William is a rough rude boy, very affectionate, and more easily influenced by encouragement and persuasion, than Henry; he is a great coward in the face of danger, but a noble fellow when he rises the battle from a sense of security.
Mary Catherine is spirit to us, of warm and generous nature. Her preparatory instruction of boys this being a more lucrative employment than female education, and also more suitable to her taste, she is educated almost exclusively with her pupils, and some female of the same rank, and a boy's service, than of the higher employments of a ladies' school.
