32 ADDISON ROAD,
KENSINGTON, W.

June 4/01

Dear Mrs Fawcett.

Mrs Alfred Dyttelton came, shook a warning finger at me, & then fixed a quizzical eye on my countenance. I had to go down & demand water for the speakers, & she preferred herself quite content with my remarks. You were ably supported by the Att General, who said the dead must be cared for!
I went to the door, & when I saw the usual array of unknown faces I knew it was all U. P. Salisbury was not there, & was very angry at the Bill, I told him it was no policy of ours, & that Aberdeen did it off his own back. The interest to me of the debate, was the new appearance of "Poffen" an excellent debating speech, and I sh. have said so had it been again us. He professed himself as "agin" the suffrage.

Queen Ed. they all ~~are~~^{are} The men of whipped, Halifax, Battersea etc, came up nobly. Mrs Stuart was unexpectedly practical.
I can't get to the next dib. v. social engagements with my daughter.
