the capitalist or private property system.

Common ownership of the land, the means of production and distribution. The earth, the seas and their riches, the industrial plant, the railways and ships, aircraft, and so on, shall belong to the whole people.

Production for use, not for profit. Under Production for use, not for profit. Under modern conditions more can be produced than can be consumed of all necessaries if pro-duction is not artificially checked. The com-munity must set itself to provide all the re-quirements of its members in order that ther wants may be met without stint and accord-ing to their own meaure and desire The peo-ple will notify their requirements, and the district and accurter, the world must co-onerdistrict and country, the world must co-oper-ate to supply them.

Production for use means that there will pe neither barter nor sale, and consequently no money. An immense amount of labour in money. An immens buying, selling and advertising will therefore Plenty for all. Thus there will be no inriency in an and no poor law, no State or private charity of any kind. Humiliation, officialdom and useless toil, which means put-ting parasites on the backs of the producers, will be obviated thereby.

No class distinctions, because there will be No class distinctions, because there will be no economic distinctions. Everyone will be a worker, everyone will be of the educated elas-ses, for education will be free to all, and since the hours of labour at relatively monotonous tasks will be short, everyone will be able to make use of educational facilities, not merely is and month but throughout life early youth, but throughout life

No patents, no "trade secrets," scientific knowledge will be widely diffused. Since use class war will be no more, the newspapers will be largely filled with scientific information, art, literature and historical research.

Society will be organised to supply its own "" THE RED COTTAGE," needs. To day the essential needs of the people are supplied by private enterprise. Os-tensibly we are under a democratic Govern ment, but the most outstanding fact in the ment, but the host outstanding tace in the average man's life is that he is largely at the disposal of his employer. The government of the workshop where he spends the greater part of his time and energy is despotic.

Under Communism industry will be man-aged by those at work in it. The workshop vill contain not employees, subject to the dic tation of the employers and their managers, ut groups of co-workers.

THE WORKERS' DREANOUGHT.

We stand for the workshop councils in in-We stand for the workshop councils in in-dustry, agriculture and all the services of the community. We stand for the autonomous organisation of the workshops and their or-dered co-ordination, in order that the needs of all may be supplied.

Parliament and the local governing bodies will disappear. Parliament and the monarch, the Privy Council, the Cabinet, the Houses of the Privy Council, the Cabinet, the Houses of Lords and Commons, provided no true demo-cracy. "Self-government is better than good government" is to be found in a society in which free individuals willingly associate themselves in a common effort for the com-mon good. On the basis of co-workers in the methode accompanying with an workers. arkshop co-operating with co-workers in a ner workshops, efficiency of production and tribution, which means plenty for all, can hand in hand with personal freedom.

Elected on a territorial basis, Parliamen ould not manage efficiently the industrie and services of the community. The ser and services of the community. The ser-vices at present controlled by it are managed by salaried permanent officials. The con-dition of the worker employed in such services is the same as in privately owned industry.

A centralised Government cannot give free dom to the individual: it stultifies initiative and progress. In the struggle to abolish capitalism the workshop councils are essential. The trade unions are not based on the workshop, and are bureaueratically governed Therefore they are not able efficiently to man-age the industries. They are ineffective im-plements in the effort to take industry from the management of the employers and vest it in the workers at the point of production. Therefore we stand for—

The abolition of the private property sys. tem.

Production for use, not profit. The free supply of the people's needs. The organisation of production and distribution on a workshop basis.

Our Bookshop.

ANATOLE FRANCE : The Crime of Sylvestre Bonnard .

The Red Lily . Thais Penguin Island Crainquebille EMIL ZOLA. Fruitfulness Truth Abbe Mouret's Transgression The Fat and the Thin ..... The Conquest of Plassans The Fortune of the Rougons The Dream His Masterpiece .. Work GEORGE BERNARD SHAW.

Cashel Byron's Profession Plays Unpleasant Plays Pleasant ..

126, High Road,

Woodford Wells,

FOR WEEK END OUTINGS AND TEAS.

> PARTIES CATERED FOR. Buses 96: 10a, 40a, 34.

PARLIAMENT continued from page 5

ninion Governments had had no sha n the making of the Treaty. He attacked th rovisions committing Britain and her alli o intervene if the neutral zones are invaded d the abolition of the capitalists which p eigners in Turkish territory above the Tu ish law. He said there is no justice in Tur, ish Courts. He predicted that Turkey woul always be a source of war and that Russi and Italy would attack her.

Altogether it was a highly bellicose speec The Labour Prime Minister answered with contemptuous reserve, but incidenta revealed that he is on very friendly terms wi rvative foreign policy The debate ended in smoke.

-

OUT-DOOR MEETINGS. Plymouth.

Saturday, June 14th, 7.30 p.m., Catherin street, Devonport, Sylvia Pankhurst,

Sunday, June 15th, 11 a.m., North Quar mouth, Sylvia Pankhurst. Sunday, June 15th, 6.30 p.m., Behind th arker, Plymouth, Sylvia Pankhurst, Drayton. Hyde Park.

Sunday afternoons at 3.30, Norah Smy

and others. Sunday, 7.30 p.m., Obelisk, Blackfria Road, N. Smyth and others.

Do YOU want to learn The Real Facts about the struggle of the Working Class in Ireland and the general happenings in thatcountry ? If so

Read the "Irish Worker."

The paper that tells the truth. Obtainable from 17, Gardiner Place, Dublin from the "Dreadnought" office, 152, Flee Street, E.C., etc.,

Voluntary sellers wanted everywhere. Dablin Office would put you in touch.

On Sale Saturdays

TO LET IN PARIS.

In a proletarian house for the summe months, a Studio with use of kitchen. Ren 450 francs for thee months. Address, Brunn 278, Rue St. Jacques, 1re.

YOUR SUBSCRIPTION

A blue mark in this space indicates that your subscription is now due. The high cost of production of the paper necessitates prompt payment.

7/6

Published by E. Sylvia Pankhurst, at 152, Fleet Street, London, E.C.4, and printed by the Agenda Press, Ltd. (T.U.), at 1, Pemberton Row, Gough Senare, Landon, B.C.A.

