Dearest Pippa

This is really a business letter - though I am glad of an excuse for finding out whether you still exist & telling you that I do - It seems hopeless to try for more than that at present - Is there any chance that you could let Quentin a room at 51? He is almost certainly going to a job in London quite soon, & wants somewhere to sleep - He'd have no meals in, not even breakfast - I believe Judith Stephens, next door, has a good char who perhaps could tidy up. or perhaps you have - Anyhow woty would be wanted but a room & we could supply furniture if necessary & of course anything else he wanted - But he'd be out all day & is a quiet, sensible creature with few needs - However I dare say it's unprintable - in which case don't worry - Have you heard of the Bunyons lately? Clive's friends the Birns - Anne has quite lately returned from France - saw good news
