Dear Miss Strachey,

I am sending you a copy of the game, "Suffragette", that Mrs Eates, Miss Conolan and I have invented and put on the market for the benefit of the movement. It contains Mrs Fawcett's portrait a-like among others; and we thought it probable that you might <sup>to</sup> have it on sale among your literature - that is, if you care about it as propaganda. You can order it from Messrs Sandle Bros., <sup>54</sup> ~~34~~ Paternoster Row, E.C. at the usual trade discount, so that you would make quite a reasonable profit out of it, as we, of course, have presented our part of it. The selling price is one shilling, and it will be published on Monday.

I am also enclosing one of our Kensington W.S.P.U branch leaflets, as I thought you might be interested in it; and please come to see us any Wednesday afternoon that you find yourself free; we should be so pleased. By the way, my Suffrage notes were crowded out of the "Chronicle" to-day; but they are to appear on Monday, I am told.

Yours very sincerely,

Evelyn Sharp
