Dear Mrs. Russell,

I am so sorry not to have written before, but I have been so terribly rushed with our production for the Stage Society. I am very, very sorry, but I must refuse for June 30th. For one thing, it is not at all certain that we may not have some Monday Matinees before long, and for another, I have had to refuse so many things of this sort, that I dare not make an exception. I really have got as many engagements both this month and next, as I can manage to get through without my work suffering.

With ever so many regrets,

Yours sincerely,

Sybil Thorndike.
