Dear Mrs. Taylor,

I am so sorry
I did not write to you sooner, I always meant to write and I also asked Markie to write, but he says that as you are coming back so soon, he better wait to tell you how he was getting on while you were away till you are here again.
He is very happy & getting on very well. He is having his lesson just now & likes it very much. Mark's appetite is splendid just lately, last dinner we all were highly amused about him, because he ate a lot of potatoes & butter & carrots & a poached egg & grapes. He ate very little last week, I thought so at least, though Markie said he never had had more when you were here.

Ethel is doing well.

We all are looking forward to having you back, I hope you are not having a really bad time. He shall think of you tomorrow.

All is going quite well, I like my work very much, there is so much satisfaction in housekeeping, I think. The primroses in the garden are coming out one after another. Shall you be able to see
